"We have a defence to the charge and if the prosecution has no evidence, Hooper is entitled to an acquittal," he said.

Hooper had been remanded Monday to June 12 on the charge on personal bail, but was nabbed on a deportation order by RCMP officers and spirited back to the Don Jail cell he first occupied Feb. 16.

But Stanton Hogg, who was brought in as immigration counsel at the last moment, conferred with Mr. Mintz Monday night and agreed to take the case into court Tuesday.

"That (the charge) is a simple summons," Mr. Hogg said. "It's like a parking ticket, really. He wasn't arrested for that."

Hooper had spent most of the 100 days in jail awaiting the outcome of an immigration department inquiry then awaiting deportation, finally, disposition of the charge.

He was first arrested the day after he arrived in Canada to visit his four - year - old son, Harry, on a charge of common assault on his estranged wife, Rita.

Hooper went to court on the charge March 2, but it was withdrawn. Then he was taken back to Don Jail for an inquiry by immigration officials that ended April 7 when a deportation order was issued against him.

He was held in custody pending deportation arrangements and, later, immigration officials decided to charge him under the Immigration Act with refusing to answer questions. He first appeared in court on this charge May 22, three days after it was placed May 19, but was remanded to last Friday and an immigration officer had told him:

What Gandhi

He was a republican and a socialist. Yet he approved of republican India staying in the Commonwealth and compromised with capitalism for the sake of peaceful progress toward the welfare state.

Though a Hindu by birth, and one who on occasion performed the rites demanded by orthodoxy, he was secular in his whole outlook.

WAS TOLERANT

Religious as well as racial intolerance were foreign to his nature, and Moslems, Sikhs and Christians alike had complete confidence in his fair handling of minorities.

His English education and upbringing made him Western in manner and often in outlook. "I have become a queer mixture of East and West," he wrote in his autobiography.

Athletic, fond of mountaineering and riding, he practised Yoga and until late in life used to stand on his head for a minute each day.

But illness last year aged him considerably and he no longer displayed the dashing vigor which formerly so distinguished him.

He celebrated his 74th birthday last Nov. 14 with India in the grip of economic crisis and his colleagues manoeuvring for the succession.

But Nehru continued to be dominant. And although his policy had drawn criticism, virtually no one could suggest an alternative to his leadership.

The criticism came from a somewhat disillusioned Indian Intelligentsia who thought India should take a stronger stand over its border dispute with Communist China. But the critics concentrated on Nehru's cabinet colleagues instead of on him.

His handsome figure, with its pale, clear - cut features and white hair, was the idol of the people during India's pre-Independence days.

When independence from Britain was achieved, his popularity was such that he could have become India's dictator. But his whole ideology was rooted in the parliamentary and constitutional system.

The ruling Indian Congress Party owed more to him than to any other political leader who guided its destinies. To the peasant, congress was "Panditji's (Nehru's) party" and his vote was cast for "Panditji" alone.

FAMILY WEALTHY

Born in Allahabad, Nehru was the only son of a well-to-do Brahmin family. His father built up the family fortunes by success in law.

In 1905 the family sailed for England and the young Nehru, then 15, was sent to the English private school of Harrow. He later went to Cambridge where he became cox of Trinity College's rowing eight. He studied law in London and was called to the bar in 1912.

Returning to India, he soon became involved in the upsurge of national feeling. He met Gandhi in 1916 and his fate was decided.

He came into conflict with the British "Raj" and in 1923 got the first of nine prison sentences.

In 1938 he went to Spain during the civil war and wholeheartedly supported the Spanish republican cause. The following year he went to China and met Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

OPPOSED FASCISM

Always an outspoken opponent of Fascism, he refused to exploit India's precarious position during the Second World War. His attitude, however, was that the war was not India's since she had not attained independence.

He and several Congress Party colleagues spent the three latter years of the war under detention. But to pave the way for independence an interim Indian government was formed in 1946 with Nehru as vice-president.

In August, 1947, Britain transferred power to India and Nehru became first prime minister of independent India. He remained in office continuously until his death.

Scarcely were the two new states of India and Pakistan established then hostilities broke out between them over Kashmir. The struggle lasted more than a year before a cease - fire line was established.

Nehru was responsible for a series of five-year plans for agricultural and industrial development.

VISITED CHOU

In 1954 he exchanged visits with Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, and together they proclaimed the "five principles of peaceful coexistence" which later became the base of India's foreign policy. But the 1962 Sino-Indian border conflict was a bitter blow to Nehru.

He condemned the Anglo-French action in the Suez Canal Zone in the fall of 1956. But he was criticized abroad in 1961 over his government's annexation of the Portuguese Indian territories of Goa, Daman and Diu.

Nehru's wife, Kamala, died nearly 30 years ago and his son survived only a week. Thus it has been his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, who, together with her two sons, brought a touch of domesticity into his life.

There have been frequent reports Nehru wished to see his daughter, a widow, take over as his successor. A member of the Congress Party's high command, she served for a time as party president.

But the Indian prime minister never publicly indicated whom he favored as his successor.

No Promises, Threats Made Says Witness

MONTREAL (CP) — Crown Prosecutor Jacques Bellemare entered the witness box Tuesday and denied that he ever made promises or threats to Mario Bachand, a convicted terrorist of Le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

The unusual decision to testify in a witness came at the request of the defence in the trial of suspected FLQ member Roger Tetreault, 34.

Bachand, a 19-year-old painter serving four years for a series of terrorist acts, refused to testify and was found guilty of contempt of court. Sentence will be handed down Friday.

Mr. Bellemare entered the witness box when the defence suggested he had brought pressure to bear on Bachand to extract earlier testimony implicating Tetreault.

Ontario Medical Association Approves Increase in Fees To Take Effect Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — The tenfold increase in venereal disease in Ontario in the last five years has caused the Ontario Medical Association to launch a strong offensive against the problem, OMA officials said Tuesday.

The annual OMA meeting ended Tuesday after two days of closed-door discussions.

The association approved resolutions:

—Encouraging doctors to put greater effort into finding and reporting venereal disease cases so that contacts who spread the disease can be found;

—Requesting the Ontario health department to resume publication of its VD control bulletin and pertinent articles on important aspects of the disease which could be printed in the OMA's monthly magazine, the review.

Dr. J. Page Harshman, chairman of the OMA public health committee, said the syphilis rate had increased from 2 cases for 100,000 persons in 1956 to 2.9 cases for 100,000 in 1962.

WANT ADS RESTRICTED

The meeting also approved resolutions calling for the restriction of cigarette advertising on television to hours after 9 p.m., curtailment of cigarette advertising in media seen by children, enforcement of laws prohibiting cigarette sales to minors and labels to state smoking dangers.

The meeting approved increases in fees. The rate for office calls was raised to $4 from $3.50 and for home visits to $5 from $5.

Dr. R. S. Dugran, newly-elected president of the OMA, said this would raise the cost of medical care for the people of Ontario by six per cent. The fee increase goes into effect Jan. 1, 1965, three years from the date of the last OMA fee schedule increase.

The fee schedule of the OMA is merely a list of suggested fees and doctors are not compelled to follow it.

The OMA also reported it is going to make a study of the Ontario Coroner's Act. Two areas to get particular attention are: The right of a coroner's jury to fix the blame for a death, and the requirement in the act that everyone having knowledge of unusual circumstances surrounding a death report it to a coroner.

Dr. Glenn Sawyer, executive secretary of the association, said either a coroner's jury should not be allowed to fix responsibility for a death or a person on whom responsibility is placed should be represented at an inquest by counsel.

A policy statement was also approved opposing coverage by the proposed Medical Services Insurance Act of Ontario for optometrical, dental and other service performed by persons who are not medical doctors.

Two Hours Needed to Free Body

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Police and ambulance men worked two hours Tuesday to free the body of trucker John Chwiejczak, 29, of Hamilton, crushed to death when part of his load slammed into the cab as he braked sharply on the two-lane section of highway 401 west of here.

The transport slid slowly into the back of a bulk cement truck driven by William Yacks, 35, of Florence, some 15 miles north of Chatham. Mr. Yacks was uninjured.

Suspect Arson as Riverside House Damaged

City police are investigating the possibility of arson following a fire which caused considerable damage to a house on the Cannifton Road, owned jointly by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of Belleville.

At 2.00 p.m. yesterday the fire department was called to the site of the home, near Highway 401 bypass. Because there was no water in the locality, four pumper trucks had to be sent to the scene.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the building was afire in three different locations, two of them on the ground floor, and one on the second floor.

He said a portion of the roof was destroyed while considerable smoke and water damage was caused to the remainder of the building, known as Rivercourt.

The building was reported to have been a "beautiful home at one time." It has been vacant for some time and has deteriorated with age.

The dwelling had been formerly owned by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Fry. Mrs. Fry stipulated that upon her death the house was to go to her husband, Earl Fry, and upon his death it was to be left to the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs jointly.

Mr. Fry is still living and about a year ago he entered into negotiations with the two clubs and a quit-claim deed was obtained by the two organizations.

A committee, set up within the two clubs, has been negotiating with the Parks Board in an attempt ot establish a park on the property site.

City police are continuing their investigation.

Canada Small Power With 'Phoney National Pride' - - O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's pursuit of an international image was described in the Senate Tuesday night as a "fanatical obsession."

The remark came from Senator Gratian O'Leary (PC—Ontario), who also said Canada was a small power with a "phoney national pride."

In a hard-hitting speech that did not spare his own party for contributing to "the appalling extravagance" of recent governments, the senator questioned the appropriateness of Canada's support of various United Nations operations.

He echoed earlier statements by Senator George S. White (PC—Ontario) who said Canada had done more than her share in supplying troops to the UN.

Senator O'Leary "characterized the chase for international favor as a mimicry of the United States. Canadians were "almost as bad as our American neighbors who want to be loved."

The upper chamber was considering an interim supply bill covering June expenses of $338,136,717. The bill was given second reading—approval in principle.

Will Reduce High-Ranking Officers to 12 From 17 Under Single Chief of Staff

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's integration of defence headquarters under a single chief of staff is absolutely essential if savings are to be achieved, Defence Minister Hellyer said Tuesday.

Outling his plans to the Commons defence committee, Mr. Hellyer said the number of generals, lieutenant - generals and major - generals is being reduced to 12 from 17, and similar savings can be achieved as integration of the armed forces on functional lines proceeds.

"We feel this will operate satisfactorily and efficiently, and that we will be able to keep our forces at a high state of readiness, and keep up the support which is absolutely essential."

Under existing defence headquarters organization, the minister is advised on military matters by the chairman of a chiefs of staff committee and by the chiefs of the navy, army and air force. The chairman of the Defence Research Board and the deputy minister of national defence also have direct lines to the minister.

Under the new setup, the chairman of the chiefs of staff and the three services' chiefs will be replaced by a single chief of defence staff.

Advising him will be chiefs of operational readiness, personnel and logistics and engineering, plus a comptroller general. An assistant chief of defence staff will be responsible for intelligence, plans, operational requirements, and program planning.

Mr. Hellyer said that in the new organization, the chief of defence staff, and the chiefs responsible for various functions will have deputies drawn from different forces. The organization will require men at the top thoroughly familiar with all navy, army and air force problems.

The defence minister said the new plan was evolved to save money on staff overhead so it can be spent on new equipment, and also to maintain flexible forces in being instead of depending on rapid recruitment and training in an emergency.

The chiefs of staff committee, which had its origins in 1927 and became the principal co-ordinator of defence policy and strategic assessments, is being abolished. The defence council, first set up in 1922 but now mainly concerned with personnel and management problems, is being strengthened to cover the field.

Mr. Hellyer, answering questions by Larry Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand), said it was impossible now to say how many of the 10,000 men being cut from the armed forces in the reorganization would retire normally, or how many would receive special severance benefits.

Soon Recaptured

KINGSTON (CP)—Alexander Anderson, 25, of Woodstock was arrested by police in Brockville Tuesday night about three hours after he escaped from the nearby Collins Bay minimum security prison.

Police said Anderson was arrested beside a car they believed was stolen from Kingston. The vehicle was out of gas.

Anderson had 10 months lef to serve on a three-year sentence for breaking, entering an theft.

PLEDGE AID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nin industrial nations — including Canada—and the World Bank pledged $1,028,000,000 in economic aid to India Tuesday for the fourth year of its current five-year economic development program. Canada pledged $41,000,000.

Prime Minister Tells CMA Freer Trade Is Needed to Make Canada Strong Nation

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP)—The old question of tariffs versus freer trade is back with a vengeance to haunt Canada's manufacturers.

The 1,200 delegates to the 62nd annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which ended Tuesday, heard both sides of the argument from shirts of speakers.

Leading the free-trade brigade was Prime Minister Pearson, who told the closing banquet that the world now is in one of those periods of transition "when old patterns, old ideas and old concepts gradually give way to new—and sometimes not so gradually."

The urgent needs and insistent demands of the new and developing world have come to the fore, he said.

"No country can afford to ignore these currents or to lag behind in adapting itself to the changes that are taking place.

"Especially is this so in the case of Canada.

"High levels of prosperity and employment require that our economy should be resilient and competitive and that we should exploit every opportunity to gain access to wider markets and to establish the friendliest possible contacts with the people they represent.

Earlier in the day, two speakers had criticized Canadian businessmen for not taking a greater part in international trading.

Other speakers during the three-day convention, however, called for maintenance of protection for Canada's manufacturing industries from foreign competition.

Mr. Pearson split his address between a strong plea for national unity and for more international trading.

Prolonged applause greeted him when he told the delegates that he congratulated them for their emphasis in their program on national unity.

"I ask you not to weary in the task of strengthening that unity —of strengthening understanding from the Atlantic to the Pacific of the basic fact that Canadian unity is the prerequisite to our realization of every other Canadian aspiration. . . .

"I ask you not to weary in this sometimes frustrating job we share of practising and preaching the need for all of us to set aside petty differences and prejudices and narrowness as we debate and decide the course to unity, and strive to build a nation truly worthy of the gifts that God has granted us."

On international trading, the prime minister said Canada's secondary industries have always been confronted with "the great handicap of a relatively small and widely dispersed home market."

"Clearly, to the extent that we find export markets for our output, these natural disadvantages will be reduced and our manufacturers will also be able to compete more effectively in our home market."

Mr. Pearson said Canadian businessmen now have the chance to gain access to wider markets.

"This opportunity, one of the greatest importance, lies in the Kennedy round of trade and tariff negotiations which opened in Geneva earlier this month and in Canada's wholehearted, effective and intelligent participation in these negotiations."

He described the Geneva talks as one of the most significant developments of this time.

"These negotiations hold out the prospect of many worthwhile opportunities for us. The Canadian economy as a whole would stand to gain much from the reduction of barriers to our goods and the general expansion of world trade."

The strongest call for protectionism during the convention came from R. J. Waxman, president of Reinforcer of Canada, Ltd., who said businessmen should ask the government to defer for as long as necessary "any commitment to change major policies in our present tariff structures."

Dr. P. Jewett Speaks on 'Empire Day'

CAMPBELLFORD—The general meeting of St. John's United Church U.C.W. was held in the auditorium Monday evening.

The program was in charge of Unit 5, Mrs. L. Symonds as leader presiding. The theme chosen was Empire Day or in recent connotation Commonwealth Day. Taking part in the devotional period were Mrs. Symonds, Mrs. D. Carswell, Mrs. L. Chrysler, Mrs. R. Preshy. The Junior choir under leadership of Mrs. D. Bennett sang two numbers.

Guest speaker of the evening Dr. Pauline Jewett was introduced by Mrs. F. Simpson.

Speaking on the Commonwealth as it is known today, Dr. Jewett spoke of it as one of the most outstanding group of nations. Canadians are conscious of the fact that other nations explains their past, make heroes of their notables and even help other nations to do so at the same time keep conservatively quiet about their own heroes and past achievements. Dr. Jewett quoted a nations feeling of greatness is conditioned by a recognition of its greatness in the past.

The Commonwealth appeared to grow in an unofficial, informal peaceful way, no rigid rules and is like no other comparable group of nations.

OWNED ONE QUARTER

At one time Britain owned about one quarter of the globe. From this Empire came the first Commonwealth all predominately Anglo Saxon and using the English language. British statesmanship from the beginning of the century encouraged nations to stand on their own feet. Special dates in Canadian history 1841, when Canada was given responsible government, 1867, when responsible government was given to the Dominion, thus the nation gained independence and autonomy without any sharp break from the crown. In 1920 to 1930 complete autonomy was given over external affairs. By the statute of Westminister in 1931 Canada, Australia and New Zealand became autonomous nations.

Second Commonwealth from 1948 on included India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Sierra Leone, Malaya and other African countries including Ghana and Nigeria. Some preferred to remain republics in the Commonwealth which shows the adaptability of the structure. All look upon the Queen as head of the Commonwealth.

Dr. Jewett at the conclusion of her address was presented with a gift, Mrs. J. Bull, making the presentation on behalf of St. Johns U.C.W.

Church Services Well Attended On Sunday

CAMPBELLFORD — In Campbellford on Sunday the church services were well attended.

Christ Church Anglican is one of the oldest, Rev. Owen Barrow stated. The old schoolers in the long past days had a phrase of which they made much, sub specie eternitatis. In the light of eternity. Life has to be lived sub specie eternitatis—in the light of eternity. Money has to be used in the light of eternity.—On Sunday next Rev. Barrow will begin a series of sermons on this subject, the first entitled "For Ever and Ever."

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian the guest speaker for the day was Mr. Norbert Grills, a former resident of Campbellford now teaching school at Buckhorn. Mr. Grills chose as his subject "The Man Who Became." Rev. E. A. Toombs was in charge.

Rev. Dr. M. Smith of St. John's United, chose as the subject for his sermon, "Prayer—Jesus Prayed," part of the admonition being the Holy Spirit is not a spiritual decoration or luxury in the church but is its essential power. It is the powerpackage has brought the church into being, and motivated it through the years. It is the effective instrument of God in the world for the salvation of souls.

At Campbellford Pentecostal Church guest speaker was Rev. C. W. Nelson of Palm Beach, Florida. Rev. Nelson has conducted meetings in the church for the past week and will continue for another week. Choosing as his text for the evening service "Will a Man Rob God?" Mr. Nelson, leaving out the telement of tithing which one would expect to hear elucidated the many spiritual ways in which a man robs God. Rev. C. M. Hornby is resident minister.

At the Campbellford Baptist Church, Rev. C. K. Dolby, pastor of the local church, stated that twenty-one members of Park Street Baptist Church choir of Peterborough, visited the local church on Sunday evening and took charge of the service, directing choral numbers. Mr. Newton Hamilton gave a message on Spiritual Slavery.

Noted Mining Engineer Visits Native Town

CAMPBELLFORD — A native-born Campbellfordian has recently returned to visit relatives and familiar places in the person of R. W. Diamond known to his many friends as "Ralph".

Mr. Diamond was born in Campbellford, in 1891 the son of the late Edward Diamond, one of the municipal officers in the town at that time. He was educated in Campbellford schools and the University of Toronto graduating B.A. Sc. in 1913 as an honor student.

Immediately after graduation he was employed by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company in Anaconda, Montana. He was in charge of flotation research and plant testing from its commencement in 1914 until 1917. At that time flotation was a revolutionary process for the concentration of ores and its introduction into the Anaconda plants resulted in great increases in copper and zinc production during the first world war.

For four months early in 1917 he was mill superintendent for Otto Copper Company of Utah at Lark, Utah.

COMES BACK TO CANADA

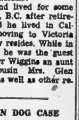
In June 1917 he was called by the Consolided Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd. to take charge of experimental flotation then proposed for the complex lead, zinc, iron sulphide ore of the Sullivan Mine at Kimberley, B.C. Separation of the respective minerals into three products by different flotation was successfully achieved in the laboratory in 1919 and proven in large scale test plant operation in mid 1920 thus making possible the economic treatment of the ore. It was at this time that the rapid expansion of C.M. and S. Company commenced.

Mr. Diamond was superintendent of concentration until 1929. As the years passed he held posts of increasing responsibility and early 1945 was appointed a director and also vice-president and general manager of the company. In 1953 he was appointed executive vice-president, Western Region.

GIVEN MANY DEGREES

Over the years Mr. Diamond has received at least five honor medals in recognition of his work as a mining and metallurgical engineer.

Two honorary degrees also were accorded him, 1946 honorary LL.D. (Queen's University); 1950 honorary D. Sc. (University of British Columbia). Other honors were accorded as president and membership in various associations.



He is an honorary life member of the Royal Canadian Legion and an Officer Brother of the Venerable Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Mr. Diamond lived for some time in Trail, B.C. after retirement in 1956 he lived in Calgary, later moving to Victoria where he now resides. While in Campbellford he was the guest of Mrs. Walter Wiggins an aunt and of a cousin Mrs. Glen Vanduzer as well as other relatives.

JAILED IN DOG CASE

TORONTO (CP) — Robert March, 43, of Toronto was sentenced Tuesday to three months in jail for knocking a dog unconscious March 24. Magistrate T. Bigelow convicted him of cruelty to animals after being told that a seven-week-old pup broke away from three children and ran into March's yard. Witnesses said March swore at the animal and threw it 15 feet into the air.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"The time has come," the gunner said,
"To talk of other things
Than FBI and navy types,
And people wearing wings.
Let's chat of guns, like 30's
And ammo and breech wipers,
And of the heroes who were dubbed
The 'Si-nile snipers'."

The 34th Battery (Active) Association will mark D-Day on June 6th with its first reunion in five years. Secretary Jim "Snipe" Matthews expects a large turnout of former gunners of the famous unit for the two-day get-together.

The date of the reunion will commemorate the 20th year since the battery part of the 14th Field Regiment RCA landed on the bloody shores of Normandy (D-Day) and made a name for itself that has gone down in history. Any member of the regiment will be welcome.

It is five years, I understand, since the gunners of the battery association "got together" to swap yarns, reminisce and do whatever "old soldiers" do when they are wrapped up in one big reunion package.

Upon her head she wore a scarlet ribbon.
She wore it in December and in the month of May.
And when they asked her why she wore it— she wore it
She said 'twas for a gunner in the RCA.

The executive of the association, President Pat Boyle, vice-president J. Browning; secretary-treasurer Matthews and directors Doug Stork, Max Rollins, Dave Kyd, George Johnson, Chuck Bagar and L. Mason, are leaving nothing undone to make the D-Day Reunion the best in the history of the body.

It will mark that cloudy June day 20 years ago when 14,000 Canadians gambled their lives in the largest and most intricate war operation of its kind in history.

"Our spewing guns belched shot and shell.
We blew them up—and from the sky
And when our targets were no more
We helped the stragglers of the FBI."

The highlight of the reunion will be the banquet slated for the ANAF auditorium June 6, at seven o'clock. Major A. S. McConnell, MBE, CD, former Hasty Ones chatalin, will be the guest speaker. Arrangements have been made with the Queen's Hotel for special rates.

There will be special entertainment for the gunners with special arrangements made for their wives, dancing, etc. On Sunday morning the veterans will parade to St. Thomas Anglican Church for a special D-Day service.

The ex-gunners are proud of their unit and their field brigade. It is their claim that the battery is the only complete unit that left the city in two World Wars. They also claim to be the possessors of the cartridge case of the last shell fired in World War Two.

"Ah, there's none so rare as can compare
With the Royal Artilleree."

Secretary Matthews says: "Be sure and let the secretary know of your plans to attend not later than June 3rd. 'Gibb' Allin will be here with his tall tales. 'Swamp' Anderson will be making a nuisance of himself and Joe Bagnall will be here with his 40 bags of mail. They'll all be here so plan to attend. It may be your last. I said that five years ago and it was—for some."

Members and those of other units of the Brigade not notified are asked to contact 34th Battery Association, c/o W. S. Matthews, 17 First Street, Belleville.

Breathes there a "sweat" with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said,
"We never could have won the day Without the guns of the RCA."

Saturday At Indianapolis

33 Will Start In "500"

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis motor speedway technical committee finished inspections Tuesday on the 33 cars that will start Saturday in the 500-mile race and found nobody was cheating.

All the engines—23 Offenhauser fours, seven special Ford V-8s and three supercharged Novi V-8s—were within the size limits.

For the first time at modern racing speeds, a set of tires probably will last longer than a tank of fuel. A set may last the entire race and offer the possibility of the first nonstop performances since Jimmy Jackson and Johnny Mantz in 1946.

The new overhead camshaft Ford engines, using gasoline probably will get about seven miles to the gallon. The other cars, on an alcohol blend, will make a little over 3½ miles to the gallon. Parnelli Jones won last year on alcohol and three pit stops against the gasoline and one pit stop of Scot Jimmy Clark, but it was close.

Petra Sorry Champion Turned Pro

TORONTO (CP) — Petra Burka, 17, of Toronto, Canadian women's figure skating champion and third in the 1964 Winter Olympic competition, said Tuesday she is a bit disappointed that Sjouke Dijkstra has decided to turn professional.

"It would have meant more difficult competition at next year's world championships," the Toronto high school student said.

Miss Burka was commenting on Monday's announcement from Amsterdam that Miss Dijkstra, Dutch holder of the world, Olympic and European figure skating championships, has signed a professional contract with the American Holiday on Ice revue.

Mets Score 19 Runs — In One Game!

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

National League umpires, who are talking about a strike, must have been out painting picket signs.

How else can you explain New York Mets scoring 19 runs in a single game?

There were 2,503 fans in Chicago's Wrigley Field Tuesday who can testify to the 19-1 victory over the Cubs. In years to come that number is sure to grow. People like to say they were on hand when history was made.

Dick Smith became the first Met ever to get five hits in a game with three singles, a double and a triple. Charley Smith belted a three-run homer, the game's only four bagger, and added two singles for five RBI.

12-HIT SUPPORT

Jack Fisher, delighted with the fantastic 22 - hit support, fashioned a four-hitter and went the distance for the first time since May 3, 1963.

Casey Stengel, the Mets' long suffering manager, was delighted.

"Well, I suppose most of the club-owners will be trying to contact me now to get my players," the Ol' Partner told reporters.

While the Mets were wearing out Cub fielders, Pittsburgh Pirates gave Philadelphia Phillies a similar treatment, scoring 10 runs in the first two innings to coast to an 12-4 victory. Houston Colts dropped Milwaukee Braves 4-3 and Cincinnati Reds whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2. San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals were rained out.

FOUR IN FIRST

The Mets jumped on Cub starter Bob Buhl for four runs in the first and completed the carnage with six runs in the third.

Manny Mota had a solo homer and Jim Pagliaroni crashed a grand-slammer as the Pirates hopped on Chris Short and Dallas Green in the first two innings. Cookie Rojas and John Callison homered for the Phils.

Dick Farrell became the first seven-game winner in the majors, throttling the Braves on four hits. Al Spangler's leadoff homer got the Colts started while the Braves had solo homers by Felipe Alou and Joe Torre.

Don Drysdale permitted just three hits but Cincinnati bunched them in the second inning and, combined with Drysdale's throwing error on an attempted pickoff, it led to a 2-0 lead. Frank Howard cracked his 13th homer for the Dodgers.

But More Help Needed

Seniors Getting Results

A program designed to sell at least 100 season's tickets, plus ads in a give-away score card appears to be turning up good results for the Belleville Senior Baseball Club.

The Seniors, who open their Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball League schedule here against Oshawa next Monday, are raising operating costs with the season's tickets, scorecards and other donations.

At a meeting held at Murray "Moe" Hunter's house last night the club workers took stock of the situation to date.

The results were gratifying to say the least.

Hunter has contacted a number of local business men through letters, stating the team's situation and requesting the receiver to help out by buying a pair of season tickets. Some 30 of the letters were mailed late last week and as of last night five replies had been received. Four of letters agreed to purchase the season's tickets and the fifth stated that the firm had already bought a pair of tickets from one of the players.

"If we can sell 100 season's tickets, and it looks now as if we will surpass that total, we should be off to a very good start," said team spokesman Hunter.

A number of ads have been sold for the scorecards, to be passed out at each home game, and the players are working hard to sell the rest of the space and have the cards printed and available for the Monday game here.

Arrangements are also being made for opening ceremonies and a parade to precede the opening game. Convertibles, carrying the players, majorettes and at least one band are expected to take part in the parade.

The club also hopes to have the new uniforms, donated by Gerry Joyce, in time for the loop kickoff.

The team named its officers, headed by Gordie Ball, president, earlier yesterday. It had hoped to officially name a manager and coach after last night's meeting but no announcement along these lines has been made yet.

While a full league schedule is yet to be drafted, games arranged to date are as follows: Friday, May 29, Ajax vs Canniffon (at Belleville), 8.15; Monday, June 1, Oshawa at Belleville, 8.15; Friday, June 5, Belleville vs Oshawa (at Little Britain), 8.30; Saturday, June 6, Little Britain at Ajax, 3.00; Sunday, June 7, Canniffon at Ajax, 2.00, and Tuesday, June 9, Little Britain vs Oshawa (at Little Britain), 8.30 p.m.

Arrangements are being completed to draw up the remainder of the schedule at a league meeting in the Belleville Recreation Centre, on Monday, June 8.

Celebrates Third Birthday

'Dancer' Nibbles Carrot Cake

NEW YORK (AP) — Northern Dancer celebrated his third birthday today with a brilliant past behind him and an even brighter future in the offing.

There was a birthday cake that looked very much like carrots for the little package of equine dynamite from Canada in Belmont Park's stable area. And trainer Horatio Luro gave the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner the day off from preparing for the June 6 running of the Belmont Stakes, when he will seek to become the first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948.

All horses automatically advance a year in age on Jan. 1. But the Canadian - born and owned son of Nercic-Natalma wasn't foaled until May 27, 1961 —late by United States customs.

TAKING IT EASY

The dazzling Dancer hasn't done much since winning the Preakness 10 days ago. Luro had him out on the track Tuesday with exercise boy Ramon Cerda in the saddle. The colt breezed a mile in 1:41 and went over the 1¼ miles in 1:51 3-5.

"This is a relaxation period," said Luro as he watched the Dancer quietly munch the green grass outside his stall. "Next week, however, things will be a little different."

Never did a horse look more relaxed than Northern Dancer.

Luro said he didn't plan to work the pride of E. P. Taylor's Windfield Farm over the Aqueduct track, where the Belmont Stakes will be raced at 1½ miles.

"He showed me last year he likes the Aqueduct track," said the genial Argentine. "So we will stay here at Belmont until time for the race."

GAME PROCEDURE

Northern Dancer is following the same procedure he did before becoming the youngest horse ever to win the Derby and Preakness. Long gallops, plenty of oats and hay and time to relax between workouts has been the order of the day.

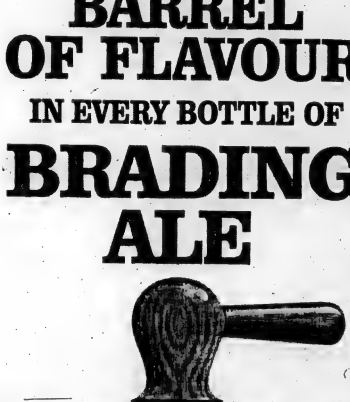
His menu is the same each day—three quarts of oats early in the morning, three more at noon and six at night except on race day when the ration is cut to one quart and plenty of hay. Carrots and a little sweetening in his feed are the delicacies.

Northern Dancer goes into the Belmont Stakes with a record of 13 victories (one in a betiess race) two seconds and one third in 16 career starts and earnings of $318,072. He has won seven straight since finishing third in his 3-year-old debut.

Rain Washes Out Games

Rain cancelled most of the activity on the local sports scene last night, washing out a number of ball games.

Two Commercial Softball League games were postponed. The Black Diamond Cheese vs Barrage Landscapers game has been re-scheduled for Sunday, at Prince Charles' School, at 6:45. No date has been announced for the Point Anne at Belvedere Hotel encounter.



In B. and D. play, Ellis Juniors and Trudeau Motors were rained out but will play the game on Saturday evening, 6:45, at the CNRA Park. Tweed is scheduled to play in Trenton tonight at 8.15. The loop has called a short meeting for the CNRA next Tuesday night, at 8:15 following a game there, to settle playoff plans.

In the Belleville Minor Baseball Association's Peewee division, Fountain Park Drive-In vs the Jaycees was postponed and re-scheduled for Friday night. Game time will be 6:15 at Park Dale.

PATTERSON DETERMINED

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, said Tuesday he will retire from the ring if he is badly beaten by Eddie Machen in their fight in Stockholm, Sweden, on July 8. The fighter made the announcement at Kennedy International Airport before boarding a plane for Stockholm.

Natl. Umpires Threaten Strike

Issue Ultimatum

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Baseball League Umpires Association, having failed to negotiate a pension plan increase, has issued a strike ultimatum.

Either the National League meets the association's demands or "appropriate action" will be taken by 3 p.m., July 3, said lawyer John J. Reynolds of Chicago, who represents the group, on Tuesday.

The move hit Warren Giles, president of the National League, and Ford Frick, the game's commissioner, by surprise.

However, Reynolds said, the umpires' association has been angling for increased pension benefits for the last six months without receiving league courtesy.

Eighteen of the league's 20 umpires met with Reynolds in Chicago and drafted a letter demanding increased benefits. Copies of the letter were sent to Giles and every team in the league.

Currently, the pension plan for umpires retiring at 55 calls for $200 a year for each year of service. The association, however wants this figure raised to $300. Recent dickering resulted in an offer of $250 by Giles which the umpires turned down.

"We made repeated requests for an opportunity to discuss our demands but we heard nothing from the league," said Reynolds. "Two weeks ago we received a letter from Mr. Giles in which he presented his proposal of $250 a year per man.

"We held our meeting and the umpires voted against acceptance."

'Golf Was Superb'

'Ike' Steals Show From Palmer

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The crowd at Merion Golf Club was approaching a five. Comments included, "Gee, I hope he plays well," to, "I hope he doesn't embarrass himself."

The "hee" was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the former president not only didn't embarrass himself, but stole the show from his partner, Masters champion Arnold Palmer.

Eisenhower and Palmer teamed in a match Tuesday for the benefit of the Heart Fund against veteran pro Jimmy Demaret and dancer Ray Bolger. The Heart Fund reported it took in $25,000.

On the course made famous by Bobby Jones, when he completed his golf grand slam here in 1930 winning the British and American Open and amateur tournaments, General Ike played the kind of golf that prompted Palmer to comment:

"I must admit, he carried me all the way. His golf was superb."

This was Ike's first public golf exhibition, and he did himself proud as he and Palmer defeated Demaret and Bolger 3 and 2 over the par 36-34 course in suburban Philadelphia.

Actually, the match was over from a competitive standpoint at the end of the 16th, but at Ike's insistence, the foursome finished the round.

And on the 17th hole Ike brought the house down. Putting from the edge of the green he dropped in a 50-footer.

Angel McBride Drops 8 Straight

Birdlet Bunker Wins Fifth Game In Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

He posted his fifth victory, the highest total on the club, Tuesday night as he set down Detroit Tigers 2-1, relieving the first 13 men to face him and allowing only three hits before a pinch-hitter replaced him in the seventh when Orioles scored the winning run.

Bunker's professional experience before this season consisted of 14 games with Stockton in the Class A California League in 1963, where he posted a 10-1 record, and an 0-1 record with the Orioles after reaching the majors at the end of the season.

This year Bunker has allowed only 22 hits and eight earned runs in 41 innings for an eye-opening 1.76 ERA.

While Bunker was winning his fifth straight, Ken McBride of Los Angeles Angels continued to add to his total on the debit side. McBride allowed only three hits in eight innings but lost to Minnesota Twins 2-1 for his eighth defeat since an opening game triumph.

SINGLES WIN GAMES

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox edged Washington Senators 3-2 on Rico Brezaud's run-producing single in the ninth and New York Yankees defeated Cleveland Indians 3-2 on Bobby Richardson's ninth-inning single. Chicago White Sox were rained out at Kansas City.

The Orioles broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh on singles by Jerry Adair, Dick Brown and Bob Johnson, who pinch hit for Bunker. Stu Miller protected the edge, pitching no-hit ball over the last three innings.

McBride lost a 1-0 lead in the fourth when he hit Rich Rollins with a pitch and an error and a walk filled the bases. Don Mincher's sacrifice fly got the run home. The Twins moved ahead to stay in the seventh when Mincher singled on an infield hit by winning pitcher Jim Kaat.

Joe King hit for the cycle for the Senators, smacking a single, double, triple and homer. The homer tied the score 2-2 in the sixth. The Red Sox won it in the ninth when winning pitcher Earl Wilson led off with a walk and eventually scored on a single by Eddie Brinkwood.

Richardson, who earlier had belted a pair of two-out triples but was stranded, drove across the tie-breaker for the Yankees following singles by Elston Howard and Phil Linz. Roger Maris homered for the Yankees.

Three-Run Homer Wins For Leafs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Relief pitcher Ed Bauta, making his debut for Buffalo Bisons, served up a fat pitch to the first man he faced Tuesday night and that was the ball game.

Bobby Del Greco hammered it into the seats for a three-run homer and Toronto Maple Leafs, who had looked like anything but international League leaders most of the evening, came away with a 5-3 victory. Jacksonville Suns became the third team in as many nights to occupy second place, two games behind the Leafs, when they edged Richmond Virginians 2-1, displacing Syracuse Chiefs whose game against Rochester Red Wings was halted by rain in the eighth inning with the score tied 7-7.

Atlanta Crackers nipped Columbus Jets 4-3 in the other game played.

HAVE THREE HITS

The Leafs were held to three hits by Al Pehanick over the first 8 1-3 innings when Bauta came on after the Buffalo starter had walked two men with one out and the Bisons leading 3-2. Del Greco's blast was followed by an infield single and another walk and the New York Mets farmhand refired without getting a man out.

Starting pitcher Ken Nixon also homered for Toronto but retired in the seventh inning after giving up 10 hits. Reliever Chi Chi Olivo picked up his fifth victory without a loss.

BOWLERS PICK CHIEF

TORONTO (CP) — Milton Webber of Toronto has been named the first president of the newly-formed Canadian Tenpin Federation, the first national organization for Canadian tenpin bowlers. Representatives of provincial tenpin associations created the CTF to make Canada eligible for world tournaments organized by the Federation Internationale des Quilleurs which comprises 30 member countries.

Stampeders Lose Lunsford

CALGARY (CP) — The men they called "The Earthquake," fullback Earl Lunsford has announced his retirement from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

Lunsford, 30, biggest groundgainer in the history of western professional football, said Monday in a letter to Stampeder general manager Jim Finks he would finish work on his masters degree in geology at Oklahoma State University with hopes of coaching in the future.

Lunsford, from Oklahoma, joined the club in 1958, spent two years in the United States armed services and returned to lead the Western League in rushing in 1960, 1960 and 1961.

He had his biggest season in 1961 when he carried the ball 286 times for 1,797 yards—an average of six yards a carry and a record football experts speculate could stand for years.

Gal Golfers Face Test On Friday

TORONTO (CP) — The opening test of a seven-match series to decide the four-girl Ontario team for the women's senior interprovincial golf matches at Calgary July 30-Aug. 1 gets under way Friday.

Marlene Stewart Streit, Canadian open and close champion last year, who will head the more than 30 female golfers with handicaps of eight and under, is the only automatic selection for the team.

The other players who receive the most points for their highest six tests will round out the team.

Sue Hilton of London, Ont., the 1963 match play champion, will receive a 12-point head start in the point ratings for the competition.

The other six test dates are slated for Ancaster, June 10; Richmond Hill, June 18; Toronto, June 19; Kingston, July 2; Toronto, July 6, and the qualifying round at London, July 13.

SHRINE GAME IN WEST

CALGARY (CP) — The fourth annual Shrine Canadian junior football final will be held in Calgary Nov. 11 for the second successive year, the Al Azhar Temple announced. The championship, won for the last two seasons by Edmonton Huskies, was introduced in Calgary in 1961 and played in Hamilton in 1962.

Scottish Clubs Foil Rangers

EDINBURGH (AP) — Five Scottish soccer clubs Tuesday won a court order blocking a move by Glasgow Rangers to oust them from the Scottish League.

Rangers have sponsored a move to reconstruct the league and reduce it in size. It was scheduled to be discussed at the annual meeting of the league Thursday.

Under Rangers's plan five clubs were to be thrown out—Berwick Rangers, Brechin City, Alloa Rovers, Stranraer and Stenhousemuir.

The Scottish League consists of 37 teams—16 in the first division and 19 in the second division. Rangers want two divisions of 16 teams each.

THREATENS DRUG USE

TORONTO (CP) — The thalidomide tragedy has generated an atmosphere which threatens to prevent future live-saving drugs from reaching the market, Stanley N. Conder, general manager of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association said Tuesday baby deformities linked to thalidomide two years ago caused drug research to be viewed with fear and suspicion and this fear threatened to provoke legislation that would impede medical discovery in the drug field.

Pitching—Dick Farrell, Colts, became majors' first seven-game winner, allowing only four hits and striking out 11 in Houston's 4-2 victory over Milwaukee Braves.

Hartack Defends Disposition

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—"They say I've got a chip on my shoulder," the little guy said defiantly. "They are right.

"They say I am hard to get along with. They are partly right.

"They say I insult people. They are dead wrong."

Bill Hartack sat on the edge of his long black couch, his dark, good-looking features petulant, his small black eyes looking the listener straight in the eye.

"They say I'm unco-operative, sarcastic, and arrogant," continued the nation's boldest and most controversial jockey in the horse racing business. "They and I'm talking about the writers, at least a lot of 'em—think it's good writing to criticize.

"I don't mind professional criticism, such as when a guy writes, "Hartack rode a lousy race." But I do mind personal criticism, particularly when it's a lie, like the one about me insulting people.

"It is just this kind of unjust criticism I have been fighting and will continue to fight as long as I'm in the business. It is this kind of unfair reporting that puts the chip on my shoulder and makes me hard to get along with."

Hartack makes these statements about himself with the same intensity, the same conviction, the same self-assurance that he takes to the starting gate. He talks rapidly, unsmilingly. He knows exactly what he wants to say and does not intend to be swayed from saying it.

"A lot of writers have tried to push me into the dirt because I don't turn the other cheek," he said. "But no matter what they write about me, nobody can question my honesty or doubt my loyalty to the people I work for.

ALWAYS GIVES BEST

"I do everything I can to be honest and I try to win every race. No owner or trainer can honestly say I didn't give him my best effort or try to get the most out of the horse they gave me."

No jockey has a more insatiable appetite for bringing home winners. So encrossed does this 113-pound bundle of energy become in his work that he occasionally becomes short-tempered with people who approach him before a race, or even after it. He has been known to go into black fits of melancholy when he loses.

Even his severest critics have to admit he is just about the best there is today in the art of horsercing.

At 31, and in his 12th year of riding, the son of a Pennsylvania coal miner has driven home more than 3,300 winners. Only ageless Johnny Longden and Willie Shoemaker, among the active jockeys, have more winners.

Having won both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness aboard Canadian-bred Northern Dancer this year, Hartack goes after the third jewel of the Triple Crown in the Belmont Stakes June 6.

No horse or rider has swept the three since Citation and Eddie Arcaro in 1948. Only seven others have since 1875.

GAMBLING BILL PASSED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday passed and sent to the White House a bill making it a federal crime to fix a sporting event or influence by score by shaving points. The penalty could be a $10,000 fine or a five-year prison term or both.

County Council Will Meet One Day a Month

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Council will meet one day a month, instead of five times a year, it was unanimously agreed at a special meeting held Wednesday night.

The new arrangement will be on an experimental basis only, for a few months.

The first regular meeting under the new system is scheduled for June 15.

The press was not invited to this meeting, so report of discussion is not available.

However, the feeling was general that more frequent meetings would keep council members in closer touch with the great volume of business, much of which is handled by committees. Meeting more frequently, the committees could present their reports and recommendations and have them passed by council, which is actually the legal procedure.

During three-month intervals, many matters come up and must be dealt with, by the committees, and the entire council find it difficult to keep abreast of all that is happening.

A case in point was the Road Committee accepting a $330,-847.00 tender for the Northport development road — a matter that, most feel, should be the responsibility of entire council. Too, no standing committee can legally pass accounts for payment.

More frequent meetings, it was pointed out, will make it easier for councillors to find time to attend. The three to five day sessions deter many from serving on County Council.

Only other business at the meeting was the formal signing of an agreement with the Ontario Department of Highways to construct the new development road in Sophiasburg. This is 4.8 miles of new road from Demorestville to Northport, the low tender, $330,847.90 being submitted by the McFarland Construction Co.

Canadian Guards Show Press How to Quell a "Riot"

PICTON (Staff) — It was "Press Day" at Camp Picton on Tuesday, when members of the press, radio and television were guests of Lieut.-Col. William Mulherin, Commanding Officer of the Camp.

The guests were treated to watching the First Battalion Canadian Guards intensifying their training routines. They are stand by unit number one now, and as such are at the instant alert for duty anywhere in the world.

After watching various companies go through routine maneuvers, the guests were completely convinced that the battalion is ready to go into action anywhere, anytime.

The highlight of the day came when one company was dispatched to quell a "riot". The "riot" was being staged by some 40 members of the Guards, dressed in civies. The "rioters" were clustered on one of the streets of the camp, shouting "Viva La Castro — Viva La Red Ensign," and anything else they could think of.

Four members of the guards, in battle dress and with their automatic rifles at the ready, attempted to hold back the "rioters". They were soon backed up by an entire company of Guards, who with bayonets (in scabbards) fixed and complete with gas masks in place, stormed and scattered the "rioters" but not before the troops were liberally splashed by water, and water soaked toilet tissue.

The "rioters" then fled to an abandoned building where two of their ringleaders went into hiding, from where they could direct the attack.

ROUNDED UP

The "rioters" were finally rounded up, the leaders put under arrest and the "rioters" went at the task of cleaning up the mess they had made.

To a casual observer, it might have appeared that this was a game, and indeed it was, but to the men who were dressed in battle dress, armed to the teeth, it was a deadly serious game. They were receiving training — training that could very well save not only their own lives but those of thousands of innocent people anywhere in the world.

Col. Mulherin kept everything under close security and while he was pleased at the results, he will have a talk with all those participating, at which time he will point out the mistakes they made in the entire exercise.

Actually the Company Commander will pin point the men's errors (on both sides) and the Colonel will take over and pin point the mistakes that he could notice from a distance.

All in all, it was a wonderful exercise to watch and Col. Mulherin is to be congratulated for putting on such a fine display of his men in action.

'Sugar Daddy' Role of Govt. Going to End

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has decided to quit its role as a sort of 'sugar daddy' to about 200 girls in the capital, it appears.

It has told them to pack their bags and move out of Laurentian Terrace Hostel by Oct. 1. The place is being closed.

The hostel has lost money for the last five years, and the taxpayers have been footing the deficit. The last loss was $67,000 and one of $80,000 is forecast this year.

Most of the girls, under 25, are junior civil servants, nurses, university students, or embassy employees.

The hostel was opened in 1942 when there was a wartime shortage of accommodation for a rapidly - growing civil service. Since then more than 10,000 girls have stayed there.

In 1963 the Glassco royal commission on government organization said the hostel should be closed.

Since 1958 the girls have been paying $52.50 for a single room and $35.50 for a double. Both rates include meals.

But if they find it cheap, the girls didn't exactly rush in. Vacancies have been increasing since last fall. Last Jan. 1 house-guest count showed only 20% out of a possible 368 tenants.

Will Study Nursing Education

TORONTO (CP)—The feasibility of carrying out future nursing education on a regional basis must be investigated, Helen Mussallem of Toronto, president of the council of the Canadian College of Nurses, said Tuesday.

Commenting on a meeting held by the college Monday to discuss the future of nursing education in Ontario, Miss McArthur said: "At the meeting we decided the best ways satisfactory nursing care for Ontario's citizens may be conserved."

At present, she said, there are 59 hospital schools of nursing in Ontario. The other 300 hospitals in the province for the most part are involved in schedules of nursing students.

"We wonder whether these educational activities can be more closely co-ordinated in the interest of even better nursing care," Miss McArthur said.

Spectacular Action, Battles Spark "Goliath & Vampires," New Colorscope Thriller

One of motion picture fiction's strangest man matches his muscles against a terrifying mad-man monster for the film battle of the century in America—International's, "Goliath and the Vampires."

The wide screen Colorscope adventure thriller, opening Thursday at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showings, stars Gordon Scott in the title role as Goliath, Giana Maria Canale and Jacques Sernas.

Among the many spectacular action scenes, "Goliath and the Vampires" are the spine-tingling revolt of the faceless humanoids, the holocaust of in cave of fire, scenes in the torture chamber of the blue men, the battle of the lost island of the vampires and the kidnapping from the virgin harem of the vampire god.

Add to this mighty feats of powerful Goliath as he battles against fearful odds to defeat the magical powers of the Vampires, rescue a terrified and tortured people, it all adds up to make "Goliath and the Vampires" one of the most exciting motion picture adventure thrillers of all time.

SECOND FEATURE

"Airborne" Filmed on Location at Fort Bragg

The Second Production, "Airborne", topcasting Bobby Diamond, Carolyn Byrd and Robert Conrad, was filmed almost at Fort Christian, North Carolina, home of the 82nd Airborne Division. This action drama begins Thursday at the Park Theatre as the second first run attraction.

Starkly believeable, "Airborne" has an intrinsic authenticity in deep research and to the filming of the story on the actual parachute and, no less important, to the gratuitous assistance and cooperation of the officers and men of the 82nd Airborne Division. A motion picture of action, humor and pathos, "Airborne" is a searching portrayal of the characters, trials and tribulations of the young recruit during his transformation into that tough, efficient fighter, the American Paratrooper.

Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.50 p.m.

Doris Day Exposes Comedy Formula in Latest Film 'Move Over Darling'

Doris Day moved over to the 20th Century-Fox studios for a starring role in the Cinemascope, De Luxe color romantic comedy, "Move Over Darling", which opens today at the Belle Theatre, for an extended engagement.

Though it marks her first association with Fox, Doris did not abandon the formula which has made her a box office success throughout the world.

As a matter of fact, when the international showmen participating in the annual Laurel - Aycrod poll named Doris Day Number One star at the box office for 1963, it marked the seventh consecutive year she had won the honor — an unparalleled feat approached only by Walt Disney, who won the honor five consecutive years.

With "Move Over Darling," Doris continues to tickle the world's funnybone as the top comedienne in the business. She is teamed for the second time with James Garner who co-starred with her in the highly successful, "The Thrill of it All".

This time it's a marital mixup in which Doris plays the wife number one who is declared legally dead after she has been missing for five years following a plane crash in the Pacific. But she reappears just as husband Garner has wed Polly Bergen and is off on his second honeymoon.

Doris' real life husband, Martin Melcher, was co-producer with Aaron Rosenberg on "Move Over, Darling". Doris and Marty proved to be one of the most successful "teams" in show business. Their string of high comedies such as "Pillow Talk", "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," "Lover Come Back," "That Touch of Mink," and "The Thrill of It All" have set records — merrimeent and moneymakers.

PLAN NEW STAMPS

OTTAWA (CP) — Two five-cent postage stamps depicting the floral emblems of Ontario and Quebec are to be issued June 30, the post office department announced Tuesday. The new stamps are the first of a series showing the floral emblems of each of the provinces. The Ontario stamp, horizontal in format, is printed in green, brown and orange. It features the white trillium.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — In one of the screen's most memorable romantic pairings, George Stevens teamed two of today's greatest young stars, Rock Hudson and Elizabeth Taylor, in his epic production of "Giant." The Warner Bros. re-release, filmed in WarnerColor, opens tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Based on the Edna Ferber best-seller "Giant" introduced Carroll Baker and also starred James Dean, Jane Withers, Chill Wills, Mercedes McCambridge and Sal Mineo.

Move Being Made to Reduce Long Waits Between Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Association of Broadcasters has made the first, tentative step toward reducing — or at least controlling—those long boring minutes between programs.

This period—sometimes 10 or 11 minutes—usually is crammed with profitable bits and pieces that the industry calls "clutter."

Our hero rides into the sunset several minutes before the official end of the show. Then we are treated to a fight scene designed to lure us to next week's episode, followed by a listing of the cast, producer, director, associate producer, assistant director, cameraman, assistant cameraman, art director, makeup man and hair stylist.

Then comes the final commercial for the sponsor of the just completed program, immediately followed by two or three station-break quickie sales pitches and the inevitable station identification. Now we get a "teaser" scene from the next show designed to keep us from switching the dial.

VIEWERS GRUMBLE

Viewers have grumbled about the clutter for years, but nothing much happened until some of the advertising agencies which buy television time started to complain that clutter waters down the effectiveness of commercials.

The N.A.B.'s television code review board decided on some action, and it appears that the board is thinking along the lines viewers more program time by putting those listings for "technical and physical services" as part of the time reserved for commercials.

It may be that before long we will be completely in the dark as to the name of our hero's tailor or the airline which provided transportation for game show contestants.

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—Fifteen new cases of typhoid were confirmed Tuesday, bringing the total in this city's epidemic to 74. In addition eight new suspected cases were reported.

OTTAWA (CP)—Ian Thomas, a 13-year-old pupil of Central Public School in Dundas, Ont., has been named winner of the fourth annual forest fire prevention poster contest.

Pert Jane Powell to Star In Musical 'My Fair Lady'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the summer of My Fair Lady, but one of the liveliest Eliza Doolittles will be part Jane Powell.

The Lerner - Loewe musical has been released for stock this year—and a large number of summer theatres will be offering the play to cash in on its immense popularity — and to beat the movie version, due in October.

Come August, Jane Powell will make her debut as Eliza and also inaugurate California's latest musical theatre - in - the round, a trend started by last summer's startling success of Melodyland.

Concerts Incorporated is putting on a season of musicals at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium; the Melodyland people are building a theatre in San Carlos, south of San Francisco; and the San Fernando Valley will have the Valley Music Theatre. Jane will play Eliza in the latter two.

Trouble is, Jane divorced Jane has three children to care for, and they grow restive when she's gone. So she tries to arrange engagements close to home or in places where the kids can go along.

The harvest for a week's trilling on the four-sided stage can be anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000. Jane holds the gross record at Melodyland and perhaps in summer musicals anywhere: $87,000 a week in The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

Musical theatres are not without hazards.

"The major problem is always the sound," Jane remarked. "Even when the greatest care has gone into a sound system, something can go wrong. And when the system is good, you still get complaints. People don't seem to listen with their ears any more. There is, so much loudness in our civilization nowadays that it's hard to hear anyone bear without shouting."

Queen's Asks United Church For Assistance

KINGSTON (CP) — The principal of Queen's Theological College, K. J. Hilton, Tuesday asked the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada for financial aid for his school.

Rev. Elias Andrews, presiding over the conference's absence of Rev. Albert E. Larke of Oshawa, who is ill, said:

"The money would enable us to appointing an extra professor and maintain our endowment fund against encroaching pressure of inflation.

The matter of financial support was referred to a committee on special appeals. They will bring back a report to dele-gates attending the five-day conference.

Want Federal Committee to Study Abortions

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Lee Ann Clark, 32, of Toronto has recommended the establishment of a federal government committee to study abortions.

Mrs. Clark's death occurred in a Toronto hospital April 29 as the result of an abortion.

The jury, under Coroner Dr. Morton Shulman, also recommended that laws pertaining to therapeutic abortions be revised to protect doctors further.

Dr. Shulman said that although the death rate by criminal abortion has decreased, the main problem is that the law is commonly broken, encouraging disrespect for the law.

Crown Attorney Peter Rickaby said if his department knows of abortions performed in hospitals, including therapeutic abortions, no charges are placed. The difficulty of gathering evidence in hospitals made it almost impossible to prosecute in such cases. This did not apply to abortions performed in doctor's private offices.

Taking Birth Control Pills Cause of Deaths

TORONTO (CP) — "I am convinced 12 women have died from taking birth control pills." Dr. Herbert Ratner, public health director at Oak Park, Ill., said in an interview Monday.

He said the United States government, after investigating the deaths of 12 women last year and failing to find what killed them, conceded that they may have died from the effects of birth control pills.

He urged the U.S. and Canadian governments to withdraw the pills from the market immediately.

He warned that women are foolish to take the pills when there were "other safe and proven methods of birth control."

Dr. Ratner, a convert to Roman Catholicism, was in St. Catharines Sunday to address a Roman Catholic conference on social life.

GOING UP — Volunteer carpenters are seen setting rafters for new building at Quinte Area Girl Guide camping grounds at Waupoos. Pre-fabricated building was donated by Rollins Lumber of Belleville.

Donations, Volunteer Work Give Guides New Building

Girl Guides in the Bay of Quinte area are going to have a new camp building at their district camp ground at Waupoos in Prince Edward county.

Thanks to the volunteer labor of a number of local Guide enthusiasts and a sizable donation on the part of a Belleville lumber dealer, the new 30 by 30 foot camp building became a reality over the past weekend.

The pre-fabricated structure was donated by Maurice Rollins Lumber in Belleville which also supplied two workers to supervise construction.

Ground work for the provision of the much needed camp structure has been underway for the past year under the direction of Gerry Brennan of Belleville.

REAL WORKERS

Saturday husband and wife teams of Mr. and Mrs. Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. Syd Sharman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ritchie all of Belleville, along with John Stewart, R. E. Wood and C. Neill also of this city, turned up at the Waupoos camping grounds with their hammers and under the direction of Ron Murray and Tom Durham from Rollins Lumber, commenced erection.

By Saturday noon the footings and floor were in and in the afternoon the walls, rafters and sheathing was completed.

Sunday the workers returned to shingle the structure and apply paint primer. Hopes are to have the structure completely finished in another two weeks.

The building will be used for Girl Guide area camp activities and also for winterend storage.

WILL BE MUSEUM

OTTAWA (CP) — The summer home of former prime minister Mackenzie King, located 15 miles north of Ottawa in the Gatineau Hills, is to become a museum and tea room. The Gatineau Historical Society said the former Liberal leader's bedroom is to be restored and a room in the home devoted to display of furniture and utensils used by the first families to settle in the area.

Stiff Political Breezes Catch Proposed Flag

No One Is Surprised When Design Revealed

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Wednesday unfurled its proposed flag for Canada and it was immediately caught in a series of stiff political breezes that indicated the new flag will be fluttering in the Commons for some time before it earns parliamentary approval for national use.

Members of Parliament today are reviewing their offensive and defensive positions for its parliamentary fencing that is expected to precede any flag-raising ceremonies.

The design of three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue bar at each side surprised no one when it was revealed Wednesday. Such a design had been freely predicted since the cabinet decision a week ago.

But the form of the resolution, with its unexpected twist, caused considerable stir to wonder about about their voting positions.

When it clearly established that the new maple leaf design would become the official flag of Canada, the resolution also provides that the Union Jack "may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth of Nations and of our allegiance to the Crown."

This twist has given new problems to Red Ensign supporters who had planned to build their case around charges that the government was ready to tear down the ensign and Union Jack in favor of the white flag of maple leaves.

But government sources hope that the wording of the resolution will make it easier for some flag supporters to vote on the issue without suggesting to constituents that the nation is anti-British. However, it was suggested that those who favored the flag change had a streak from foreign influence found themselves supporting the flying of the Union Jack.

Several opponents of the maple leaf design said privately they were concerned that their stand on the flag could be misinterpreted back in their home ridings. A vote against it might be taken as a vote against the Union Jack.

It wasn't clear just how the unexpected resolution would

Pearson Attacked On Flag

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker stood behind a school hall rostrum draped with a Canadian Red Ensign Wednesday night and charged that Prime Minister Pearson's proposed new flag will divide the nation.

"Flags cannot be imposed on the Canadian people by the simple, capricious, personal choice of the prime minister of Canada," he told a Conservative women's group in suburban Merivale.

Without mentioning the New Democratic Party by name, he in effect accused the prime minister of relying on NDP support to get his favored flag design accepted by Parliament, and avoid holding a national referendum.

"He (Mr. Pearson) has acted the part of a paramount potentate," he believes that with the authority of this support that he has to the left, he can push down the throats of Canadians his ideas, his concepts, his desires and his wishes."

Mr. Diefenbaker, in his first major comment since the proposed flag's design of three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue bar at each side was unveiled earlier to parliament, called Mr. Pearson's attitude arbitrary and arrogant.

RIGHTS DENIED

"I've never known a prime minister in my years of experience to say to the Canadian people, 'You will not have the right to give consideration to this matter, I will not allow you. I have the support of Parliament, with these people who sit supporting me to the left.'"

"He (Mr. Pearson's) personal choice will divide the nation." Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"Surely, something can be done to bring to his knowledge and to him supporters that the fact what is being done in this way is disruptive and perilous."

Because of these things, he said, the Conservative party had a tremendous appointment with destiny.

"We are going to carry this message across Canada as Macdonald carried it, as Borden carried it, the message of 1957 and the message to Canadians to make them proud of the fact they are Canadians."

The Conservative leader said that in the next few days he will place before the Commons and the country his party's full views on the flag.

"We're not going to let Mr. Pearson get away with what he shall do, the people, not Parliament, but the people. We are going to be heard before Parliament in the clearest and most democratic way possible our views." SEES NO CLOSURE

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had heard that two weeks would be the limit for debate on the flag but he added the Liberals would not dare bring in closure as in the pipeline pressure case.

"They learned then what the people of Canada thought of that arbitrary conduct."

The Opposition Leader said Mr. Pearson has paraded in the garments of nationalism, but in 13 months of power he has succeeded in putting race against race, province against province.

Convict Fails In Attempt

QUEBEC (XP) — Sex-murderer Leopold Dion failed in a bid to escape Quebec prison Wednesday using Prince Governor Eugene Letourneau as a shield.

Dion, awaiting the death penalty for strangling four young boys last spring, was clubbed into submission by the revolver butts of two city policemen less than 100 yards outside the prison gates.

Mr. Letourneau was stabbed three times in the abdomen with a weapon resembling a letter opener. He spent three hours in a hospital emergency ward before authorities pronounced him out of danger.

The worst wound was two inches below the heart. He was also stabbed in the back, a hip, a shoulder, an armpit, an arm and a hand.

Guy Bertrand, Dion's lawyer, expressed regret. Mr. Letourneau was "very good to me, very paternal" towards Dion, he said. However, he added that Dion should have been in a mental hospital, not a prison. He is appealing Dion's death sentence.

The governor's wife and 16-year-old daughter Ginette witnessed the drama from their apartment balcony overlooking the prison yard as he was dragged from his office.

A trail of blood marked the path of escape and hostage out of the prison gates on the historic Plains of Abraham.

It led across the grass to the foot of a monument marking the spot where General James Wolfe died in the Battle of Quebec 206 years ago.

GRANTS INTERVIEW

It began when Governor Letourneau granted Dion a private interview in his office, a practice described as "fairly common" at the prison.

The governor already had been stabbed at least once when Dion grabbed him from behind using him as a shield. Guards held their fire as Dion made his way through the gates and across the grass.

Dion was pulled down near the monument by Corporals Guy Trudel and Ghislain Gignac who saw the escape while patrolling in their cars.

They fired three warning shots over Dion's head, then pumped him. Dion was treated at the prison for four stab wounds.

Police went to hospital with the 64-year-old governor, a former Olympic rowing president of the Canadian Boxing Federation.

The burly Dion, who has spent 22 of his 41 years in prison for a number of sexual crimes, was to be taken to provincial police headquarters and then was brought back to the prison.

CALLED 'MONSTER'

At the trial here last December when a jury convicted of strangling 13 - year - old Pierre Marquis, Dion was described by psychiatrist Dr. Jean Lussier as "a sexual monster with a human face."

He was sentenced to be hanged after he admitted in court that he murdered young Marquis and three other boys between the ages from eight to 12.

Charles Edouard Cantin, deputy attorney-general, said Dion was being held in a prison block with six other hardened criminals.

Two Persons Die In Rush To View Body Of Nehru

Night Watch Is Kept By 250,000 in Garden

By PETER JACKSON

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The body of Jawaharlal Nehru was burned today on a funeral pyre on the banks of the sacred river Jumna. A great cry from the huge crowds went up to signify the loss of their leader.

The 76-year-old prime minister's grandson, Sanjay Gandhi, thrust a torch into the sandalwood pyre and the body of the man who led India from its independence in 1947 was engulfed in flames.

Panditji—as he was known by his 470,000,000 countrymen—died Wednesday of a heart attack. Crowds kept at the cortege passed through the great iron gates of his house. Only two hours earlier, two persons were killed in a stampede to catch a last glimpse of his body.

An hour before the funeral procession was due to start, Nehru's house and the capital were shaken by a slight earthquake lasting a few seconds.

WORLD LEADERS JOIN

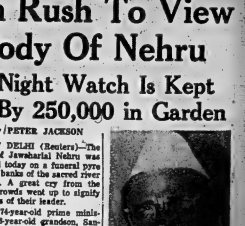
Among the mourners was the man who had led them for 17 years of Indian independence, they were joined by a huge procession by world dignitaries including British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, West Mountbatten, a longtime friend of Nehru's who was the Queen's representative, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Soviet Vice-Premier Alexei Kosygin.

On a date yet to be set, Nehru's ashes will be consigned to the Ganges—the holy river of the Hindus—at a sacred spot at Allahabad, which was the late prime minister's favorite retreat and home.

Before the funeral an estimated 300,000 persons filled by the body while thousands still stood in long lines waiting their turn.

As they approached, many shouted "Amar rahen" (May Nehru remain immortal).

Home Minister Gulzarilal Nanda was sworn in as caretaker prime minister Wednesday soon after Nehru's death.



An official spokesman said this was an "interim arrangement."

COMMITTEE TO MEET

A committee of the ruling Congress Party will meet Friday to decide on Nehru's successor, party sources said.

The sources said the decision would be based on the party's parliamentary group which would formally elect the new

IODE Grant By Toronto Cut $1,000

FREDERICTON (CP)—News that Metropolitan Toronto has reduced its annual grant to the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire caused discussion Wednesday following the IODE's annual meeting.

National President Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto said she understood the reduction was because of the IODE's support for the Red Ensign as Canada's flag. She said she was "amazed."

However, Mrs. H. S. MacMillan, regent of the municipal IODE chapter of Toronto, said she would be "very surprised if the city council . . . would use our stand on the flag as a reason to reduce our grant."

(The special grants committee of Metro Tuesday refused the grant to $2,500 from $3,500 despite a request for an increase of $1,000. The committee gave as its reason that the IODE's other grants to charitable cause overlapped with established welfare programs.

WAS JOKING

(During the discussion a committee member, Mayor Beth Nealson of Leaside, said jokingly that the increase would be turned down because of the IODE's stand on the flag.

(Neither Nealson nor the city of Toronto has taken a stand on the flag question.)

The flag question had been a major issue at the meeting when delegates were asked by Mrs. McGibbon to write Prime Minister Pearson and give him their views on the flag. Mrs. McGibbon said Wednesday she had no idea what the 300 delegates had said in their individual letters.

"I only asked them to write what they feel about the situation." A large carton filled with letters was on the floor behind her.

Mrs. McGibbon Wednesday was re-elected to her second term of office as national president. First vice - president is Mrs. J. Neil Gordon, and second vice - president Mrs. Gordon D. Leggett, both of Toronto.

Pearson's Commission Runs Into Separatism Thinking

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quebec separatist sympathies appeared before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism Wednesday for the first time during its informal inquiries in Western Canada.

But other issues, most of a more local flavor and some with controversial overtones, occupied most of the time as the commission drew opinion in this metropolitan centre of varied ethnic makeup.

The group's one-day stand here was its 15th in a views gathering operation that started in mid-March and is to end next month.

The commission of 10 under co-chairmen Davidson Dunton and Andre Laurendeau is to conduct formal hearings next fall and winter.

In a night gathering of about 400 people, the biggest audience before the commission Wednesday George Allaire of Winnipeg suggested Canada will never get political equality for French- and English-speaking people.

"Canada excluding Quebec is English," he said, and Quebec is "largely French - speaking."

Mr. Allaire told the gathering in French there would be "better agreement and better understanding" if Quebec leaves Confederation.

Simultaneous translations were provided through translator radio units.

Claude Campeau, a French teacher in neighboring St. James who started speaking in English then switched to French, said the independence of Quebec would not be worse than its present situation.

John Hirsch of Winnipeg, director of the Manitoba Theatre Centre and Hungarian by origin suggested a unicultural quality for Canada.

At the two-hour night meeting there were suggestions for up-

Some Sun-Bathers Could Turn Purple With Too Much Sun

TORONTO (CP) — It's rare, but some sun-bathers this summer will turn a striking purple instead of a golden brown, a Vancouver doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Stuart Meddin, dermatologic consultant to the federal health department, told the Ontario Medical Association that the purple cyanotic syndrome occurs as a result of mixture of much sun with tranquilizers, some drugs or some foods.

It affects only 78 of the more than 100,000,000 tranquilizer users in North America. Persons who experience the problem after eating such foods as carrots or figs or using such drugs as sulfonamides or antibiotics are also small in number.

Dr. Meddin said overdoses of sun could lead to pre-cancerous skin conditions or the eruption known as skin cancer. He warned parents of blue-eyed, blonde or red-haired children to keep them from exposure to the sun or irreversible damage could occur by the age of 20.

Tanning is only beneficial in clearing up skin conditions such as acne or psoriasis, he suggested.

In another report, Dr. Roman Bisdek, clinical assistant in medicine at the University of Toronto, said insect bites kill more people than snake bites. Between 1950 to 1960, a total of 229 persons in the United States and Canada died from wasp, hornet and bee stings, while 138 died from snake bites.

Dr. Reginald D. Atkinson of Whitby, retiring president of the association, urged the doctors to take stronger disciplinary measures against erring colleagues to restore the public's faith in the profession. Bad practices, although rare, give all physicians a bad reputation.

He said a minority of doctors are concerned only with their own success and material gratification. They must be sought out. However, since much of medical practice is a matter of judgment and because a doctor is unprepared for any other occupation if his licence is revoked, many doctors are reluctant to discipline their colleagues, Dr. Atkinson said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Ontario and the Great Lakes district generally is sandwiched between a large high pressure area over Western Canada and a deep storm centre over Labrador. As a result cool northerly winds cover the entire province. This weather pattern will be slow to change. Chilly temperatures are expected again tonight with frost in central and northern Ontario.

RCAF Cuts Jets to Fifty Ends Arctic Reconnaissance

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department has reduced RCAF fighter strength by 25 per cent to fewer than 50 jet planes in Canada and has virtually abandoned Arctic reconnaissance, officials disclosed Wednesday.

The air force acquired 66 Canadair Voodoo jet interceptors in 1961 but has lost two in crashes. Sixteen of the remaining 64 have been put in storage at a saving of $2,400,000.

This has left 48 operational Voodoos, only 16 of which are on standby alert at any one time.

The number of fighter squadrons is being reduced to three from five.

Informed sources said Arctic reconnaissance now is being done entirely by three Dakota planes based at Rivers, Man.

Four RCA F Hercules transport planes are being converted to reconnaissance work—cameras are being installed—but they will not be ready for operations until early next year. These planes also will be based at Rivers.

Plans to Broadcast Fanny Hill as Bedtime Story

Screaming Lord Sutch Turns Radio Pirate, Army Finally Gets Job of Quieting Him

LONDON (AP)—The army reluctantly decided to tackle Britain's newest radio pirate today, and Screaming Lord Sutch began to try to repel boarders.

Sutch, 22-year-old pop singer who heads a group called the Savages, started broadcasting Wednesday from an abandoned World War II sea fort four miles out in the Thames estuary.

His signals were weak—but strong enough to send the buck passing feverishly around Whitehall.

The fort belongs to the admiralty, said the army. The admiralty built it.

We built it for the army, said the admiralty.

"Perhaps it's a civil matter," said an admiralty man. "Try the ministry of transport."

Transport said definitely not.

Finally the defence ministry stepped in.

"It is an army matter," a spokesman said. "An officer will take a boat out to the fort today to tell Mr. Sutch he is trespassing."

The fort is one of four built off the Essex shore to thwart German bombing planes. It stands on stilts 80 feet above the waves.

Sutch — a plumber named Dave Sutch till he turned to "music"—had his first brush with authority Wednesday.

A customs cutter came out of the mist. Customs officers reported this conversation:

Customs: "Do you realize you're on war office property?"

His screaming lordship: "Then tell 'em to come out here and take it away. Why do they suddenly want it when we've got it?"

Customs: "We're coming up."

His screaming lordship (returning and lowering a bucket): "Thanks a lot, lads. And don't forget to listen in."

Sutch took over the fort as competition to two other pirate stations, Radio Caroline and Radio Atlanta, both based on ships anchored off the east coast just outside British waters.

Caroline and Atlanta both take ads. By operating outside British territorial waters, they beat Britain's strict commercial and private radio.

Sutch doesn't take advertisements. He's in it to plug his records and publicize unknown beat groups which he wants to manage.

As an added attraction he promises bedtime stories — reading late at night from Lady Chatterley's Lover and Fanny

Beaverbrook's Express Protests Queen's Planned German Visit

LONDON (CP)—An argument blew up today over whether West Germany is "contented" enough for the Queen to pay a state visit to the land of the Teutons.

"The British public are not yet prepared to accept Germany as a normal, contented and stable neighbor," the Beaverbrook's Daily Express in an editorial entitled "This visit is a mistake."

"Germany seems astonishingly stable, reliable and contented; long may it remain so," says The Daily Telegraph.

The Express—not for the first time—appears to represent a minority view but there is no doubt Britons have delicate feelings about the queen's visit scheduled for next May.

The Telegraph maintains that even if conditions in Germany were the reverse of what they are, "a royal visit might be all the stronger."

All this does not mean there was any surprise when plans for the visit were announced Wednesday. The idea has been kicked around for seven years since the late president Theodor Heuss visited Britain, and some people feel there already has been too much chewing-over of the subject.

It will be the first state visit by a British monarch since the foundation of modern Germany nearly 100 years ago but there were much closer links when Germany was a monarchy.

Whatever heartburning there may be in Britain about the forthcoming visit, the Germans are delighted.

George Vine writes in The Daily Mail:

"Believe it or not but this is just about the highest praise for the German people since the raising of the Berlin blockade.

"It is a signpost to the fervent desire of 999 out of every 1,000 Germans to draw a line with the past and start a fresh era in relations with Britain."

The Times, on the Queen's visit "will acknowledge that relations are now improving, based on the more congenial personality and policies of (West German Chancellor Ludwig) Erhard and the growth of a new generation with little knowledge of the past and no responsibility for it."

The Communist Daily Worker says "a worse moment could not be picked to announce the Queen's visit to West Germany."

"It has the hoofmarks of the most flat-footed attempt to inveigle the Tory (ruling Conservative party) arms salesmen with their prospective customer Herr (West German Defence Minister Kai-Wue) von Hassel who arrived here yesterday."

Consumers Gas to Explore Drill Hole on Zwick's Island

Is there underground natural gas in commercial quantities in the immediate Belleville area?

That is what Consumers Gas Company would like to know and in an effort to find out is prepared to explore an existing drill hole in the Zwick's Island area.

The city Parks Board is prepared to enter into an agreement with the gas company allowing an exploration of the drill hole which is said to go down approximately 300 feet.

The drill hole is in the reclaimed area of the Zwick's Island park, just north of the CPR tracks and on property at one time owned by the Ponton family.

Consumers Gas say there are a number of drill holes in the Belleville area, which were sunk years ago in search of gas.

Last month the gas company wrote to the local Parks Board seeking permission to explore the drill hole on parks property.

The Parks Board will request that some exploratory work by the gas company be commenced within 30 days of signing the agreement.

The weekly dance night at the old Commodores' building on the Belleville Fair Grounds has not passed completely out of the picture.

Unaware Truck Had Hit Anyone Says Accused

An Edmonton trucker told police he was unaware he was involved in a fatal accident and continued on his way.

Today Leonard Alfred Creal, 33, returned from Edmonton for a second time to appear on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident that killed Donald Trumpour, 36, of 24 Gilbert Street.

This time he pleaded not guilty and went on trial before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Police witnesses told of Trumpour's body being found beside his truck on the two - lane Highway 401 stretch just east of Marysville, April 10. He had been hauling gravel for a nearby highways project and apparently had stopped by the roadside. Police could give no explanation why he had halted or why the truck was two feet over the shoulder on the pavement. His body was 62 feet from the vehicle.

OPP Corporal Tom Lummiss said the vehicle was found to be mechanically sound when tested.

Creal was arrested at the 1967 service centre, east of Trenton - - 28 miles from the accident.

Investigating officer Bill Stevens quoted Creal at telling him his truck had sideswiped a parked vehicle on Highway 401. He stopped his vehicle, found only slight damage and watched for a sign from the other truck.

"He said . . . he'd seen no one, so got back into his truck and continued west on 401."

Later Brighton OPP officers found traces of denim material in the wheel studs of Creal's truck.

"We felt we had a suspect vehicle."

The trial continues tomorrow

Kiwanis Clubs Tour River Watershed

Thirty members from the Kiwanis Club and the Belleville Quinte Club left the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon by bus for the first official tour of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Field Officer Jack King of the Department of Energy and Resources Management, (also a member of the Belleville Quinte Club) was the official tour guide.

The first stop was the sight of the proposed College Street dam. Mr. King pointed out that "there have been 76 floods in Belleville since 1846, seven of which were of major importance. The most disastrous flood", he said, "occurred in March 1936 and caused approximately $500,00 in property damage leaving several hundred people homeless."

"It appears that this proposed flood control dam will never be built until the need for it is demonstrated in another serious flood."

The next stop was Corbyville which in previous years was the site of serious industrial pollution, which resulted in the killing of a great number of fish.

Mr. King announced that the co-operation of businesses like the Corby Distillery, has almost eliminated this type of pollution. In the Moira Valley pollution can still be stopped if effective control measures are taken now, he said.

The tour continued with stops at the Limestone Plains and the water operated saw mill at Chisholm's Mills and then on to the Col. Rosnow Vandenwater Conservation Area.

Here there are approximately 500 acres now being developed with facilities for conservation demonstrations, camping, picnic areas, fishing, swimming, boating, play areas and nature trails.

Mr. King's ability as a guide was challenged by the club members when he guided the bus down a dead-end road in the camping area. The bus had to back up for one-half mile before the driver was able to find a suitable location to turn around, during which time Mr. King had very little to say.

However, he more than redeemed himself to the club with his excellent commentary and was saved by an emergency constituted by the tour chairman.

Mr. Quinsey announced that there would be a charge of $1 per person to cover bus fare. The fee was paid in view of the inconvenience of having to walk back to Belleville, as it was learned the door to the bus was closed until the sum had been collected.

Time did not permit the tour to continue to the next seven stops. Instead members were taken directly to Tweed where they met with members of the Tweed Kiwanis Club.

It was also learned that the Tweed club is missing its banner, flying and registration book. A spokesman for the Belleville club said the Tweed club will have to offer a search and delegation to Belleville for the Kiwanis Golf Tournament in June if they wish to retrieve their articles.

Couple Takes Greetings From Hastings Warden to Mayor of Hastings, Eng.

A Belleville couple were extended English hospitality on a recent visit to the city of Hastings in England.

Mr. and Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon of 240 Bleecker Avenue, carried with them a letter of greetings from the Warden of Hastings County, Thomas Burnside, to the Mayor of the city of Hastings, England, His Worship D. V. Wilshin.

When Mr. and Mrs. MacKinnon arrived in Hastings they learned from a police officer that Mayor Wilshin was at a luncheon in the Queen's Hotel there, opening a car rally.

The two Bellevillians went to the hotel and were greeted by the public relations director for the city, Mr. A. K. Vint, who announced to the mayor their presence.

Mr. MacKinnon said the mayor left the banquet and came out to greet them at which time he (Mr. MacKinnon) presented him with Mr. Burnside's letter.

The mayor then insisted that they join him at the rally luncheon after which they were taken on a tour of the city by Mr. Vint. They visited the town hall where they signed the distinguished visitors' book in the mayor's parlor, as his office is called.

Before stopping at Hastings, the MacKinnons visited at such places as Canterbury and Rye.

It is evident that Mr. Burnside will be receiving a reply from Mayor Wilshin, according to the Hastings and St. Leonard's Observer.

Welfare Costs Greatly Reduced During March

The trend toward fuller employment during the past winter is reflected in reduced welfare expenditures in the city, according to the Ontario Department of Public Welfare.

Statistics released by the department show that during March 696 persons received general welfare assistance in the city as compared with 1,046 for the same period one year ago. This is a reduction of 33.5 per cent.

For the first three months of the year $61,347 was paid out in general welfare assistance in the city, compared with $90,117 for the same period in 1963.

Tithing Is Outdated, Unfair

KINGSTON (CP)—Tithing is outdated and unfair, say Rev. T. B. Asbell of Peterborough and Rev. H. E. Farson of Carievale, Sask., delegates to the 40th Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada. The two spoke today in the fourth day of the conference.

"Reference to the archaic and antiquated Old Testament tithe supplies a policy that still makes the rich look good and the poor look poorer," said Mr. Farson.

"Modern scribes and Pharisees in the status homes, posh churches and indulgent cocktail groups give what they can spare while the true meaning of giving for love is neglected," said Mr. Asbell.

Both ministers said proportionate giving, as advocated by the United Church, "is neither scriptural nor adequate for the spiritual understanding of true Christian witness."

"This measures the gift by the material giving of others," said Mr. Asbell.

"I know people who give less than five per cent and I am very thankful to them for the inspiration of their generosity," stated Mr. Farsons.

The two men said that 10 per cent of $3,000 meant more of a sacrifice to the low-income family than 10 per cent of $30,000 did to that family's more wealthy counterparts.

Mr. Asbell wondered whether proportionate giving would establish the formula of the affluent church of the wealthy and the working man's church of the labourer.

Mr. Asbell, supported by Mr. Parsons, said: "Giving should express gratitude not reluctance and no percentage regulation or manhandled policy is acceptable."

Commodore Lane Stresses Needs in Cargo Movements

TRENTON — Air Commodore R. J. Lane, Air Officer, Commanding Air Transport Command in his keynote address to the delegates at the second international air cargo forum in Montreal on Tuesday stressed the need for simplicity and flexibility in air cargo movement operations, as they apply to commercial carrier lines as well as to military agencies.

Air Commodore Lane warned the assembled delegates, representing commercial air cargo outlets from across Canada and the U.S., against installing costly systems of automation for moving air cargo, lest they find the automated systems, which appear to meet the needs of today prove incapable of adapting to the expanded requirements of tomorrow.

Automated processes at military installations must be modified by the potential effect on the military's mission capacity, he said. The majority of wartime tasks for the military would be in support of military operations from various, unpredictable bases, the Air Commodore said, hence Air Transport Command must remain flexible. Highly sophisticated equipment is not always flexible to the degree required.

Air Commodore Lane suggested that only large air cargo terminals have the volume of business to justify the funds required for major automation programs, and air cargo potential could only be fully exploited if air cargo movements companies looked beyond the larger cities to the thousands of smaller communities throughout Canada and the United States.

COULD POOL RESEARCH

Air Commodore Lane suggested a pooling of air cargo research and development information between the commercial air lines and the military, on a national, or even an international basis, to eliminate duplication of effort in these fields, as a means to attaining standardization of procedures.

The Air Commodore also advocated the establishment of a training program in the transportation field, within the industry or by existing educational systems, to provide a source of trained personnel for the air cargo industry.

As a third suggestion, the Air Commodore said that he would like to see an organization set up, which would carry on the liaison between military and commercial air cargo personnel on a day-to-day basis, to keep pace with the future growth of the air cargo needs of both factions.

Demonstrated at the Air Cargo Forum was Lockheed's new C-130-B Hercules aircraft, a modification of the RCAF's C-130-B, with a greater fuel capacity and hence a greater flying distance capability. Air Transport Command has purchased 16 of these aircraft, with first delivery at Trenton promised by the end of the year. Lockheed hopes to gain the right to sell the cargo aircraft commercially.

Senior Citizens Tour Northland By Colored Film

TRENTON — Tuesday night, the members of the Trenton Senior Citizens' Club were taken on a film tour of northern Canada by Mrs. G. Hemstreet, at a meeting in the Recreation Hall on Ontario Street, attended by 30 members.

"Above the Timber Line," a colored film available from the Trenton Film Council, displays to perfection the beauties of Canada's northland. Club members were particularly impressed with the pictures of flowers of the north, which make up for a short blooming season by prolific growth.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Celia Rosenplot and opened with the singing of The Queen. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Lena Phillips.

It was announced that the Trenton club will meet in Marmora, June 10, with the Marmora club, in celebration of Senior Citizens' Week.

A visit to Upper Canada Village by the club, scheduled for June 26, will take place on June 17, due to a conflict in bus schedules with another town group.

A door prize was won by Mrs. C. Brooks and a lucky draw by Mrs. N. Robertson and Mrs. Ethel Wait.

The club members observed a minute of silence in tribute to Mrs. John Johnson, who died at Trenton last week.

Lunch was served with William Nancarrow saying Grace, and the meeting closed with the singing of "God Be With You, Until We Meet Again.

A Kind Man Departs Quietly

By any standards, Charles L. Hyde was one of the leaders of the community, a successful businessman, influential in municipal affairs and active in fraternal circles. Yet almost everyone who had better than a nodding acquaintance with him knew him as Charlie.

In an age in which familiarity is often mistakenly regarded as the magic key to understanding, this may not seem important. But in Charlie Hyde's case it was. People greeted him familiarly because he invited it, not by any facade of affected bonhomie but by his quiet assumption that he was in the company of people of worth. Charlie Hyde liked children and they, with the instinctive ability to recognize sincerity which is an attribute of the young, reciprocated his affection in full measure.

Mr. Hyde was a modest man, with a modest man's ambition and, almost certainly, dreams, who earned a modest success in his home community.

It is such men as these, in the final analysis, who provide the bedrock on which any society founds its life. Not all such men, though we have Charlie Hyde's happy talent for going through life enjoying it—and by that very talent making life more enjoyable for those with whom they are associated, even if only casually.

Even Death seems to have had the good taste to deal with him as gently as possible. He was a victim of one of the cruelest killers, cancer, but until a few weeks prior to the end of his life he went about living apparently unaware of what fate had in store for him—and certainly never troubling his acquaintances by sharing with them any misgivings he may have had.

Charlie would never have dreamed of asking anyone to help him shoulder his burden, even if he had thought it unkind of fate to use him in this manner.

Richard Nixon a "Liberal"?

Senator Barry Goldwater advocates using atomic bombs to defoliate the area along the border between communist North Viet Nam and anti-communist South Viet Nam.

Once this strip was denuded of cover, it would be easy to spot shipments of arms across the border—and to do something about these shipments. This is his argument.

Tastes in strategy differ. There may be some who will consider this a brilliant suggestion.

Regardless of one's opinion about this point, though, it is interesting to note that Senator Goldwater is enjoying such success in primaries and conventions that he is now the favorite for the Republican presidential nomination.

Whether that means much is questionable. President Lyndon Johnson has been winning friends and influencing people at such a rate that many, including most Democrats, regard him as a shoo-in for next November's presidential election.

Those who do not and who consider the Republicans have a good chance are not necessarily all Goldwater supporters. Those who dislike Goldwater, or fear his policies, may find it a bit of a shock to realize that their main hope of stopping his nomination is a man by the name of Richard Nixon. That Nixon should be the most liberal-minded Republican with reasonable prospects of carrying the party's convention seems to speak volumes respecting the Republican trend over the past few years and the present political climate in the party.

Consistency, Jewel or Crutch?

Consistency has been condemned, upon occasion, as a crutch for the unthinking.

The Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, in convention at Fredericton, N.B., has demonstrated that it has no use for crutches.

The IODE has sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson in which it "strongly urges the Prime Minister to hold a national plebiscite in order that the people of Canada may decide whether the Canadian Red Ensign or a flag of a new design shall be the official flag of Canada. IODE members deplore the failure in this democratic country our government would deprive individual citizens of voting on an issue as vital as the flag."

The same convention heard national secretary Mrs. H. G. Chant of Toronto report that the Order has conducted an all-out campaign during the last year for the adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's flag, sending two letters to Mr. Pearson urging the Government to adopt it.

Ottawa Offbeat
No Simple Trick to Acquire Ex-M. P.'s Wicker Furniture

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Weird, if not exactly wonderful, ever remain the bewildering ways of the Bureaucracy.

To wit:

The MP who rescued Agnes Macphail's old office furniture here on The Hill from the Public Works Department's incinerator is not to be allowed to buy, borrow or steal it, even as a gift for the old Ontario constituency of Grey-Bruce that sent Parliament's first woman member to the House of Commons 43 years ago.

Happened this way:

Harold Winch, the young-looking socialist New Democratic MP for Vancouver East was on his way the other day down a back corridor to the basement barbershop of the Commons when he saw some old wicker chairs piled alongside the wall with an assortment of broken chairs, thread - bare carpets, shattered water coolers and other discards obviously doomed for the dump.

Now, it is one of the strange rules of Public Works here on The Hill that old office equipment can't be given away, even loaned, much less sold.

It must be broken up, piled into an incinerator and burned.

AGGIE'S COUCH

Styles in furniture for M P s change, whether the fashion is let us say, "executive Suite Modern", "Early Parliamentary, "Working Politician Functional," every MP gets the same.

Desk, swivel chair, phone, rug water cooler, hat-rack, bookcase, two Canadian scenics on the walls, and that's it—secretary, desk, typewriter, filing cabinet and a second office phone.

Some members, notably Parliamentary veterans and Cabinet Assistants get a wash basin and the crème de la crème, political crème, the Ministers and Party Leaders get suites of two, three or four offices, with couch even, private lavatory.

The functional, work-a-day furniture that's at last these days, just as yesteryear it used to be wood, they "company" furniture or "front parlour" furniture for the comfort of visitors is leather.

And every four years the day's labors or fee "parlor" purposes, is it or has it been wicker.

That is why Harold Winch was stopped in his tracks by sheer curiosity.

Whose were the two old chairs and the ancient settee, all of wicker, from whose office had they come and where were they going?

The answers were easy if a bit shocking.

The old wicker sets once belonged to the Hon. Agnes Macphail who came to Parliament back in 1921 in the days when Grey-Bruce was a single seat "South East."

Since then it had been in the basement Parliament Hill office of the Ottawa Bureau Chief of British Pathe News, now Universal Press International.

And what then?

Harold Winch said he would buy the old set and present it, as a gift, to the constituency interested public organization or association in Grey County.

But no. That was against the rules. It now was not to be destroyed, of course; but Harold Winch would not have it for love or money.

It would go into storage while officially going through the motions of being declared "surplus" and so made available for placement — by bid or otherwise — through the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

So now it is formally designated surplus, and available for the bidding, but still Harold Winch can't have it, even were he to bid enough to pay off the nation-al debt. For by the rules as it is strictly "hands-off" Government property, surplus or otherwise, Gosh's.

So Harold Winch is now writing National NDP Headquarters here in Ottawa, and Provincial Headquarters to write to Grey County Headquarters to see if some how, some where if it is only a token $1 — to secure the old wicker set so it can be presented as a gift to whatever group in Grey-Bruce may like to have it.

Complicated, isn't it — but that is the way the Red Tape specialists here insist it must be done—so no wonder the political pace here is run steam ahead, in slow motion.

Strictly Personal
People Refuse To Repent Their Sins

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Humor and tolerance operate at a distance, and are almost wholly a matter of perspective — what a man would find amusing, by endearing in someone else's wife he would find exasperating by frivolous in his own.

One dilemma of the basic neurotic is that he wants to be made an exception of, and yet he wants to be one of the group; such an inner contradiction can give no rest, and no satisfaction.

In a meaningful work of fiction, every character is partly in the right — the "villain" is simply that character who believes himself to be more in the right than he actually is, and this belief drives him to act more in the wrong.

"The world must be changed," says the idealist; "the world must be accepted as it is" says the realist; "the world must be changed must be changed, and what must be accepted should be accepted," says the philosopher, adding quickly: "and how terribly hard to distinguish between the two at any given time."

"Lady killer" is the most marvelously apt slang word for that kind of man, because it captures the psychological truth that the Don Juan is motivated more by aggression than by affection.

When we tend to become impatient with the "selfishness" of children, it is helpful to recall Goethe's penetrating remark: "In his youth, everybody believes that the world began to exist only when he was born, and that everything really exists only for his sake."

Speaking of children, I'm fond of the purportedly true story about the two first-graders at recess, when one asks the other "Do you believe in the Devil?" and the other shakes his head. "No, it's just Santa Claus — it's really your father!"

Some people refuse to be convinced about their sins until entire begin to be contrite about them; they are like nations at a disarmament conference, in which each nation refuses to take the first step, and while conditions proceed, armaments increase.

Woman's dual attitude toward man was tersely summed up by Jules D'Aurevilly, in a French epigram that loses little in translation: "Next to the woman that women make best is the bandage."

The perfectionist never thinks of himself as such; the only place he partially disappears is in his lax definition of himself as "orderly."

Note on Making Words Fit Our Concepts: My 4-year-old boy is convinced that the best toys are to be found in a store called "Sears, Robot and Co."

The West proposed 12 years ago today—in 1852—that the Soviet Union, Communist China and the U.S. reduce their armed forces to 1,500,000 men each, with France and Britain limiting their forces to 700,000 and 800,000 respectively. Other nations would be held to one per cent of their populations. The U.S.S.R. which had proposed a one-third cut, rejected the proposal June 10, 1952.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 28th, 1944.

The Financial Post is running a weekly column reporting layoffs of workers in war plants across Canada, three occurring in Belleville included.

The Financial Post, an excellent financial weekly, is not read widely by the general public and their articles and the "lay-off" column will not create undue unrest in the workers' mind if the list grows in proportion with the success of our forces, or whatever factor governs the slowing-down of the production of materials from the plants and factories. If these figures were published in daily papers and other periodicals generally read, the public might be driven to wonder what was going to happen. Would it not be just as good an idea to chronicle the occasions when workers are taken on, especially in civilian plants where long suspended or curtailed production is beginning to be resumed?

From time to time, Belleville's war plants have laid off groups of workers as the production of the plants is slowed down. The workers who have been laid off know about it and as a rule the local press reports the incident, but little is ever heard of what becomes of these workers afterwards. This information, released to the public, would help to keep a balance of the public's concern over conditions during this period.

30 YEARS AGO

May 28th, 1934.

Mr. George Faulkner, son of Dr. J. Albert Faulkner of this city, has passed the final examinations in medicine at the Mc Gill University, Montreal.

Mr. C. A. Pearce of Picton has passed the Dentistry examinations in arts and science at McGill University, Montreal.

From our file copy at this time 1934: "The plans of the new hospital are now complete in the show window of Templeton's drug store.

Mr. Thomas Webster of Galt, Ont., formerly manager of the J. and J. Cash Company here, is spending a few days in town.

Miss Edith Clare and Miss Janet Clare are home from Toronto University to spend the summer vacation at their home on Bridge St. East.

40 YEARS AGO

Alemite Products, one of Belleville's leading industries, has changed its factory location from the Graham Building on Pinnacle Street to the building lately occupied by the Elliott Woodworking Machinery Company, Millhaven, at the end of Pine St. This makes the third expansion of Alemite Products in the three years the business has been in operation here. In each case the new locations have been purchased by the Company. Messrs. H. J. Graham, R. J. Earl Graham and W. Ernest Rowsome are the shareholders in the Canadian Company.

Boy Scouts, who have undertaken to sell 2,000 United Empire Loyalist celebration badges from door to door in the city, are meeting with success. One boy, George Atkins, has lost his package of badges and citizens are asked to buy only from the following boys: Charles Naylor, Wilfred Flower, Clement Allen, Jack Robertson, Tom Finnikin, William Walker, Albert Edwards, George Pepper, Jack Rigby, Victor Holsey, P. To Your Good Health
Bronchiectasis More Than Simple Case of Bad Breath

By JOSEPH C. WOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have bad breath, and wish you would write about bronchiectasis. — Mrs. C.

Bronchiectasis, of course, is much more than simply a cause of bad breath, although it is likely to be that, too.

It is a dilation of the lower end of the bronchial tubes. It can result from bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis or other lung disorders, but it also may occur without any of these forerunners.

The dilated area permits phlegm to accumulate, and there is chronic infection and pus as well as fluid. This in turn means foul-smelling sputum, raised by a loose-sounding cough which can be a symptom of bronchiectasis.

As you might suspect, the affected area can become ulcerated, and thus phlegm may be bloody in fact, bronchiectasis is the commonest of all causes of bloody sputum and lung hemorrhage. The bleeding may be heavy and hence dangerous.

The classic symptoms of chronic infection — loss of appetite and weight, fatigue, and fever — follow.

Separate lobes of the lung can be involved, sometimes the upper, but usually the lower.

Treatment includes courses of antibiotics to subdue infection, and postural drainage — which is, lying with shoulders lower than the hips — several times a day to help clear away the phlegm and fluids.

Smoking aggravates the condition and should be stopped.

Cure (as distinct from treatment to ease the problem) involves surgery to remove the affected tissues. This does not necessarily mean removal of an entire lung, or even an entire lobe of a lung since methods have been evolved now for "segmental dissection," removing only a part of a lobe.

While bronchiectasis obviously causes bad breath, other symptoms would be more noticeable than the mere odor.

However, for a significant example of the sort of thing, other than bad teeth, which can cause bad breath, long, fetid or even nasal infections can smell bad, and having your teeth fixed or your mouthwash isn't going to correct it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet on "How to Tame Headaches." I enclose the required unstamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Do cysts or sebaceous glands cause headaches? — Mrs. S.

No, not directly — but if for some reason you are unduly disturbed about them, they could contribute to nervous tension. I doubt if there is any more common type than the "tension" headache. (It is, of course, discussed in the booklet.)

Dear Dr. Molner: For the second time I am writing to you for a kidney infection. What could be the cause? — Mrs. M. G.

Kidney infections are likely to be stubborn and to recur. You can stop almost all the infection and feel fine, starting to give a little extra treatment, and still a couple more days, ready to start treating again, at the first sign of any recurrence. Females are particularly prone to bladder and kidney infection.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can multiple sclerosis be inherited? — Mrs. F.

The cause is not known but there is no indication that it is hereditary.

Letters to the Editor

Protests Removal Of Trees Near Bridge

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The reconstruction of the wall by the Upper Bridge gives an opportunity for a flight of steps down to the river and perhaps a bit of walkway along the base of the wall, so that people can stroll up and down the river bank when the water is quiet. The Community Planning Association advocated this last March, but did not have a chance would come so soon.

Whose is the responsibility for the trees that make such a difference to the appearance and comfort of our city streets? Not the Public Works Departments. Evidently it is up to the city engineer to make aesthetic as well as technical decisions.

All the trees by the Upper Bridge have now been felled, with the exception of two saplings if they are not to be replaced. These trees were the last survivors of a row that used to extend a considerable way up Station Street and all about the Upper Bridge. Such a row might be planted again.

It is not good enough to say that the future of this corner is in doubt, or that automobiles need all the parking space. Any driver who has come by this corner on a hot afternoon will gladly admit that the shade and the appearance of the trees by the Upper Bridge was appreciated. This corner is an inferno without trees.

Rodger C. Greig,
For the Community Planning Association.

Hydroplane Club Denied Use of Park

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The Quinte Hydroplane Club was formed so that the youth of Belleville could enjoy boat racing under supervision, with all stress placed on safety precautions. It would appear to be a shame that the people who enjoyed the races off Victoria Park are to be deprived of their pleasure in watching these boats in action.

The Parks Board, however have repeatedly refused permission to use the facilities we do on Victoria Park what facilities not know - due to complaints from the Belleville Yacht Club and the Belleville Marine Yards. It should be noted here that the Harbor Commission gave us permission to use the waters off Victoria Park, and we will have given us any assistance we have required in order that the club could function properly.

It therefore becomes obvious that the Club will now be forced to disband unless suitable arrangements can be made in an area outside the city limits. It does seem a rather drastic measure that the Club, formed for safety measures, has been refused the use of a presumably public park, in this case Victoria Park. It is not rather ironical that the Railway Committee has requested our club to hold a race meet on the Saturday of Railway Week, and the city council has given permission for the Girl Guide's Island for exclusive one - in that it is to be a CBF sanctioned race involving approximately 100 boats.

A few years ago there was a fatality on the Bay involving a local boy, and there have since been a very few narrow escapes. When our local boys race meets of vacationers, they are no very often, without the necessary safety measures. We had hoped that by organizing a Club, operating under CBF regulations it would eliminate this danger, but the club is being thwarted by those members of the Yacht Club, and the Belleville Marine Yards who apparently are more interested in themselves than in the welfare of youth. The Parks Board is quite obviously more interested in the wishes of those two organizations, than they are in our youth and their safety.

D. E. Storey, President,
Quinte Hydroplane Club.

Wants Labor, CofC To Work Together

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Permit me to offer congratulations on your editorial of May 19th, regarding labor counsels and Chambers of Commerce. It seems that the issues contained were based on the differences of opinion of the beliefs of the two bodies. You stated that this should not be, and I most heartily agree. The Chamber of Commerce and the Labor Council are both local organizations, striving, I believe for the betterment of the community as a whole. They are, you state, and should be, a means to an end, and should not be regarded as the end itself.

We are not as labor unions or councils dedicated to a political creed, we are free men, and are most desirous of choosing our own politics and beliefs, and we do just that.

The labor unions' ties with the NDP could, I suppose be considered as an advantage, but not necessarily an end in itself.

It is possible that two organizations quite removed economically, socially and idealistically, can be striving for similar objectives along different roads.

The dictionary defines commerce, as a noun, meaning to exchange goods, products or property. As a verb it is described as an association. It is years and years since that we should not project this definition and exchange ideas for the betterment of two organizations, for the common good of the community?

As the wife of the naval officer said, regarding the lack of knowledge of the ways of a new home, "Two heads are better than one".

I do not write this letter expressing any official views or opinions of labor as a whole in this city, but strongly recommend a more zealous approach by both sides, for co-operation and understanding with a view to better management of community affairs.

Gerald F. Cunningham,
President Belleville District Labor Council.

Everybody On Baby Kick

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Have you noticed that the Americans are on a baby kick that has no connection with the population explosion? It started in the wondrous worlds of entertainment and sports and is spreading so rapidly that before long practically everybody will be practically everybody else "baby."

A baseball player as big as an ox steps out of the box and "Sock it, Willie baby!" screams a fan.

Back on the mound a pitcher even bigger than the batter is simultaneously urged by a convivial cheerleader in the stands to "Fog it in there, Lefty baby!"

Thus encouraged, Lefty baby glares at Willie baby, Willie baby glares back, and the game is off to a flashy start.

And in the television studio a happy director beams at a rough, tough, good guy who has just wiped out a nest of baddies single-handed and says "Nice going, Hank baby."

One of these days a fond mother is going to lean over a crib and coo, "Give mommy a nice big smile, baby."

And the kid is going to look up at her and say, "No, until you slip me the formula bottle, mommy baby."

ROYAL AND YMCA LIFE SAVING

Another senior life saving course has just been completed at the YMCA. The candidates commenced the course as a part of the spring Informal Adult Education Series. This was the first time the Belleville "Y" has run a Royal Life Saving Course although there has been a demand for some time. It was advocated by the Physical Education Committee and this year the "Y" was able to offer the Royal in conjunction with its own program. Mr. Bob Douglas was the course instructor.

The YMCA life saving course was examined by Mrs. Jean Smoke and Mr. Ron Poste. Successful candidates were, Mrs. Joy Wonnacott, Miss Marilyn Brown, David Craig, Bob Fletcher and Bill Symons.

The Royal life saving examination was held on a different night and was examined by Mr. Poste and Mr. Amm of Trenton. Successful candidates were Mrs. Joy Wonnacott, Miss Marilyn Brown, David Craig, Bob Fletcher and Paul Peoples.

The next senior life saving course will be held in the fall or when there are enough interested people. It will be held at the new YMCA on Victoria Avenue, which opens June 1st.

Photo-Finish Equipment Will Be Installed

There will be little room for argument following close finishes at the harness races at Belleville Fair Grounds this season.

Members of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club, sponsors of this year's Fair Grounds racing cards, have decided to install photo-finish equipment to give a positive check of neck-and-neck runs down to the finish wire.

It is hoped that the equipment will be ready for the opening race event of the season on Saturday night.

To house the photo-finish equipment a small building is now being erected atop the Fair Grounds grandstand and it is expected the equipment will be installed for the opening race event.

As at other racetracks the equipment will be operated by government authorities.

On March 30th, 1964, Royal Assent was given to a Private Member's Bill changing the name "Trans-Canada Air Lines" to "Air Canada". This Bill, after appropriate amendments, was passed by both the House of Commons and the Senate. The effective legal date of change will be proclaimed in due course by Governor-in-Council.

We, at TCA, welcome the decision to change the name of Canada's national airline to "Air Canada". This coincides with our own plans to establish a single, definitive name for the company—accurately describing our true, international character and having the same meaning in Canada's two official languages.

Today we fly to a great many destinations beyond our Canadian borders. Our vast air network (now 37,000 route miles) reaches to Britain, Ireland and the major gateways of Europe . . . to the sunny islands of the Caribbean . . . to the key cities of our neighbour south of the border.

It is obvious, then, that the name "Trans-Canada Air Lines" is no longer an adequate description—even though it was entirely appropriate when chosen, nearly three decades ago. Since its first operation in 1937, the Company has steadily grown with the nation and with the accelerated pace of international travel.

Continuous expansion has necessitated certain changes in our signature. As early as 1953, the words "Air Canada" were used along with "Trans-Canada Air Lines" in some parts of our system. By 1960, both names were being used simultaneously thoughout the network. But even so, it soon became evident that a total change was advisable if we were to compete effectively in world air travel.

Much work is required before you will see "Air Canada" displayed on all our equipment and accessories....from planes to pencils. Although this work has begun it will be many months before the change will be physically completed.

It is not without regret that we say "good-bye" to our old name. However, we believe the fine reputation that "Trans-Canada Air Lines" has achieved over the years will carry forward with the name "Air Canada". In the meantime, for one of the few remaining times, please permit us a little nostalgia . . . and we will sign this in the old way:

TRANS-CANADA AIR LINES AIR CANADA

Life of Shakespeare Provides Interesting Study for Guild

The Women's Study Guild met at the home of the president Mrs. R. Ellis for their May meeting. A most interesting reply had been received from the letter sent in French directly to the Guild's foster child in Tunis.

Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, keeping in mind the evening's topic on Shakespeare, based her devotions on the similarities of the writings of Shakespeare and those of the Bible-both deal with the same subject - man. They tell of man's folly and pride, his vain ambitions, his passions, his limitless possibilities, the growth and destruction of his character, the working out of retribution, his remorse and anguish, the shortness of life itself and the grim fact of death. As Shakespeare is the living man behind his works, so Jesus is the living Word behind the Bible. Mrs. George Maybee and Mrs. Carlton Miller had charge of the program.

Mrs. Maybee gave a vivid description of what is known of the life of William Shakespeare. Many parts of his life are obscure and much of what is known has been acquired through studies of his writings. Since this is the 400 th anniversary of his birth, celebrations are taking place in Britain and Canada in particular. Shakespeare's works are being played by all walks of life from school children to professional players. His face can be seen on everything from a postage stamp to billboards. Britain is sending four major troupes of Shakespearean players to forty different lands to perform.

Mrs. Maybee traced acting from its origin in the church pulpit to the present - - from the time when acting was looked upon as a sin through the miracle plays of the church, the morals played on the village green and the cyclic plays, to the interludes when clowns were introduced and the plays turned away from the churches.

At this stage (in 1564) William Shakespeare came upon the scene. His colorful life was described through the period when playhouses were made legitimate by Queen Elizabeth, when his reputation was made through the writing of Henry VI, the publishing of his first poem, the grief at the death of his son reflected in the play King John to his death in 1616 at age 52.

TIMELESS WORKS

There is a timelessness about Shakespeare's work which will make it always contemporary literature.

Mrs. Miller dealt with Shakespeare's works. Since there is so little known of him as an individual, the best way to know Shakespeare is through his plays. Seeing them occasionally is a luxury but we must depend on reading the plays for most study and enjoyment. Shakespeare's dramatic activity falls into four 7-year periods - an apprenticeship with comedies and histories in the Elizabethan Shakespeare and his tragedies and romances in the Jacobean Shakespeare. He collaborated with Marlowe, whose influence is evident, in Richard III and Henry VI. The plague put a halt to his writing in 1592-93. Shakespeare turned to writing poems for the reading public. His poems Venus and Adonis set him in the front of contemporary poets, a position which he held throughout his lifetime.

Mrs. Miller touched briefly on many of Shakespeare's poems, tragedies, comedies and sonnets and read excerpts from several. His poems showed that he knew the delights of the garden as well as the pangs of men's souls. Mrs. Miller pointed out how many of today's familiar sayings are Shakespearean quotations.

The tragedy Hamlet recently played in Toronto was given a clear interpretation. Most scholars agree that Shakespeare put more of himself into Hamlet than into any other play. We read his plays not only for the poetry and people we meet there but also for the man himself.

MAIL CALL

Question: We are having a large party next month, so to keep invited guests plenty of time to respond and make necessary arrangements, I plan to send out invitations this week. I know I'm sending them out rather early, but I also know from past experience that some friends have to book sitters a couple of weeks in advance. However, I thought of sending out reminders a week before the party, just in case some people have forgotten to mark the date on the calendar. Would this be proper, or would I appear I'm overly anxious about the party? — Mrs. D. M., Plymouth, Mass.

Answer: A reminder would be appropriate and most likely quite helpful, since invitations are being sent out so far in advance.

Question: Is it necessary to introduce your companion to a friend you happen to pass on the street? I was walking with a young man when I met a girl from my office. We merely waved and said hello, but next day she asked me why I hadn't introduced her to the fellow I was with. It didn't occur to be the proper time to do so. Don't you agree? — D. R., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Answer: If you had stopped to chat for a few seconds, it would have been proper to make an introduction. Since you just said hello in passing, there was no reason for you to do so.

Question: Our family has been invited to a wedding and reception at the home of the bride's parents. It's to be held late in the afternoon. Since we have a long drive and don't want to arrive back home too late because of our two children, I was wondering how long we correctly should remain at the reception. Are guests expected to remain for additional refreshments after the bride and bridegroom have left? I'd appreciate your advice. — Mrs. S. P., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Unless specifically asked to stay by the bride's parents, guests usually leave the reception shortly after the bride and bridegroom leave on their wedding trip.

65-Year-Old Widow Plans Long Journey

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—A silver - haired great - grandmother is planning to fulfil a 65-year-old ambition—to walk the 1,400 miles from Moose Jaw to Vancouver.

Mrs. Frank Welburn has spent weeks planning the trek. She says it will begin June 4, her 70th birthday, but doesn't know how long it will take.

"It's a challenge," says Mrs. Welburn who describes herself as a pioneer woman. "I'd like to meet men and women along the way. I really don't have any particular schedule.

"I don't know when I'll get to Vancouver or even if I'll walk all the way but it's a good opportunity to meet people and see different towns along the way."

Mrs. Welburn has studied the route carefully, deciding where she will stay at night and where she will eat. She has declined several offers of company, partly because she wants to stick to a rigid walking schedule of 8 a.m. to noon.

NOT AFRAID

"Dangers? I don't know if there are any dangers, or at least none that I haven't seen. I have been through cyclones, a mine cave-in, tornadoes and prairie fires. I have even faced a gun.

"Dangers? I broke broncos at the age of 12 and I have walked a great deal in my lifetime in Toronto and Winnipeg—everywhere I have been."

Mrs. Welburn was born in Minnesota and came to Canada with her Scandinavian parents to live near Estevan, Sask., when she was 15.

She says her husband would be "very disappointed" if she didn't go. "You see, since I was five years old I have promised myself I would go on a long walk."

The idea was prompted at that time by a story about William Jennings Bryan who oversame a severe illness by taking a long, solitary walk through the desert.

And if things get too rough, Mrs. Welburn is comforted by the thought that she can use the railway passes earned by her husband, a retired bridge and building master on the Canadian Pacific Railway to get her home safely.

FORCING SALES?

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Cecil T. Collins-Williams, a Toronto pediatrician-allergist, says Canadian food packagers are forcing a segment of Canadians to buy imported foods from the grocers' shelves. At least 10 per cent of all Canadians have food allergies, he says, some time in their lives, Dr. Collins-Williams said in an interview Wednesday. These persons must buy imported foods because domestic producers do not list all the ingredients on food labels.

Ann Landers

Epileptics Can Function As Well as Normal People

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letter from "Not Ashamed" created the impression that epileptics are mentally retarded. I'm sure YOU know better, Ann Landers, but I'm afraid many of your readers don't.

Eighty percent of the epileptics in this country can attend school, hold jobs, marry and raise children — IF they are accepted as normal human beings and not HUMILIATED or discriminated against by an ignorant and ill-informed society.

ANN LANDERS

I am an epileptic and here is my history I won top honors in high school, spent two years in the Canadian air force during the war, married, had children and now hold a government office.

I have never allowed epilepsy to prevent me from doing anything I wanted to do. No one except my physician and my intimate family knows I'm an epileptic. I adhere to doctor's orders, get plenty of rest and the proper nourishment. I refuse to feel sorry for myself. I'm actually a great deal better off than most people I know. Please print my letter and sign me — ALSO NOT ASHAMED.

DEAR ALSO — Here is your letter, and now a word from me:

It's too bad you have kept your epilepsy such a deep, dark secret.

You could help to enlighten people and make them less fearful of epilepsy if they knew an epileptic could function as well as you do.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son is in the service. He writes two long, newsy letters every month. My husband and I eagerly look forward to the mail.

Tim addresses his letters to both his father and me, although his father seldom writes to him. (I write for both of us.)

When a letter from Tim arrives my husband hands me the rest of the mail, takes the letter from Tim and opens it. When I ask if we can read Tim's letter together, or if he will please read Tim's letter to me, he says, "No, I'd rather read it alone." Then he sits down and reads Tim's letter and I have to wait until he finishes and hands it to me.

I try not to show it, Ann, but I just boil inside when he does this. Am I wrong to feel that my husband is inconsiderate? Please tell me how to deal with the problem — HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

DEAR HIGH — Of course he's inconsiderate, but you knew that. Every marriage needs at least one mature person so why don't you be the one? Try this:

The next time the mailman brings a letter from Tim walk straight to the kitchen and start to bake a batch of cookies. Ask your husband to please bring Tim's letter to you when he has finished with it. Turn on the kitchen radio, hum, sing, beat away at the cookie batter — keep busy until the letter comes in. You'll enjoy it more when your blood pressure is normal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two weeks ago a friend fixed me up with a blind date. The man (whom I will call Jud) was attractive, a fine conversationalist and has had marital troubles similar to mine. I enjoyed his company but I must confess he consumed more alcohol than any person I have ever gone out with.

He didn't appear to be drunk, but he downed at least a dozen drinks between 8.30 p.m. and midnight. When it came time to go home I was actually afraid to get into the car with him. (I was in a bad accident three years ago and am lucky to be alive.) He sensed my concern and said, "Relax. I've never had an accident in my life."

Jud called me last Saturday but I was busy. If he calls again should I accept? I've checked with people who know him well and they all say he drinks like a fish — ALICE.

DEAR ALICE — If he drinks like a fish, swim with him — don't drive with him.

Christ Church Guild Holds Delightful Blossom Tea

Members of Christ Church Parish Guild were hostesses at a delightful blossom tea on Wednesday afternoon in the parish hall. Guests were greeted at the door with a friendly welcome from the president, Mrs. W. A. Jordan, Mrs. R. G. Fleming, wife of the rector of the church, and Mrs. William Dawson.

Mrs. R. H. Dawson convened the tea with the assistance of her co-convener, Mrs. J. Hinchey.

A distinguishing feature of the tea table was the antique silver comport of the centre-piece which held yellow and white feathery 'mums. Two silver candelabra each held candles of yellow and white in their three branches. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. D. G. Livingston and Mrs. B. L. Quinney, wives of the wardens; Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Charles Bishop, Mrs. Fred Lester and Mrs. M. Vanner.

Small tables in the tea room held vases fashioned with lace doilies tied with yellow ribbons and bouquets of lily of the valley and yellow blossoms of forsythia. Miss P. Fitzgerald, Mrs. E. Hickey and Mrs. Fred Beeby invited the guests into the tearoom.

A bake table in charge of Mrs. E. Bradshaw with Mrs. G. Diment co-convening, was kept busy selling a fine assortment of home baking.

Mrs. H. Wright convened the apron and fancy work table, assisted by Mrs. William Adams, where a variety of goods was offered that would fill many household needs.

Mrs. T. Day and Miss S. Berry convened the doll table, and the conveners of the white elephant table were Mrs. M. Bone, Mrs. G. Day, and Mrs. M. Button. A tempting candy display was looked after by Mrs. Green and Mrs. J. Wright.

The conveners had the assistance of other members of the Guild, who all worked hard to make the tea a success.

Treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. R. Hinchey, Mrs. Charles Ling, and Mrs. G. Winter.

DISPLAY WARDROBE

The work done by the Girls' Auxiliary during the 1965-66 season was on display. The main items comprised a spring wardrobe for a four year old girl. This consisted of a pretty blue coat and matching hat, and also a dress, slip, socks, undergarments, pyjamas, housecoat, shorts, slacks and several blouses. This wardrobe will be sent to be used in the mission field.

Also on display were booties made by each of the eleven members of the G.A. as social service project for the Belleville General Hospital. Ceramic teats and birdhouses added to the display and this constituted the G.A. handicraft project.

The G.A.. Study Book this year took the form of an imaginary trip to visit young people around the world; first in Canada, then the British Isles, Africa, India, Japan, Australia, the West Indies and finally back to Canada. In this connection, a diary of the trip and several posters were shown. Completing the display was the Girls' Auxiliary banner which was received by the G.A. members of Christ Church at the annual festival in Kingston for second place in competition work in the Diocese of Ontario.

No Plan To Pull Pills Off Market

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday approved birth control pills are relatively safe and there are no plans to pull them off the market.

Dr Ralph Smith, director of the administration's new drugs division, said "we are watching the situation all the time and we still think these drugs are safe."

He was commenting on a statement by Dr. Herbert Ratner, a public health officer at Oak Park, Ill., who said in a Toronto interview Monday he is convinced 12 women have died in the U.S. from the effects of these pills and urged the Canadian and U.S. governments to withdraw them from public use.

Dr. Smith said he is not familiar with the fatality figures used by Dr. Ratner, but recalled that a panel of medical experts had thoroughly investigated the relationship between the pills and thrombo-embolism—blood-clotting which can lead to death. The experts had concluded the incidence of this disease among women was no higher among those taking the pills than among those who did not take them.

Walter Janzen, head of the administration's public information division, said experts found the pills sometimes saved women's lives. These were women whose health would be endangered by pregnancy.

The administration suggested last year that some of the pills should be avoided by women who have certain cancers, liver diseases or a history of thrombophlebitis or pulmonary embolism.

As eye-catching display of antiques was the focal point of interest in Bridge Street United Church auditorium yesterday afternoon when "A.B.C (antiques, baking and candy) Tea" was held under the auspices of the United Church Women.

The event which drew many patrons considering other teas in the city, as well as prevailing high winds, was graciously convened by Mrs. Rex M. Chaplin, assisted by co-convener Mrs. D. W. Maddocks.

A colorful arrangement of lilacs and tulips mingled with sprays of spirea graced the table in the vestibule; also a blossoming magnolia tree, where treasurers Mrs. J. B. Casey and Mrs. E. G. Gurnett were in charge of ticket sales.

Upon entering the hall the guests were warmly greeted by Mrs. H. M. Davis, wife of the minister, and Mrs. Bryson Leslie, president of the U.C.W. Mrs. Don Williams was convener of the tea room, assisted by co-convener Mrs. R. M. Patterson, while the hostesses were Mesdames S. Hibberd, S. Gilmour, A. E. Miles, W. McGee, H. Seldon and C. MacDonald.

At the entrance to the cheery tea room was this white picket fence were two huge white wagon wheels accented by two tall wicker standards containing mauve lilacs, red tulips and spires blooms. Lending further attraction was a garden scene portraying the effect, "A cup of tea in the garden" background with a magnolia tree and a life-like robin perched in the branches of another. The decor for the tea was by Mrs. Wilbur Fox and Mrs. Gordon Locklin was in charge of publicity.

Pouring tea at the prettily appointed tea table with its Wedgwood china with centred with an artistic arrangement of shrimp pink gladioli with interlining philodendron, and four pink candles were: Mesdames W. Dallas, K. Bird, J. Reynolds, A. Quickert, A. Clare and R. Jeffries, Christian education director. The sextette guest tables with snow white linen cloths each bore a centrepiece of pink and white lilacs. Tasty refreshments were served and replenished by a number of other ladies of the group and Mrs. R. Clapp and Mrs. B. Kerr were the conveners for kitchen duties.

The three sales tables were highlighted with baskets filled to overflowing with variegated spring blooms suspended from the ceiling under the balcony, while each table had its own colorful centrepiece of blooms.

MANY ANTIQUES

The antique table, an innovation as far as teas are concerned in this area, drew a host of patrons with items including an oxen yoke, a bronze Viking ship, vases, a 70-year-old autograph book, intricately carved picture frames and many other items all displayed to full advantage. These were in charge of Mrs. Freeman Burrows. The homebaking table was laden with tempting delicacies with sales in charge of Mrs. J. S. Loynes. The candy table, a mecca of sweets, was convened by Mrs. Lyle Jones.

A nursery was provided for the little tots which was in charge of Mrs. Don Leslie.

Home and School News

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

The Bayside Home and School Club held its last meeting of the year recently when Mr. Blakely won the room count for the fifth time in a row. The Boy Scout troop and its leaders are pleased with the support shown by parents, 70 per cent of whom have bought advance tickets to a "Supper". An amount of $10 was voted for the purchase of sports equipment for the other two schools in the section. It was agreed that the students of this year's graduating class would pay half the cost of their class photo.

Sgt. Kirkwood of the Ontario Provincial Police gave a talk on Highway Safety. The incidents and accidents he spoke of were recalled from his experiences in investigating every accident in which a fatality occurred in this district. Some were shocking, some tragic, some ironic and some even humorous. Alcohol, speed and mechanical failure were the cause of most accidents. Some of the advice was: "keep the back seat, especially the back rings or straps clear, as heavy or sharp objects become lethal projectiles in a crash. Many fatalities result from broken necks resulting from being thrown forward in crashes.

The film "A Day In Court" showed the various types one encounters. It was recommended to deliberately and conscientiously do a good turn, its motto.

SIZES 9-19

BRIGHT AND BREEZY to wear, extra-easy to sew, and what's more Printed Pattern A586 is by the popular Mr. Mort! See how cleverly the back wraps surplice-style via shoestring ties that disappear under the waist and emerge through slits in the front. Contrast binding polishes off the neckline, armholes and ties. The skirt falls softly with just the right degree of flare to flatter the figure. The Original is in sporty cotton duck — consider also, homespun, denim, linen, rayon, shantung, pique.

Printed Pattern A586 is available in Misses' Sizes 9, 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 dress requires 3¼ yards 42-inch fabric, ¾ yard contrast fabric.

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers: I am very short-waisted and, therefore, it is difficult for me to obtain a comfortable foundation garment. I have tried nearly every brand on the market and I always find that they tend to fold over at my waistline. I am also allergic to the metal in garters and hooks. Can you advise me as where I can buy a short-waisted corselette, which has no metal? — Signed G. H., Summerside, P. E. I.

Dear G. H.: Have you tried asking your favorite store to take your measurements and to order the correct fitting for you? The sizing of foundation garments is sophisticated these days. There was a time, not many years ago, when, if you did not take a standard size, you were just out of luck. Fortunately, times have changed and now most well - known brands come in length as well as width measurements. I am sure that if you inform the buyer of the store about your difficulty, the store will do everything possible to see that you are correctly fitted. You may be advised to try a bra and girdle rather than the one-piece corselette.

You are not alone with your metal allergy. So many women have suffered this way, that a great many foundation garments are now made with garters of plastic. Even hooks at the back and on girdles usually have a cotton or silk velvet strip to prevent the metal from touching the skin.

Dear Pegg Rogers: I am completely fed up with all those tags which I find on children's wear these days. I recently bought a pair of shorts for my four-year-old son. These shorts were labelled washable, drip-dry. I am sure that you would assume they would need no ironing. Anyway I did. I washed them in the automatic washer and dried them in the dryer and I do not think I have ever seen such a bedraggled pair of pants. I could not get the creases out even when I ironed them — much against my wishes. — Signed T. K.

Dear T. K.: The shorts were labelled correctly. They should have been washed in the washing machine then taken dripping wet and hung out on the line, to drip-dry. Most of these drip-dry fabrics have a "memory" for creases. When you sent them through the washer and into the dryer, they dried with the creases in them. They become crushed in the washing and then the dryer heat preserves the wrinkles.

The labels on ready-to-wear are usually thorough in their instructions, but there have been so many new developments in fabrics lately, that it is difficult to keep up with them all. Try re-washing the shorts and follow the instructions to the letter.

If you have a question on fashion just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Mother of Two at 27 Soon Admitted to Bar

By DAN POWERS

EDMONTON (CP) — Olga Kempo's love of man led her not only into marriage and motherhood but into his career as well.

John Kempo, a young lawyer about to be admitted to the Alberta bar when they married in May, 1957, suggested casually during the honeymoon that his bright, attractive bride should become a lawyer too.

Mrs. Kempo, despite the often conflicting interests of making a home and having two children, took up the suggestion and went to law school.

Now, seven years after her marriage with a six-year-old son and a four-year-old daughter, Mrs. Kempo, 27, is a graduate lawyer about to complete her bar examination and become a magistrate, the third woman magistrate in Alberta's history and the only one in the province now.

She grew up as Olga Porayko and completed high school at Vegreville, a farming community 85 miles east of Edmonton.

INTEREST IN MEDICINE

Her early interest was in the health field—three sisters are nurses, a brother is a pharmacist and another is a medical student—and for a while considered studying to be a doctor.

In Edmonton after completing high school, she worked as an apprentice pharmacist, a librarian and a secretary before deciding eventually to study nursing at University of Alberta.

But meeting John Kempo as a handsome young law student at a nurses dance changed her mind. He and his friends fired her interest in law and a few months before marriage she left nursing school to become a legal stenographer.

For a year after marriage she worked as her husband's stenographer and then enrolled in law school in the fall of 1958.

She found it difficult being both student and housewife at first, particularly when the children came.

HIRED BABY SITTERS

But classes took up only half days and baby sitters filled in when she was away from the home at school.

"I almost got discouraged in my first year. I was pregnant and started to chicken out a little. I was tempted to leave."

But she persisted with her double duties and graduated from law school in 1962. She has been articling with a law firm and writes her bar examination in June.

She applied to the government for a Crown prosecutor's job but drew the magistrate's appointment instead. She will preside in a small-debts court.

Mrs. Kempo believes her own story emphasizes the fact that women, even wives and mothers, can enter fields formerly dominated by men.

"Women can make their lives fuller if their husbands will only encourage them," she says.

Both Kempos agree that one area where their mutual encouragement and co-operation will not extend is in the new lady magistrate's court.

Lawyer John Kempo could conceivably be called upon to plead a case before Magistrate Olga Kempo, but they intend to avoid that situation.

"Somebody might get the wrong idea," says Mrs. Kempo.

JOIN CELEBRATION

FREEPORT, Ont. (CP) — Nurses at the Freeport Sanitorium helped Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harnack of Breslau, Ont., celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary. When Mr. Harnack arrived to visit his 87-year-old wife, a patient there, he found the nurses had arranged a setting of roses, given Mrs. Harnack a bouquet and put up a banner proclaiming the anniversary.

LAW AND MARRIAGE — Olga Porayko was a student nurse at the University of Alberta when she met law student John Kempo at a dance. He and his friends fired her interest in law and seven years after her marriage to John she is soon to become Alberta's third woman magistrate. (CP Photo)

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Few, it turns out, are gifted with the talent to accept a compliment graciously. But fewer still know how to accept an apology properly.

There are, unhappily, some people whose arrogance and sense of self-importance make it virtually impossible for them to believe that they could ever be in the wrong. Far from feeling the need to apologize for their wounding words or acts, they do not even see the need to explain them.

Most people, however, are quite willing to explain a misinterpreted action that seemed to offend another. They are prepared to acknowledge their error, if friendly and helpful attention is drawn to it. Some are even prepared to ask for forgiveness. Yet, often, such apologies are unpleasantly rejected, because of the rising anger and the surging sense of self-importance in the heart of the "injured" one. Unhappily, when the wounded one believes that he's got his "enemy" where he wants him — in a cringing posture — he will often refuse to listen even to sincere words of apology. Clearly, it takes a much character to know how to accept an explanation or an apology as it takes to offer one. Arrogant men, you can be certain, will neither ask for nor grant forgiveness.

At best, life is too short to be little. Why then do we harbour grudges — real, feigned, or imaginary? Why not ask our friends directly: "What's happened to change your attitude to me? What have I done to make you so strange?" It may turn out that we have assumed more than we should — and our fears of friendship's loss may be exaggerated and unnecessary. If so, it is surely well to know this, to rid ourselves of unwelcome and unwanted jealous and meet our friends again fully and whole-heartedly.

COMMUNICATION

Even if we surmised correctly, and our friends — for good or evil reason — are wroth with us, it is better to know why, than to sulk or boil over, without an opportunity to explain ourselves or to hear them out.

The most serious need of the human heart is to communicate — to tell of our feelings and hurts or patiently to hear those of others.

It is when the lines of communication break down — when nobody's talking and nobody's listening — that even the best of us think and act the worst.

Quick Salmon Loaf

by Mary Moore

My sister-in-law Wyn made this salmon loaf for a quick Saturday night supper.

QUICK SALMON LOAF:

One 1-lb. can red or pink salmon, 2 eggs, ¾ cup crushed crackers, ½ cup hot milk, 2 or 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons grated onion (or 1 tablespoon dried onion flakes), 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon chopped canned pimiento (optional), ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper.

Drain the salmon, remove bones, and flake it in mixing bowl. Beat eggs slightly and add them and add remaining ingredients. Turn into buttered medium-sized loaf pan and smooth the top. Stand loaf pan in larger shallow pan containing boiling water and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

NOTE:

This salmon mixture may be baked in 8 individual buttered baking dishes but they require only 20 minutes at 375 deg Fahr. and they, too, should be baked standing in pan of boiling water.

Wyn served with it her famous

BOILED WHITE ONIONS IN GREEN PEA SAUCE:

To serve 4 you will need at least 8 or 10 white onions (sold in 2-lb. bag costing about 39c) Peel and cut onions in halves and cook in plenty of salted water until tender. Drain. (Note: If desired pour boiling water over onions, bring to boil and drain. This blanching makes the cooked onions a little less strong. Then add more boiling water to cover and cook until tender.)

Meanwhile, make Green Pea Sauce: Melt 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, stir in 4 tablespoons flour and ¾ teaspoon salt until blended. Stir in 2 cups milk and stir until thick. Add ½ to 1 cup fresh frozen green peas and heat just to boiling. Do not burn. Pour over drained onions.

NOTE:

Wyn sometimes uses other cooked green vegetables she might have on hand such as 1 cup cooked chopped asparagus or green beans or even chopped broccoli.

Another Wyn special is

HERBED CELERY AND TOMATOES:

One 1-lb. can tomatoes, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 cups celery sliced diagonally into 1" pieces, 1 tea spoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon basil, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Drain tomatoes; reserve liquid. Melt butter or margarine. Add celery, reserved tomato juice, salt, pepper, basil and sugar. Cover and simmer until celery is tender (15 minutes). Add tomatoes, stir gently and simmer for 5 minutes longer. Serves 4. A welcome change.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

DESERONTO — Some 77 girls and 60 mothers were present for the mother and daughter supper of the Girl Guides and Brownies held at the Lions hall last Wednesday evening. The meal was a potluck supper provided by the mothers and was most enjoyable.

Mrs. Ralph Kimmett extended a gracious welcome to those attending.

Captain Van Vlack introduced the members of the head table and the toast to the mothers was presented by Linda Kimmett, and replied to by Mrs. D. Reid. Com. Brennan gave the toast to the Guiders and Mrs. Heinge responded on behalf of the Guiders

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Lott trophy to the best all-around Guide of the year and was won this year by Marion Knight. A plaque to the runner-up for 1966 was presented by Lieut. Morden and the plaque to the 1963 winner was presented by Capt. VanVlack. A presentation of a gift to former Guide Captain—Mrs. R. Huffman was made by Mrs. S. Knapp.

William Schell officiated for the showing of some interesting films and following this the moving up ceremony and the enrollment of two new Brownies was conducted by Mrs. E. Keech. Marion Jackson and Wendy Smith were enrolled in the Brownies and Kathy Caron and Anne Jackson moved up to the Guides from the Brownies.

Successful Living

Jealousy Cause of Conflict With Teens Says Writer

DEAR DORIS — I read your column every day and I am very glad there is someone for our poor mixed-up teen-agers to turn to. When you think of the attitude some parents take towards their children my heart goes out to them. I think today we haven't got problem children; we have problem parents.

This world is going at such a pace we just can't cope with it so therefore we shut our eyes to it. We have to blame someone so the teen-ager is our most logical suspect because we are jealous. There is so much jealousy mixed in with it it just isn't funny.

I have one teen-ager and one who will be in her teens shortly so. I am talking about something I know. They aren't angels but they do discuss most of their problems with us, which I think is the answer to a lot also. — NOW IT'S OFF MY CHEST.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NOW — I hadn't thought of that jealousy bit.

Last night I addressed a church group of teen-agers and parents and my radar sensed that same old barrier of silence between the generations that I've gone on about before. Breaking it down isn't easy. But it's lifesaving' and worth much effort.

DEAR DORIS — My cousin and I are very much in love. However, as we are related, Joe feels it is impossible for us to marry. We both attend the United Church of Canada.

Please give me some information on this subject. I am — VERY HOPEFUL.

DEAR VERY HOPEFUL — Far from impossible. Cousins frequently marry and produce fine families. Risk is involved when their is a hereditary weakness (such as tendency to tuberculosis, cancer, diabetes). If such weakness comes down to the next generation through both marriage partners, it might then be twice as pronounced.

• • •

Confidential to C.I.S. — For a pen pal in England I would suggest that you write to Mrs. Hilda McNutt, Director of Overseas Correspondences, c/o United Nations Association in Canada, 329 Bloor Street W., Toronto 5, Ontario.

• • •

(Just putting your poser on paper helps. When writing to Doris, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply.)

Eamon de Valera to Pay First Visit to Canada

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Eamon de Valera, paying his first visit to Canada June 1, dedicated his life to the now-familiar profession of goading the British lion until it goes away.

The 81-year-old president of Ireland will be greeted by Governor-General Georges P. Vanier as the honored prime minister and head of a respected nation.

The only rebel leader to escape the death sentence after the Easter rising of 1916, de Valera became the burning symbol of Irish nationalism during the dark days of "the troubles" and later the prime architect of the Republic of Eire.

He led his country for 21 years between 1932 and 1959 and lived to see Ireland and Irish discontent—hence a contradiction in terms—play a vital role in world affairs.

Yet there was a time, not so long ago, when a divided Ireland seethed with hatred and de Valera was treated by Englishmen as the brigand chieftain of "a race of treacherous murderers."

LIVING ARGUMENT

The story of this tall, hawk-like revolutionary - turned-statesman — a sort of Celtic George Washington — is the story of Ireland itself. And the story of Ireland is one that men in Asia and Africa struggling against British colonial rule were to learn by heart.

The principal theme in de Valera's life is his obstinate, unyielding determination to free Ireland—first from the British rulers and then from itself.

He has been called "a study in single - mindedness," and Lloyd George, who once tried to treat with him, gave up in despair because "whenever I tried to bring him down to the present day, back he went to Cromwell."

The description by William Butler Yeats, the poet of the Irish revolution, is still often quoted: "He is a living argument rather than a living man; all propaganda, no human life—but not bitter, hysterical or unjust. . . ."

LITTLE BITTERNESS

There is certainly little bitterness left today. The Irish Republican Army has been disbanded, Eire and Ulster are learning to live with each other and an Anglo-Irish commentator like John Grigg can even say that some day Ireland, on her own initiative, may rejoin the United Kingdom.

De Valera himself, after an amiable first meeting with Prince Philip and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home at President Kennedy's funeral in Washington last year, told the protocol official who arranged the meeting: "You may have achieved more than you know."

The visit to the United States was a homecoming. De Valera was born in Brooklyn of an Irish immigrant mother and a Spanish father who died when his son was two. The boy was sent back to Ireland and raised on an uncle's farm in Limerick. The accident of his U.S. birth was the only thing that prevented de Valera from being shot after the bloody fighting in the streets of Dublin in 1916. Britain didn't want to offend American feelings at that crucial point in the First World War.

ESCAPED FROM PRISON

He spent the next 10 years in and out of prisons—both British and Irish. At one point he made a daring and romantic escape, using a rope and a skeleton key, from Lincoln Jail. At another he was milking pro-Irish sentiment in America for a massive $6,000,000 to help the cause across the sea.

Today de Valera's opponents—he no longer has any enemies—believe one of his few major mistakes was his refusal to accept a compromise treaty with Britain in 1921, the treaty that partitioned the six northern counties from the 22 counties of the south.

His obstinacy precipitated a violent civil war, the wounds of which were long in healing. It was not until 1932 that de Valera—"Dev" or "the long fellow" to his followers — was able to take control and salvage the independent Ireland from the social and economic ills of 400 years.

"THE CHIEF" — Irish President Eamon de Valera, whose escape from a British prison after the Dublin rising of Easter 1916 made headlines around the world, will be greeted with honor by the Governor-General when he visits Canada June 1. Last surviving leader of the Irish revolution, de Valera — "Dev" or "the Chief" to his followers — met Prince Philip and British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home for the first time last year at President Kennedy's funeral in Washington. He later wrote to the official who arranged the meeting: "You may have achieved more than you know." (CP Photo from AP)

His medicine combined mysticism and integrity and he knew where to find it. As he once said:

"If I wish to know what the Irish want I look into my own heart."

Blue Bar on Each Side Adds Glamor to Flag Says Heraldry Expert

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The vertical blue bar on each end of Canada's proposed flag is not correct heraldry, but adds glamor to the flag, Commander Alan Beddoe said today.

Cmdr. Beddoe, the government's expert in the field of heraldry, who has studied flag designs since 1946 and created crests for the armed forces, spoke as an individual on the subject, not on behalf of the government, he emphasized.

Disclaiming authorship of the flag design, Cmdr. Beddoe said at a press briefing he is merely a civil servant who made "a pragmatic distillation of many minds and authorities" in putting the design together.

It is based on three maple leaves joined on a single stem and the colors red and white, the national symbol and colors approved for Canada in 1921 by royal warrant issued by King George V.

The first time maple leaves were used in heraldry to represent Canada was in 1868 when they appeared in the arms of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

At that time, a design for a Great Seal of Canada was drawn up employing the shields of the four original provinces—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

NEVER AUTHORIZED

The seal was never officially authorized and no national crest was approved but it continued in use with changes as additional provinces joined Confederation until 1921.

By that time, there were nine provincial shields, which an authority described as a fish chowder of heraldic designs.

In 1919, the Conservative government of Robert Borden appointed a small committee of senior officials to study the armorial bearings of Canada, and in 1921 the new seal was adopted. It was approved by the Royal College of Heralds and issued by the Crown, the fountainhead of all heraldic honors.

Cmdr. Beddoe said that in preparing sketches for these arms, the Canadian maple leaves had always been shown in red on white. But Mr. Borden—later Sir Robert Borden—said the leaves should be green to denote Canada's young, growing status rather than the color of mature leaves.

They first appeared officially in 1921 as green and later were corrected.

Basically, Cmdr. Beddoe said, it would be correct heraldry to have the new flag without the vertical blue bar on each side. The blue strips, each one-tenth the width of the flag, "are not correct heraldry—quite wrong in fact," but were added for glamor.

"In adding the blue, we have perhaps a more glamorous flag."

Cmdr. Beddoe said the pale blue of the United Nations flag was considered but rejected because it would seem to disappear against a blue sky. He described the proper colors as "a good strong blue and red."

WHITE CRITICIZED

There has been criticism of a white flag because it denotes surrender," Cmdr. Beddoe added. But he described that as a fable.

White was an honorable color in heraldry, representing peace, faith and humanitarianism.

He noted the flag of the International Red Cross is a red cross on a white field. The banner of St. George was also red on a white field, and Jerusalem's flag was gold on white.

White was also the basic color of the Crusaders' flags.

Asked whether the new flag might not get soiled easily, Cmdr. Beddoe said: "Well, wash the thing. People would honor a flag more if they took more care of it."

Asked what happens now to the Canadian Red Ensign, he said it is essentially "a sea flag" used by the Canadian merchant marine as a special privilege granted in 1892 by the British admiralty.

There has never been any proper authority for displaying the Red Ensign on land, he added. Its use on government buildings in Canada and abroad was authorized in 1944 by "cabinet order-in-council without the approval of the Crown."

Cmdr. Beddoe describes the maple leaves as stylized.

REPORTER CRITICAL

A reporter said the stems look like a plumber's nightmare and should be curved.

Cmdr. Beddoe said the three leaves, with their many points, made such a "busy" design that they needed to be supported by strong, straight stems.

Pressed by reporters about the blue in the flag, he said "anybody that does not like the blue can take scissors and cut it off, but if Parliament and the Queen approve it, that's it."

He again emphasized that he spoke as an individual.

Kantastic scenes attended Nehru's death.

Within two hours after the announcement 50,000 sorrowing citizens of New Delhi had gathered outside Nehru's home in the capital.

Police struggled to hold the crowds back but as thousands more streamed out of streets police lines gave way and the crowds burst into the garden and surged up to the house.

By the time Nehru's body was taken from his bedroom and placed on the front steps of his house where it remained all night, the crowds of mourners had swelled to an estimated 250,000 persons.

A crowd estimated at 6,000 attacked an express train Wednesday night at Nagpur, in central India, in an apparent effort to hitch rides to the funeral.

Cabinet ministers, members of Parliament and leading citizens paid their last respects to Nehru earlier in the day, filing past the bed where his body lay.

DAUGHTER MOURNS

A red mark, made with a dab of sandalwood paste on Nehru's forehead, contrasted with the pallor of his face.

One member of Parliament, overcome by grief, sat outside the house on the front steps beating his head and wailing: "Where will you ever get the likes of him again."

Since Nehru fell ill in January, Lal Bahadur Shastri, like Nanda a former home minister, handled the prime minister's files and acted as a virtual deputy premier.

Shastri and Nanda, along with Mrs. Gandhi and Finance Minister T. T. Krishnamachari, were considered possible successors to Nehru.

Meanwhile, leaders of the world expressed shock and dismay at the loss of Nehru.

French President Charles de Gaulle paid tribute to Nehru as a "great statesman whose . . . qualities placed at the service of democracy, social progress, and peace, have deeply stamped themselves on the destiny of India and the world."

Premier Chou En-lai of Red China in a telegram to Mrs. Gandhi said he was "grieved to learn" of Nehru's death.

IS ACCEPTABLE

Shastri, 50, is regarded here as the most widely acceptable candidate to succeed Nehru.

Nanda, 65, a gaunt and devout Hindu, has wielded enormous power as home minister but few Indians believe he will succeed Nehru. Appointed to the home ministry last September, Nanda is a left-wing Socialist by conviction and set himself the target of cleaning up corruption in the nation's administration within two years or withdrawing from public life.

Krishnamachari, 64, a Brahmin—the top category in India's caste-system—comes from Madras. He apparently has been satisfied with his hold on the country's purse-strings and his control over the Indian economy. He was successful in business before he got into politics and has always specialized in finance and economics.

Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, is considered Shastri's greatest non-governmental rival to succeed her father. A widow, she has never served as a member of Parliament.

Mrs. Gandhi, 46, has carried out several missions abroad for her father. Her most recent mission was to attend the Kenya and Zanzibar independence celebrations last December.

HEADED PARTY

She has served on key Congress party committees and was its president for a year until she resigned for reasons of health. Mrs. Gandhi has made no public confession of political ambition but observers feel she might step forward if she felt her father's dreams for India were in danger of being thwarted.

Shastri made his name nationally in 1952 when he organized the Congress party's highly successful election campaign.

Shastri has also served as minister for railroads and transport, for commerce and industries, and as home minister, but resigned last September to devote himself to party work.

Unlike Nehru, who was a Brahmin like Krishnamachari and the scion of a wealthy family from Kashmir, Shastri was born into a middle-class family. His father, a schoolteacher and minor government official, died when Shastri was a year old.

He has not travelled extensively abroad and, until recently, in his duties as an undefficial deputy to Nehru, had little to do with foreign affairs.

Federal Govt. Still to Serve Quebec Eskimos

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal government will retain full responsibility for the education, health and welfare of Eskimos in Quebec, Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing said Wednesday.

Mr. Laing, in an interview, said his department expects to "minister" to Quebec's Eskimos until such time as these people take their place in the mainstream of Canadian life.

Ottawa and Quebec, he said, have not established any "report" on the province's request to assume full administrative control of its Eskimo population, but that Quebec may eventually be empowered to provide municipal services in its Eskimo communities.

In his only trip to northern Quebec, Mr. Laing said, "The Eskimos have indicated . . . that they don't want to change."

Nehru's Death Leaves Huge Vacuum in Indian Politics

By HAROLD MORRISON

Jawaharlal Nehru's death leaves a vacuum in Indian politics as well as in world diplomacy.

In terms of prestige and influence, this great pacifist and moderate was like a one-man supreme court. No matter what nuclear brinkmanship behind the word of the global leaders, these juggernauts quivered at the thought of provoking Nehru's anger.

For, in a sense, India is the balance wheel of Asian politics, the pivot between East and West and the cauldron for boiling capitalism and communism into an acceptable economic soup for India's masses.

Thus, what Nehru is a tragedy for India and the scores of other countries seeking peace with honor. Outsari Lal Nanda, the man chosen to succeed him at least temporarily has a background in labor and economics, and this may help his country, but he also is steeped in introspection and mysticism.

Indications are the fine balance Nehru represented between Eastern culture and Western training, molded into a lofty intellect concentrated on world problems, will be replaced by concentration by regional bickering and backyard triviality.

And out in the political wings beyond Nanda and Lal Bahadur Shastri, who may eventually succeed Nanda, stands the cunning V. K. Krishna Menon, the former Nehru diplomatic adviser and anti-American sniper whose political future suddenly has revived. Some Western diplomats are convinced that ever Khrishna Menon gets his hands on the Indian government, he will beat a path to the Kremlin door.

Indian officials argue their country has been through the crucible of democracy and that any political transition will be accomplished within the democratic traditions. They maintain Nehru's party is strong and that stability is assured for many years to come.

But it is a fact free India has known only one prime minister —Nehru—and even this beloved person passed through torturous moments trying to keep his country together.

Poverty and hunger still stalk Indian streets. Aid is coming from both East and West but a lot of it is being sucked into military defence against the Communist Chinese, threat to the north and the Pakistani threat to the East and West.

Undoubtedly, the Western powers will intensify their support of Indian stability, knowing the conditions of turmoil that may edge the boundaries of peace.

Internal instability in India may whet the appetites for those beyond the borders. China may consider this an opportune time to pursue her pressure on the mountain passes; Pakistan may find it absolutely essential to let the Kashmir dispute be settled at once.

And at home, while Nanda's rule is to be only temporary there is no assurance he will try by all means possible to make his leadership permanent. His hands will be full. On the decisions he reaches may rest the destiny of a country and a continent.

Charles Tessier Fined $87 For Assault

PICTON (Staff) — Two cases took from ten until one p.m. as Magistrate T. Y. Wills held regular court here Wednesday.

Charles Tessier, 22, 78 Main Street Picton was fined a total of $87, when he was found guilty of a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm. He pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Crown witnesses testified that on May 8th, the accused did kick one Stanley McClelland of Bloomfield causing intense pain and suffering.

The examining and cross examining of the witnesses took about an hour and a half.

Roger Ferguson, who admitted to being only 17, told the court that on the day in question he had taken no drinks, but when the court told him he could give evidence under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, he admitted to having a couple of drinks.

Ferguson was with McClelland on Main Street in front of the Royal Hotel when the accused kicked McClelland. There was considerable variance in the times and places of the witnesses, but His Worship decided that in spite of what he termed "unreliable witnesses," it was indeed a fact that the accused had kicked McLelland, and that "regardless of what provocation it was much more force than was necessary."

Tessier admitted to drinking about 22 pints of beer on the day in question.

In the case of Floyd Wood, Belleville and Toronto, His Worship reserved judgment until Thursday when he will be in Picton court for a special hearing re Bruce Woodcock.

Wood was charged with breaking and entering and committing an indictable offense, in that he took some tools from the High Shore home of Margaret Large.

DENIES STATEMENT

It turned out that Wood had been living on and off at the Large home, while he was building a chimney and doing some gyproc work in some of the rooms. According to the accused, he was given the power tools he was charged with stealing, by Mrs. Large. Mrs. Large denied giving him the tools.

Wood also denied breaking and entering, as he testified that as long as he had lived there, the front door was never locked. He readily admitted taking the tools and selling them for $40 in Toronto, and giving the buyer a receipt. He made no attempt at concealing the fact that he took them and sold them.

Margaret (Mrs.) Large while on the stand, attempted three or four times to bring up a drinking problem of the accused, and Magistrate Wills had to speak quite sharply on at least two occasions.

Finally when he found it impossible to keep her from talking, he said, "you have had it," and she left the witness box.

"Here again there is a variance of evidence between two people," the magistrate said, "I will not conclude this today, but will give it further study and give my decision when I come to this court on Thursday afternoon," he concluded.

change the course of the debate. Most of the opposition had come from the Conservative benches. The party didn't decide on any firm strategy during a Wednesday caucus meeting, held a few hours after the flag and resolution were made public, except that the "two-flag" form of the resolution would be opposed. Another meeting was scheduled for today.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said he will support the new design although he would have preferred one leaf.

WANTS REFERENDUM

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said he would seek a national referendum because he didn't like the design.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said his group will suggest a new design. If that is not accepted, the government's proposed flag would be supported.

The new flag and resolution were made public early Wednesday along with another resolution that would declare O Canada the national anthem of Canada. God Save the Queen would be recognized as the Royal anthem in Canada.

Mr. Pearson later told the Commons that the flag resolution would be proceeded with first, and by Monday the House would know when this would be. A similar resolution would be presented to the Senate. There would be no bills involved.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Pearson said he thinks the design—which he was known to favor before the cabinet made the final decision — is "handsome and inspiring." He hoped it would pass through Parliament "shortly."

ASKS PLANS

When the daily question period began Wednesday, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked when the "two - flag policy" would come up for debate.

"... I hope that while there can be only one national flag for Canada, we will continue to honor the symbol of our allegiance to Her Majesty and our association with the Commonwealth," the prime minister replied.

Two Quebec members jumped up to criticize the mention of two flags in the resolution.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette - l'Assomption - Montcalm) and Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) were both in favor of dealing with the national flag by itself.

Mr. Pigeon said he was "humiliated" by the suggestion of two flags and Mr. Gregoire asked whether Canada would also fly the flags of the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But there was little pressure brought to bear on the government during the daily question period Wednesday. Previously, when the design was secret, there was a daily barrage of inquiries regarding the proposed flag, referred to as "Pearson's Pennant," "Pearson's - Progression" and "Matheson's Masterpiece."

KEEPER TO MATHESON

This latter phrase was a reference to John R. Matheson (L—Leeds), a student of heraldry who advised Mr. Pearson along with several others, including Cmdr. Alan Beddoe, a retired naval officer.

Cmdr. Beddoe, offering his personal views on the flag, said Wednesday that the blue bars were not correct from the heraldry viewpoint, but they added glamor to the design.

The bars were put in the flag to represent the "From Sea to Sea" motto, but under the rules of heraldry this should be represented by a wavy, horizontal line. Canada's official colors are red and white.

The use of three maple leaves as a Canadian emblem began in 1868 when they were first applied to the arms of Ontario and Quebec. Gradually they crept on to dozens of Canadian articles, and in 1921 the three leaves on a single stem were officially proclaimed the emblem of Canada. At the same time the country's colors were declared.

The main design of the new flag now occupies 1-63th of the Red Ensign the bottom of the shield on the Canadian arms.

WERE PROMISES

Although both the flag and anthem were part of the Liberal party's last two election campaign promises, and both issues were due to be raised before next April, they developed with unexpected suddenness in the last two weeks.

First inkling of immediate action came about two weeks ago when Prime Minister Pearson showed several possible flag designs to some reporters and said his government was prepared to stand or fall on the issue.

In quick succession, he took his argument before the Dominion Command of the Royal Canadian Legion—Canada's most powerful proponent for the Red Ensign—and had a decision approved by cabinet. Cuffed replicas of the flag were ready for distribution early Wednesday.

If Parliament gives it the stamp approval, the Queen will be asked to add her approval in the form of a Royal warrant as the fountainhead of all heraldic honors.

Some government officials have expressed hope that the flag could be flying by July 1. Another target date is in time for the Queen's visit to Canada in the autumn.

graded French instruction in Manitoba schools, a better deal for French-speaking people who wish to send children to private schools, and wider official recognition in Manitoba of Ukrainian language instruction.

The parochial and public schools issue has been a particularly evident one recently in Manitoba, where no government aid is provided parochial schools.

Most such institutions in the province are Roman Catholic. An oft-heard argument is that persons wishing to send children to private schools must pay to support these schools while at the same time pay through taxes to support public schools which they do not use.

IS NO DISPUTE

Judge W. J. Lindal of Winnipeg, speaking in English near the close of his meeting, said "Nobody disputes that there are two founding nations in Canada."

People who came to Canada later than the English and French, he said, must be given consideration.

But French and English were entitled to be assured their language would be preserved where there is a major body of French or English people.

The judge drew applause on suggesting Manitoba's ethnic makeup should require that the French language be preserved in the province.

He said that where there is a concentration of people of other ethnic background, the language of these people might be taught at certain levels in the schools, but it should not be the language of instruction.

Two Indians participating in an afternoon discussion suggested Indians be recognized as a founding race, and receive equal privileges with people of English and French background.

City Kids Invade Farm

YOUNG PONIES AND YOUNG CHILDREN seem to get along well together, even when the pony is being nearly smothered by the kids. These primary students of Harry J. Clarke School met their first pony at the Holden farm near Moira yesterday, when neighbor Lois Forsythe came over after lunch.

ANYONE FOR A ROMP IN THE HAYMOW? — All the primary students of Harry J. Clarke School had their chance yesterday when they visited the Holden farm near Moira. Most of them had never seen a haymow before.

IN MOIRA, groups of pupils from Harry J. Clarke School got a good look at a small village, and a country store yesterday, on haywagon trips in from the Holden farm. Frederick Thibaudeau of Belleville drove the tractor.

Local School Students Enjoy Visit

By ANDY TURNBULL

What happens when a squirm of 242 school children, all in primary grades, descend on a farm for the day? Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Holden of Moira, and the primary teachers of Harry J. Clarke School discovered yesterday.

The farm may recover, in time, but the kids will probably never be the same again.

Miss Elizabeth Holden, a grade one teacher at the school for two years, originated the scheme. Raised on a farm herself, she was appalled at the city children's ignorance of farm life. Her suggestion, that the primary grades be taken out for a day at her family's farm, near Moira, was talked over among the primary school teachers and finally taken to school principal E. S. Fairman. Miss Holden already knew her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Holden, would be glad to co-operate.

The visit, ("Exercise Country Cousin," Mr. Fairman called it), was yesterday. With the school board enthusiastic, the parents of the children, city police, Ontario Provincial Police and Mr. and Mrs. Holden all ready to co-operate, it still took more than a week to prepare. There was a little matter of transport for the 242 children, seven teachers and about thirty-five parents who were to assist the teachers on the big day. Thirty-four of the parents brought their own cars to help solve the problem, and Frederick Thibaudeau, one of the parents, did a bit more than his share. He borrowed a new school bus from his employers, Elliott Motors, for the day.

POLICE GIVE ESCORT

City and provincial police helped with the transport too. Rather than turn a 36-vehicle convoy out on the roads without an escort, city police sent along the school safety officer, Const. Robert Hall, to lead the procession and the provincial police sent a cruiser to follow behind, from the city limits to the farm. Miss Holden rode with Constable Hall in the city police station wagon to lead the way and the school bus, immediately behind the police car, flew an "Elmer" safety pennant for identification. All vehicles drove with their lights on.

Confusion was avoided, almost, at the farm by dividing the children into small groups with parents to keep track of each, leaving the teachers free to teach. Mr. Thibaudeau was put to work on the farm tractor, towing wagonloads of children into the village, where they inspected M. H. Thompson's general store, (many had never been inside a village general store), and had a general slow-motion view of the countryside.

Teachers, some of them new to farms themselves, conducted tours of the house, the barn, the fields and the woods. Of the tours, the barn was probably the most popular. With Mr. Holden in attendance, the kids got closeup looks at a bull, calves, pigs and piglets and a milking machine in the basement and at a grainary, hay elevator and a haymow upstairs. Each group was allowed a five-minute riot in one of the haymows.

COWS RETIRE

Outside, the kids were fascinated by the outdoor rural mailbox, by a boxed spring, by the woods and by the fact that, without regular garbage collection farmers must burn their garbage on in a dump. A frog in one of the farm ponds survived the rocks thrown by some of the boys and a hand pump, left over from earlier days, worked for the first time in years. The cows had the good sense to retire to the woods when the board descended, but not before the kids had a good look at them.

Sandwiches had been brought by the children from home. Lunch was preceded by a washup in old - fashioned tin lavadry tubs, and followed by soft drinks supplied at half cost through the PTA by a local soft drink firm.

Lois Forsythe, a neighbor's daughter, showed up by arrangement after lunch on a two-year-old pony, and made her escape after the pony was half-smothered by kids. Rex, the farm dog, survived the petting, but if he isn't spoiled now he never will be. There were no fatalities among the kids or livestock.

The day was a complete success, according to Mr. Fairman and the Holdens. The kids had their introduction to a farm, the animals were — perhaps reluctantly, introduced to the kids. Mr. Fairman said the operation will be repeated next year, if arrangements can be made.

ARRESTS MADE

LIMA (AP) — More than 50 persons have been arrested on charges of looting or inciting violence in connection with Sunday's soccer game riot and stampede that caused 328 deaths, Peru's government announced.

COWS ARE SHOWN IN BOOKS, but not as big as they are in real life. Primary students of Harry J. Clarke School got a good look at real live cows yesterday, on the Holden farm at Moira. The cows retired to the woods soon after the kids arrived.

PIGLETS IN THE BARN fascinated the Harry J. Clarke School students yesterday, when they visited the Holden farm near Moira. The kids had trouble believing that the piglets were on a one-way route to a freezer.

FARMER J. W. HOLDEN of Moira was host yesterday, to 242 primary students of Harry J. Clarke School. City Police Constable Robert Hall, (right), school safety officer, escorted the students to and from the farm.

IT WAS WORK FOR FARM KIDS to draw water, when these pumps were in regular use. But for Gary Barton and Trent Hutchinson of Belleville, pumping water was fun at the Holden farm near Moira yesterday.

DESERONTO

Last Year's Audit Not Yet Received; Ratepayers Told

DESERONTO—At the meeting of the Deseronto Ratepayers' Association on Monday night the interim report of the auditor engaged by the association to obtain certain information from the records and audits of the town, revealed that the 1963 audit had not yet been received by the town. This prevented the tabling of the necessary data required by the solicitor of the association. Questions by members present elicited the information that these audits were required by law to be completed by March 31st and as a result the association passed a motion that the Department of Municipal Affairs be asked to intercede and require the audit to be completed immediately.

Information contained in the interim report revealed an increase in the mill rate of the town from 90.52 for residential in 1958 to 186.08 in 1964 and from 107.69 for commercial in 1958 to 184.85 in 1964. The cost of the pay for council members in 1963 amounted to $3,144.00 and the deficit of the council, as shown in the accounts of the municipality was $7,201.53. Discussion on the present financial status of the town brought forth the statement that the April financial statement of town council revealed that the town owed the bank in excess of $90,000 at the end of that month in demand notes.

WILL PROBE FURTHER

As soon as the audit is completed and turned into the town further investigation will be made by the auditor engaged by the association to reveal definitely the condition of the town finances and the report will be submitted to the solicitor for him to determine if an inquiry is advisable.

Also present at the meeting to address the gathering on behalf of the Ontario Water Resources Commission was John K. Theil, District Engineer, Sanitary Engineering Division. Mr. Theil gave the meeting a brief outline of the organization and operation of the Ontario Water Resources and told that the O.W.R.C. is for the purpose of building and financing water supplies for municipalities and to supervise the operation of plants. He outlined the financing of projects and stated that the commission had full control over the pollution of water, investigated all cases of pollution and made every effort to correct the cause of pollution.

PROBLEM COMPLICATED

Speaking specifically about the problem at Deseronto he stated that the problem in Deseronto was complicated by three factors. These are the lack of ground water, the condition of the water in the Bay of Quinte and the financial condition of the town. Because of the last factor he advised that the ability of the town to pay for a prolonged program would very well limit activities and any project taken in Deseronto would be by stages and it would be some time before the desire of the town for filtered water would be realized. Artificial cyle treatment is required for the water from the Bay according to Mr. Theil and a pilot project was to be instituted very shortly to determine this.

In the question period following he was asked why some action had not been taken to correct the pollution from the local canning factory, a condition that the O.W.R.C. had known for three years. Mr. Theil said that another investigation had been carried out three weeks ago and a report had been given to the canning industry. This condition was most difficult because the canning industry was considered a depressed industry at this time and the emphasis of the O.W.R.C. was for co-operation wherever possible.

Mr. Theil was also asked if the local B.I.C. had asked for engineering advice before installing the new intake at the pump-house two years ago. Concerning the cost to the consumers for the project the meet. ng was advised that the cost would be almost prohibitive for the consumer and that the town had almost reached the limit of borrowing power.

Mr. Theil said the first step was to ascertain the cost and then apply to the Municipal Board. Another question regarding the water in the Napanee River was answered to the effect that the O.W.R.C. were keeping a very close check on this and he also stated that there was a very heavy concentration of algae in the whole Bay.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

They were Madison Avenue types, frightfully dressed from narrow-brimmed hats to stiletto-pointed Italian shoes.

Polite yawns, covered very gently with the cutest of a well-manicured hand evidenced their boredom. Business tycoons, no doubt, enforced to stay overnight.

They nursed daiquiries in a city lounge. It was an early hour and the "regulars" had not yet arrived.

"How," ventured one, "would one pass oneself in a place like this during the summer?" Biddy-biddy had no answer.

Let's leave the bored Bean Brummels to their planter's punches and daiquiries and glasses at the sports means for the summer. We have about everything the athletic chick have cooked up from pigeon-racing on Catalla to yacht-racing downt.

For those to whom the diamond is the best friend, there's baseball from senior, South Hastings, little league, junior and minor, including tyke, peewee, bantam and midget.

There's variety for the softball butt. It ranges from the Belleville and District League through commercial, interdepartmental, Prince Edward North Shore, Thurlow and Sidney townships, Trent Valley and a girls' team to minor (tyke, squirt, peewee and bantam.)

There's something for everybody, so each to his own. Harness racing addicts can spend Saturday night nests after the wrestling fan is satiated on Friday evenings.

The knights of the triggers have their bandgun clubs and trap-and-gun associations. "Racqueteers" from nine to almost ninety will play on city and district tennis courts. Soccer fans will see games either at Ewick's Island or Trenton RCAF and Batawa.

I think 1964 will see more special sports events than in any previous season.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club has special tournaments slated, including the famous Curtis Gold Cup, a perennial Civic Holiday event that usually attracts some 64 rinks from all parts of the province.

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club headed by its head professional is first course to be being has scheduled a Golf Festival, a three-day affair culminating in a special professional tournament on Civic Holiday. This in conjunction with the usual card of tournaments, cup matches and championships.

Next Wednesday boxing arises from the ashes of a ten-year demise with the 1 Canadian Guards' crack team of athletes staging an outstanding exhibition card at Memorial Arena. This show will be garnished with weightlifting and judo exhibitions.

Aside from the weekly meets, harness racing will present a special event on the Blue Diamond Chester Stakes, during the Belleville Fair. Already, 8 am said, some 26 horses have been entered.

A special "Railroad Week" extravaganza, slated for mid-June to mark the track removal from Pinnacle Street, provides more special events than an indoor presentation. The track removal will give impetus in the drag-strip heats scheduled daily about five p.m. between Bridge and Victoria Ave. Anyone can enter.

This summer will be the proudest season in the history of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadrons. Raised one of the best in the national Canadian Power Squadrons, it will sponsor the International as well as the district rendezvous, both to be held off the Trenton RCAF Station. All boat a dozen squadrons or more from United States and Canadian centres will go into competition.

For lovers of "white wings" heeling to breezes on Quinte's sparkling waters, the Bay of Quinte Yacht Squadron will present an outstanding summer program of racing.

Hydroplane racing fans, I'm afraid are going to be disappointed. Harbor-front and other objections, I'm told, caused the city Parks Board to refuse permission for hydroplanes to race off Victoria Harbor.

If there's nothing mentioned to please the bored Bean Brummels of the bay, they can always "black-snake" in summer cottages or cabin. The yacht, boat, pleasure and trout haunts are not petioned. But if they desire good clean swimming without going out of the city, I advise them to try a motel pool or bring along their own bathtubs.

In lieu of any of the above recreations, I suggest chess, checkers, mah-jong, monopoly or good old-fashioned muscle-wrenching duels of tiddley-winks.

Belinsky No 'Play-Bo'-Wins No. Two

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Good shows, fine food, beautiful dames? I just don't dig that crap any more."

It's strictly a soda pop and early-to-bed world now for Bo Belinsky who, Wednesday, added pitched his first complete game and squalled his entire 1962 victory total by whipping the Los Angeles Angels defeated Minnesota Twins 4-1 in the opener of a twi-nighter.

It's been two years and 23 days since Belinsky, a veteran pool shark and rookie pitcher, announced his arrival on the major league scene by hurling a no-hitter. Last year he made his first exit, shipped to the minors after a 2-7 record.

This time, he says, things are going to be different.

HAVE TO BEHAVE

Against the Twins, Belinsky allowed his only run on Harmon Killebrew's 12th homer but scattered seven hits, struck out eight and did not issue a walk. The Twins, however, came back to take the nightcap, winning 4-3 on Don Mincher's homer in the 12th inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit's Ed Rakow stopped Baltimore Orioles for the second time in three games and preserved a 2-1 Tiger victory. New York Yankees whipped Cleveland Indians 7-4 and Washington Senators edged Boston Red Sox 4-3 in 11 innings. Chicago White Sox were rained out in Kansas City.

Albie Pearson scored the tie-breaking run for the Angels in the third inning of the opener when he singled, stole second and scampered home on a single by Lee Thomas. In the nightcap, Bob Allison's 11th homer produced an early Minnesota lead, but the Angels scored twice in the eighth to tie the score. Mincher's seventh homer decided it.

STOPS ORIOLES

Rakow, who pitched two-hit relief for 5 1/3 innings against the Orioles Monday, stopped Baltimore on two hits over the final 4 1-3 this time. The Tigers broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth with a three-run rally, Don Demeter starting things for the Yankees. scoring the lead run on a wild pitch by Dave McNally. Al Kaline later homered for Detroit.

Bill Skowron and Chuck Hinton homered for the Senators as they built a 7-3 lead but Dick Stuart's second homer of the game eventually tied the score in the seventh. Each team scored in the eighth before Washington pulled it out in the 11th against Dick Radatz when Jim King reaved on Dick Phillips' single.

At Downing scattered seven hits and chipped in with a triple as the Angels beat the Yankees. Downing had the Indians shut out until Larry Brown homered in the eighth. Roger Maris hit an inside-the-park homer and Clete Boyer hit a two-run homer as they bulk a 7-3 lead but Dick Kelley's ninth inning single drove in the winning run.

City S. S. Champions Honored at Banquet

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor)

"The tools of education and the tools you acquire in sport equip you to meet a life grown more complex every day."

This was the keynote of an address given Quinte COSSA champions at the second annual Banquet of Champions here last night.

The speaker was Fred Spambati, well-known CBC TV and radio sports announcer and commentator.

The students, coaches, teachers and guests heard some sound philosophy, good advice in a talk that was freckled with humorous anecdotes.

BCI's junior basketball champions and Moira's junior girls' volleyball cross-country and wrestling topnotch squads were the guests of honor at the function held at Quinte Secondary School.

TO GROUNDWORK

Sport in after life is the groundwork for subsequent efforts that enable students to have healthy mind and a strong body, Mr. Spambati said. He pointed out that the conditioning of the mental process and the development of the physical go hand in hand.

"You are not in high school for the fun of it" he said. "The purpose of education is always hovering over you. When you have commissioned mind and body you have the spirit of competition in both."

Students develop confidence and assurance from play. Determination, concentration resulting there to bring on the field as well.

"You cannot be thoughtless and be a winner".

Graduates face a tougher game, that of life, Mr. Spambati said. Winners at school, champions like others sustain more losses than wins. They must train themselves by working the qualities learned in class and on the field.

The speaker discounted luck as big factor in sport. Luck, he said, was a residue of the complete job done, a reward for dedication.

TRIBUTES PAID

"You are not lucky to be here as champions. You have applied what you have learned."

"You have developed respect for coaches, officials and teachers. You have developed the ability to play along with others either as an individual or in teamwork."

Mr. Spambati concluded with "You have the things that made you champions in school but you must search for the tools that will enable you to play a bigger game."

TRIBUTES PAID

Tributes were paid to the young champions by Alderman Ron Bailey representing Mayor Jack Ellis; Dr. Peter Loder representing the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and Mr. W. J. Musgrove of Moira B.S. representing the school's principals.

Mr. G. McGaughey of Moira was the master of ceremonies.

Tributes, too, were paid to those teachers of the various schools who give their services gratis in an assistant coaching capacity. They with regular coaches were guests.

They were introduced by physical directors Jack Mason, Quinte, Dave Bell, Moira and Stan Barbour, BCI.

Head table guests besides the speaker guest of honor, were Mr. E. A. Orr, superintendent of education, Alderman Bailey,

Trenton Clips Tweed 6-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

TRENTON — Trenton Commercial Printers took a pair of home runs by Donny Cole into first place in the E. and D. Softball League last night. The Printers clipped Tweed Lumbanks 6-3 for their third win in succession.

Trudeau Motors and Ellis Janitors tangle in a key game for both clubs at Belleville's CNRA Park tonight at 8:45.

Cole belted his home runs in the first and third innings for a 4-0 Trenton lead and later made a lady of tremendous throws to the plate from deep centre field to help keep the scores at bay.

Taylor's hit and an error on Train's carelless set the stage in the first inning and Trenton moved ahead 2-0 when Cole's routine habit to centre was badly misjudged for his first homer. There was no doubt about the third-inning blast, a terrific belt to deep right-centre with the parks empty.

Tweed got a pair back on two walks, Morton's single and a grouped fly in the fourth but gave that run back in the next inning. Taylor, who had doubled, scored while T. LeGage hung onto the ball following Drake's bunt safely. Worrall singled in the final Trenton run after another Drake bunt single in the seventh.

T. LeGage singled and scored in the eighth for Tweed after Cole's perfect peg to the plate was dropped.

Pat Maracle, who took over from Howie Cole after four frames, was the loser pitching the win. He gave up two hits, fanned eight and walked one. Cole also allowed two hits, whiffed six and walked three.

Eldon Grey started and lost for Tweed, giving way to Binnie Wesley after four innings. They were tagged for 11 hits in all, six off Wesley, who also cut five. Gray fanned one and neither walked a batter.

Besides D. Cole's two homers, Trenton got a double and single from Ken Taylor and singles from Roger Drake, a booming triple by Pat Maracle, a double by Lee Bourdeau and singles by H. Cole, Al Beergrand and Lem Mowatt.

T. LeGage collected a pair of Lumbanks four hits with Dick Morton and Don Cotton bagging the other safeties.

Injury Bug Refuses To Quit Mantle

Hurt Yesterday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees' injury - plagued star, brusquely thrust aside any possibility of switching from centre field to a less laborious position to preserve his ailing legs.

The switch - hitting slugger, who underwent his second knee operation last winter, was forced out of the lineup again Wednesday because of a muscle strain in his left side, in the same area where he had been previously bothered by a charley horse.

The latest injury occurred in the eighth inning of Tuesday night's game with Cleveland Indians when Mickey made a spectacular running catch of a fly ball hit by Max Alvis.

Mantle has had a history of leg trouble but it has never been more evident than this season. Once one of the fastest in the game, Mickey has slowed perceptibly.

A teammate, who asked not to be identified, said the 32-year-old Mantle was playing on nerve alone.

GIVES ALL

"Mickey is giving it all he has but it is evident he is not half the centre fielder he was in other years," the teammate said. "He still makes great plays on occasions, but these plays would have been routine for him before.

"It's inevitable that sooner or later, Mickey will have to be shifted to another position, perhaps to right field."

Mantle is against it.

"I think as long as I play ball, I will play centre field," he said. "I don't think I'll ever have to switch. When the time comes that I can't play centre field, I'll quit.

"Actually, centre field is the position where I'm least likely to get hurt. There are too many quick starts and stops at first base. Also there is always the danger of a collision with a runner.

"A centre fielder has more freedom of range than a right or left fielder and there's less danger of running into a wall."

'The Scoundrel' Out Of Belmont

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — The Scoundrel, Northero Dancer's closest pursuer when the Canadian - bred colt won the Preakness Stakes, won't be around to challenge the Dancer in his bid for the triple crown.

The long-striding three-year-old, who finished third behind Northern Dancer and Hill Rise in the Kentucky Derby, was declared out of the Belmont Stakes at New York June 6, when he injured a foreleg during a gallop Wednesday.

Trainer Mesh Tenney estimated The Scoundrel would be sidelined for at least six months with what a veterinarian described as an acute inflammation of the superficial flexor tendon of the left foreleg. The veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Colando, said the damage is not permanent.

The Scoundrel was purchased by San Francisco sportsman Kjell Qvale for $500,000 last week from Rex Ellsworth, who raced him in the first two classics for three-year-olds.

Withdrawal of The Scoundrel leaves Hill Rise, the California two-year-old champion, as the most prominent obstacle to Northern Dancer's attempt to become the first triple crown winner since Citation in 1948.

Ajax, Cannifton Open Baseball Season Friday

Cannifton will make its initial start in senior baseball company here Friday night when the club plays host to Ajax in the first game of the season in the new Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball Association.

Other league entries are Brockville Beavers, Belleville Joyce Realty, Oshawa and Little Britain.

Cannifton expects to give the loop's other full-fledged senior clubs a run for their money if, says team spokesman Harold Griffin, "we can find about two more good ball players in the district to strengthen our club."

Cannifton has been a power in the South Hastings Baseball League for many years and is again playing in that grouping this year under the team name of "Plane's Concrete." The team is expected to enter OBA playdowns as an intermediate team.

Friday's game against Ajax will be played under the lights at the Belleville Fairgrounds, at 8:15, and the team will likely play all home games in the senior circuit here.

3 Colleges Seek High School Star

MONTREAL (CP) — Robin McNeil, 18 - year - old Windsor, Ont., high school student with promising quarterback potential, is creating somewhat of a flap among three Canadian universities.

All three, McGill University, University of Western Ontario, and Toronto Varsity, want him on their football team.

A 185-pounder who stands five feet 11 inches, McNeil says he has received offers from all three universities. At the moment, he says he is torn between attending McGill or Western. He says he will take his time before making a decision.

McNeil set passing records as a quarterback the last two years with John Forrester Collegiate in Windsor. In one game, he completed 34 of 43 passes for 300 yards.

Archer 64 Tops At Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The PGA's tallest player, six-foot six rookie George Archer, blasted a seven-under-par 64 with a record 29 on the back nine to take a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the $70,000 Speedway open golf tournament Wednesday.

Archer, 24, a frustrated basketball player from a ranch near Bilroy, Calif., finished one stroke ahead of Joe Campbell and Harold Keece.

Two strokes off the pace with 66 each were long - driving George Bayer, Australian Kel Nagle and Doug Sanders.

Notched at 67 were Jackie Cupit and Dick Crawford, while a dozen others shot 68s, including Al Balding of Toronto.

The field, seeking a $12,000 first prize, will be trimmed to the top 90 and ties after today's second round.

Both Toss Third Shutout

Nuxhall, Fischer Have 'Plenty Of Nuthin'

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Joe Nuxhall was throwing newspapers on to front porches, Hank Fischer was tossing toys out of his playpen.

Two decades later, Nuxhall and Fischer are throwing shutouts at National League opponents.

Each pitcher recorded his third shutout Wednesday night, high in the league this season. Cincinnati's Nuxhall stopped the stumbling Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 on six hits while Fischer hurled a four-hitter in Milwaukee Braves' 2-0 victory over Houston Colts.

The 35-year-old Fischer improved his record to 5-2 and lowered his earned run average to 2.75. Nuxhall, 35-year-old veteran, won his fourth game against three defeats and reduced his ERA to 3.30.

When the Braves' right-hander entered organized baseball in 1958, Nuxhall already had been playing for 15 years. In fact, four years before, Nuxhall led the league in shutouts with five. This season marks the first time since that he has exceeded two shutouts.

In two previous major league seasons, Fischer didn't blank anybody.

Fischer's victory Wednesday night overshadowed the two-hit performance of his opponent, Skinny Brown of Houston. In another NL shutout, Art Mahaffey threw a four-hitter as Philadelphia Phillies halted Pittsburgh Pirates' five-game winning streak 2-0. Juan Marichal limited St. Louis Cardinals to seven hits in San Francisco Giants' 3-1 triumph while Dick Ellsworth and Chicago Cubs stopped New York Mets 7-1 on seven hits.

Nuxhall got the better of the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax, who allowed the Reds just three hits but still dropped his fourth game in eight decisions. Nuxhall didn't walk a man and allowed only two Dodgers to reach second base.

The Reds scored in the first on a walk to Pete Rose, Tommy Harper's infield hit and a bloop single by Vada Pinson.

The Braves scored two runs for Fischer in the fourth as Rusty Staub bobbled a throw that would have completed an inning-ending double play.

Mahaffey completed his first game in eight starts, holding the Pirates to two doubles by Dick Schofield and singles by Donn Clendenon and Smoky Burgess. Doubles by Clay Dalrymple and Cookie Rojas and Richie Allen's single in the third gave the Phillies their runs.

Marichal brought his record to 7-1 as the Giants stayed close to the first-place Phillies. Chuck Hiller and Dehs Snider opened the game with consecutive home runs off the Cardinals' Bob Gibson, who suffered his first defeat after four triumphs.

The Mets calmed down after their uncharacteristic outburst the day before when they scored 19 runs. They gave starter Al Jackson the usual support—no runs in the 5 1-3 innings he pitched. Jackson, now 3-6, has not had a run record for him in 36 innings.

The Cubs put the game away in the first when Ron Santo tripled in one run and scored on Ernie Banks single.

Pitching—Art Mahaffey, Phillies, shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 on four hits as Philadelphia maintained its slim grip on National League lead.

Batting—Chuck Hinton, Senators, drove in three runs with homer and two singles in Washington's 9-8, 11-inning victory over Boston Red Sox.

Golf Club Short Putts

A tip to the golfing males of the species.

Watch your appetites — and your bridge games.

Lady golfers at the annual Duplicate Bridge you squabbled yourselves rather nobly at the card tables. In fact you helped make it the success it was.

But at refreshment time, the spouses were slightly awry on the amount of edibles and some — well — missed the delectables.

As was rumored some of you threatened to bring your own refreshments. Don't do it. All has been arranged.

In fact plans are under way to hold a Duplicate Bridge once a month. And these events will be open to everyone.

And, it is stated, the inner man will be properly looked after.

Now go back to your lockers and your golf and don't forget the Mixed Bridge scheduled for June 22rd the same date the ladies play the second qualifying round for the club championship.

Speaking of the distaff side, last year some sort of record was set at the Dessert Bridge. It was easily one of the best held in the district.

The 1964 Bridge is scheduled for June 3rd, next Wednesday and present plans indicate it will outdo any previous function of its kind.

City Hotel Defeats Point Anne

Grabbing a 4-3 first-frame lead, City Hotel went on to defeat the Point Anne Cementmen 7-3 in a Commercial softball tilt at the Point last night.

In another game, Ter-Haar Daubers edged Belvedere Hotel 10-9.

The pitchers took over and controlled play pretty well after the opening inning, although City scored two in the fourth and one in the seventh.

Dave Feeney hurled the victory, a five-hitter, with three strikeouts and three walks.

Denny Hull pitched the loss, allowing eight hits, whiffing four and walking four.

Mac Hawkins cracked a pair of singles and played a strong game in centre field for City Hotel. Redquest also had two singles while Doug Hull doubled and other hits went to Smith, Lynch and Feeney.

McDonald paced the Cementmen with a pair of base knocks. Denny Hull and Mike Cook contributed doubles.

Barriages and Lightfoots clash in a 6:45 game at King George School tonight.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

AN AID IN JUDGING DISTANCE

A problem shared by all golfers, regardless of their shot-making ability, is that of judging distance.

On the tour we have one advantage over the average club player. We usually get galleries often surround a green helps provide us with a better target. However, we usually compete the "strange" courses so the ability to correctly judge distance is most important.

Sometimes I use a method that we call "progression" to aid in my selecting the proper club. To judge distance through progression you first sight an object, such as a bush or tree or even a marker on the fairway or two rules of the fairway, that is unique or 9-iron distance away. Since I know that I gain 10-yards with each lew-lofted club I progress to, I merely continue sighting objects, each in approximate increments of 10 yards, further down the fairway. For each 10-yard progression, I drop down one more club. Finally I sight the green and choose the club to which I've progressed, confident that it will give me the correct distance.

The Lions clubbed the CNR Firemen 23-8 in the B.M.B.A.'s Tyke division at Park Dale last night.

Lions collected 12 hits and 18 walks off three CNR pitchers. Peter Ackerman, Danny Lupenetta, in the second, and Teddy Eves, in the third, shared the losers' mound chore. G. Goegan was their receiver.

R. McTaggart hurled three-hit ball on the Lions' hilltop, with Gary Edwards catching.

Edwards had three hits, one a triple, and W. Gray also collected three safeties to pace the winners' attack.

D. Lupenette hits a triple, S. McDonald and D. Whitney a single each for the losers.

Amazing Ballatine Suddenly Becomes Star in Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's nice but it's also sort of sad," said the lanky fellow with thinning hair. "After 35 years as the Amazing Ballatine suddenly I'm Lester Gruber. And 95 per cent of the people don't even remember all the years on the Ed Sullivan Show."

Carl (The Amazing) Ballantine had a popular and highly profitable vaudeville act, appearing in magnificently tailored evening clothes and with all the sweeping gestures of the stage magician, but doing tricks that turned into minor disasters —rabbits refused to emerge from hats, ladies refused to be sawed in half, the wrong card always popped out of the pack. Then vaudeville died and Ballantine—who does not like to play night clubs—started to look around.

"When McHale's Navy came up there were only eight weeks of vaudeville a year left in this country, coast to coast," he said.

WINS ROLE

Carl won a role in the ABC navy comedy as a sailor with the instincts of a con man.

To Ballantine the most incredible fact is that few McHale's Navy fans ever connect him with the magician.

Total result has been to make two separate careers. Ballantine the actor, is regularly employed on television. Comic-magician Ballantine accepts occasional dates on TV variety shows.

"It's really great," said Ballantine. "Like being two people."

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Elizabeth Taylor and Rock Hudson, two of the world's most popular young romantic stars, head the cast of the George Stevens' production of "Giant," a Warner Bros. re-release in WarnerColor now showing at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. James Dean shares top billing with the pair in the screen classic which introduced Carroll Baker. Jane Withers, Chill Wills, Mercedes McCambridge and Sal Mineo are also featured. The film epic recounts the rise of a Texas dynasty and is based on the bestselling novel by Edna Ferber. Stevens won an Academy Award for his direction of the film.

AT THE BELLE — Perennially popular Doris Day is teamed again with James Garner in another romantic comedy. This time it's "Move Over Darling," a CinemaScope DeLuxe Color picture, also starring Polly Bergen and Chuck Connors, now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Movie Column

Three Released Movies Not Likely to Set World Afire

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new movies—

In the spring, film companies seem unwilling to issue anything of a weighty nature; hence, the springtime flood of fluffy, frivolous and — sometimes—entertaining products.

Three current releases demonstrate Hollywood's preoccupation with combining names and nonsense. Vast amounts of each have gone into What a Way to Go! The result is not equal to the sum of its parts, but it provides passable entertainment.

Thanks are largely due to Shirley MacLaine, who works hard to keep the flimsy fabric from tearing asunder.

Shirley is a simple lass whose life is ruined by too much money.

The whole business is not to be taken any more seriously than the premise. None of the characters has a shred of reality; the laughter, when it comes is merely surface.

A Bedtime Story provides the provocative casting of Marlon Brando and David Niven as jet-age gigolos who relieve rich American women of diamonds and other baubles. Their quarry: Shirley Jones.

The tale is moved from one comedy sequence to another. Not all of the sequences are hilarious, but the average is good.

Then there is Viva Las Vegas, another adventure in unreality. This one has Elvis Presley as a race car driver and Ann-Margaret as a swimming teacher in Las Vegas, and—oh, why bother? Suffice to say the plot is barely enough to thread together a succession of musical numbers.

Fine Jockey $100 After Altercation

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Turcotte, 22, Canada's leading jockey last year, was fined $100 Wednesday as the result of a fight with jockey Sam McComb in the jockey's room at Greenwood Race Track Tuesday.

Stewards of the Jockey Club Limited said the fine was imposed on Turcotte for making an unwarranted claim after the first race Tuesday and for instituting an altercation in the jockey's quarters afterwards.

McComb was not fined.

Turcotta was aboard second-place Bega Bega in Tuesday's first race. He claimed interference at the half-mile post by Whirl an Deal, with McComb up. The stewards disallowed the claim.

Derby Field Smallest In Years

LONDON (AP) — Only 24 horses were named Wednesday in the third acceptance stage for the Epsom Derby—a sign that the field could be the smallest in years. If the pattern of past years is followed, several will be withdrawn before Wednesday's race.

Santa Claus, 2-to-1 favorite, was among the acceptors, but there have been rumors he might not run.

Other acceptors: Anselmo, Cos Brio, Ravels, Mister Ed, Indiana, Dilettante II, Dromeland, Onelidium, Sakiris II, Signal Rocket, Hotroy, Galator, Cold Slipper, Penny Stall, Balastrade, Pillie, Corah IV, Sweet Mona, Roquefuell, Crete, Lionhearted, Mercure II, Le Fabulaux.

City S. S.

Plaques and crests were presented to the BCI basketball champions by Alderman Bailey. Mr. Sgambati did the honors for the junior girls volleyball champions, Dr. Loder for the cross country team and this reporter the wrestling squad.

Special recognition was given Diana Matthews, Dee Dolman, Rod Glenn, Stan Woodcock, John Hayman, Lynne Nelli and Ann Thompson of the Moira track and field team who distinguished themselves at the recent COSSA track and field meet in Oshawa.

Mr. Sgambati was introduced by an old friend, Mr. Bastbour, with Allan Mott expressing appreciation. Lynn Nelli paid appreciative tribute to the High School Board. Ron Walsh added appreciation of the coaches and their assistants.

The "Banquet of Champions" inaugurated here a year ago is a co-operative effort on the part of the three secondary schools' Student—Councils and boys' athletic societies. They arrange for the dinner and the speaker. Plaques are donated by the High School Board.

Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

THE NEO - CLASSICAL HOUSE
on South Church Street

It is hard to convince anyone but a dedicated architectural historian that the weathered clapboard building at 7716 South Church Street was once one of our finer dwellings.

During the building boom in the 1820's some status-seeking Bellevillian built a house in imitation of Squire Barnum's place at Grafton.

He chose a worthy model, for the Barnum House is considered to be one of Canada's Architectural treasures.

The Belleville house is a humbler version, reduced in scale and sparing in detail.

The Barnum House was a radical departure from the Georgian idea of a proper house. The excavation of Pompeii inspired a fashion in architecture and decoration that came to be called Neo-Classical.

By the 1820's the new trend was accepted by builders throughout Upper Canada. Squire Barnum's American architect was in advance of most Canadian builders, for he designed a house that has overtones of the dawning Greek Revival in its basic shape, but is Neo-Classical in its details.

The gable end of the rectangular two-storey central block is turned to the street and flanked on either side with matching one storey wings.

This basic outline can be traced in the Church Street house. The roofs of the side wings were raised some time after 1874, but a jog in the clapboard marks the original height of the low side wings.

Instead of centering the front door, Barnum's architect moved it to one side to the centre block.

The builder of Belleville's Neo-Classical house could not bring himself to abandon the familiar arrangement of an equal number of windows on either side of a central front door.

His house was startling enough to his conservative neighbors, and any further radical departures from the conventional might have exposed him to more scorn than he wished.

The front door is a masterpiece of the delicate Neo-Classical style. The reeded pilasters of the architrave compare favorably with those on the French-Robertson house at Upper Canada Village.

A Wedgewood-like garland could have decorated the board over the top of the door.

Downstairs the central block was divided into two square rooms — a combined entrance hall and sitting room in front, and a kitchen at the rear with stairs leading to the second storey.

Although many copies of Barnum House were built in this part of Ontario, the Church Street building is one of the few known to survive.

Removed and restored to a semblance of its former glory, this house could become a tourist attraction second only to its prototype at Grafton.

Will Survey Efficiency of Police Forces

TORONTO (CP)—Percy Millligan, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, Wednesday described plans of action to be taken in a forthcoming survey of the efficiency of nearly all of the province's 237 police forces.

He said in an interview he and Magistrate Thomas Graham, a member of the commission, will split up to accompany two police advisers, to be selected by the cabinet, on tours of the province.

The province will be covered in six or seven sections probably excluding Metropolitan Toronto, Hamilton, a few other larger cities and the provincial police, Mr. Milligan said.

An adviser and commission member will examine the strength, equipment, working conditions and salaries of each municipal force.

Mr. Milligan said the investigators will work in collaboration with any existing municipal councils, police commissions and police chiefs.

The survey will help the commission to recommend amalgamation of police forces wherever it appears to be in the interest of greater efficiency, he said.

20 Jet Planes Aboard Carrier At Saigon

CP from AP-Reuters

SAIGON — A U.S. transport carrier arrived in this South Vietnamese capital Wednesday with about 20 jet planes on her deck, but a U.S. military spokesman said they were bound for "a destination other than Viet Nam."

The spokesman identified the jets as F-8s, used as fighter-bombers or for aerial reconnaissance. They were aboard the carrier Core, in harbor here loading some old helicopters to be taken back to the U.S.

Reliable sources said jets from the U.S. 7th Fleet have been using Saigon airfield in recent days. They are believed to be the same type that are flying reconnaissance missions over the Plaine des Jarres in neighboring Laos.

U.S. sources, meanwhile reported 30 South Vietnamese troops killed and eight others missing in an ambush by Viet Cong rebels only 30 miles north of Saigon. Only two were left alive in a 35-man platoon attacked on a road called Route 13 by the Americans because it has been the scene of a number of bloody ambushes.

Pearson Replies To U.S. Critic Of Economic Policy

Gives Johnson Resume Of His Answer to Ball

Against Legalizing Lotteries

KINGSTON (CP) — Delegates to a United Church of Canada conference Thursday passed a resolution against the legalizing of lotteries in Canada.

The resolution said such lotteries would be detrimental to the moral and spiritual well-being of Canadians.

Other resolutions passed at the Bay of Quinte conference urged the federal government to form a division of marriage and family welfare in the justice department.

Delegates said the new division could institute research into the causes of marital breakdown. An extension of both pre and post-marital counselling was suggested.

Rev. Dr. W. F. Bannister of Kingston suggested churches establish family counselling centres instead of mid-week church programs.

"It's a pleasure to get your family by themselves for a change," he said. "The church would do well to cut down on mid-week activities so families can spend more time at home."

SUGGESTS MOVE

Rev. Frederick Style of Collingwood said the church must move out to the cottage and resort areas on summer weekends.

REJECT AD BAN IDEA

A motion urging a ban on tobacco, liquor and beer advertisements was rejected after spirited debate at the conference.

Opposition forces were spearheaded by Hugh A. Rose of Smiths Falls, who said:

"There is a grave danger of making the church look utterly ridiculous if we take this step folly to pass this resolution."

Its proponent, Rev. Charles Catto of Chalmers presbytery, replied: "If this appears ridiculous, then it's time we started appearing ridiculous."

The recommendation referred specifically to advertisement on sports telecasts and broadcasts viewed and heard by young persons.

"We have the right to watch Davey Keed (a Toronto Maple Leafs lacrosse player) without looking at him through a beer table," Mr. Catto said.

The conference also endorsed birth control.

Delegates voted to request the Canadian government to institute a broader immigration policy and to recommend that the

NEW YORK (CP) — When Prime Minister Pearson held a 30-minute chat with President Johnson in a hotel room here, he gave the U.S. president a run-down of his address Thursday night to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

This speech was largely a reply to apparent economic good time but its subject matter undersecretary of state, in an address last month in Harriman, N.Y.

Ball spoke of "immediate and substantial repercussions" if Britain changes the "ground rules" where the economies and trade of the two countries are deeply interlocked.

He also suggested that the two countries focus attention, not on measures of "economic nationalism," but on reciprocal steps toward increasing economic interdependence.

Without referring directly to Ball, Pearson dealt with both points in his speech to the American steelmakers.

He said changes in Canada-U.S. relations, political, economic and cultural, are bound to happen in a changing world and "we must be prepared to adjust to them".

WON'T BE STATIONARY

"There is no reason to think that Canadian-United States relations alone of all the relationships in a changing world should remain stationary. It would be a mistake to make any such assumption. Changes are bound to occur and we must be prepared to adjust to them."

As for economic interdependence. Pearson said, "there is, of course, an important distinction between the rational development of the joint resources of this continent and the economic integration of Canada and the United States."

He singled out recent attempts to expand production of auto parts in Canada and argued that Ottawa already suggest these steps will lead to an increase in two-way trade in the auto industry.

"Moderate and sensible proposals such as these should not be misrepresented as examples of unreasonable economic nationalism. Measures aimed at encouraging industrial growth in Canada to give some thought to the connection between their operations and the needs of the Canadians should not be represented as unwarranted interference with foreign investments, as though such judgments must always be made in the same state of mind."

Pearson said that so interwined are Canada and the U.S. in so many ways that they are bound to free problems. These cannot be ignored or minimized.

"But we must be careful not

Bill Sets Fishing Limits

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—In its effort to push Canada's fishing limits 12 miles out to sea, the government Thursday cleared another parliamentary reef—second reading of the enabling bill.

The manner in which the proposed move is being carried out churned up stiff criticism from several opposition spokesmen who wondered the whole matter washed out of Parliament and into a committee.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) made such a motion—that the bill not be read a second time but its subject matter be referred to the committee on marine and fisheries—but it was defeated, 146 to 24. The motion was supported by 13 NDP members, seven Creditistes and one Progressive Conservative, but the 86 Liberals, 58 Conservatives and one Social Credit MPs easily overpowered it.

The lone Conservative who broke party ranks was George Chatterton (Esquimalt - Saanich) who said the bill was a "step in the right direction" but it gives "a gross deception and gutless.

Mr. Chatterton charged that the government was pushing the legislation through Parliament to give the impression it was keeping a Conservative promise to create a 12-mile limit. In effect, he said, the bill does nothing of the kind as it would become effective until the government decides to proclaim it.

GIVES ASSURANCE

External Affairs Minister Martin rose to assure the member that "when the portion of the bill dealing with 175-mile exclusive fishing zone has been proclaimed the 12-mile limit will be established forthwith and there will be no delay in doing so."

Mr. Howard said the government showed lack of "intestinal fortitude" in caving in to the rights of fishermen. There was reason why the government should not take strict stand on the west coast that will be included in the Canadian fishing zone.

The United States was the only country with historic fishing rights off Canada's west coast and the lack of clarification in the Canadian statement indicates that it is bowing to the pressure of the Americans in granting more Canadian waters available.

The bill has already been passed by the senate.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) said the bill gives far too much discretionary power to the government.

PLAN BURSARIES

TORONTO (CP) — Bursaries totalling $40,700 will be awarded by the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario's educational foundation for the 1964-65 school year, Foundation Chairman D. M. Grant announced Thursday. About 175 university students will receive ATA. aid through the two systems. The 16 degree-granting universities in Ontario will share $40,800.

See Signs of Fight For Nehru's Mantle

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The executive committee of the ruling Congress Party today postponed until Saturday a decision on when the party will meet in full to name a successor to the late prime minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Meanwhile, less than 24 hours after Nehru was cremated, there were signs today of a behind-the-scenes struggle over the choice of a new premier.

Though the two favorites up to now had been G. L. Nanda and Bahadur Shastri, Home Saturday was under way Thursday night for former finance minister Morarji Desai.

Desai, leader of the far right-wing, was fired from the cabinet by Nehru last September. A believer in prohibition, and personally hated by Indian intellectuals, Desai is considered by some quarters as Shastri's main rival for the prime ministership.

Nehru, who was 74, was cremated Thursday on a pyre of Sandalwood and flowers by the sacred river Jumna at the grief-stricken cries of thousands of Indians rent the air.

A great roaring noise and an earth tremor centred 10 miles away preceded the funeral and increased the awe surrounding the death of India's sole ruler since the nation won independence from Britain in 1947.

The ashes of the dead ruler were expected to be collected by his family today. Later they will be scattered in Indian holy places.

The sacred ceremony climaxed 24 hours of anguished mourning unlike any display of mass grief since the death of Nehru's mentor Mohandas K. Gandhi, who was assassinated 16 years ago.

Doctors Advised to Start Creating New Public Image

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario doctors were advised Thursday to start creating a new image of themselves and their work emphasizing the human element in medicine.

Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut of Toronto suggested that because of bitter medical care disputes and widely - reported take-over into doctors' affairs the public has swung from an unrealistic "hero-worship" of doctors to an extreme of mistrust.

"Unfortunately the public took the doctor to be perfect and infallible, or nearly so," he told the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association. Even some in the medical profession may have been captured by this new image.

The swing now was to the opposite extreme and unrealistic stopped before it seriously destroyed the doctor - patient relationship and deterred young persons from making a career of medicine.

Dr. Plaut said doctors should emphasize the human element in an age when mechanized medicine where a host of machines and gadgets are used in diagnosis right up to surgery. He said the public to the fact that diagnosis is, in the end, a matter of human judgment and treatment is subject to failure.

Doctors should also give the public a realistic appraisal of the limitations of medical science, making patients aware that science has not beaten all disease and probably will never conquer death.

As a third measure in restoring some balance to the public's image of medicine, the rabbi said, doctors should avoid over-specialization. They should study the humanities and keep in touch with matters outside their specialty and not "learn more and more about less and less."

Meanwhile, at a committee session of members of the association's meeting, a London, Ont., pathologist claimed the pill has resulted in more women who commit infanticide.

Dr. John Fisher of Victoria Hospital described infanticide as the killing of an infant under 24 months of age by its mother. This could be done by suffocation, strangulation, drowning or battering the infant's head on the floor.

In infanticide cases, he explained, the baby had to appear a baby was not stillborn, a difficult task when it is killed by any of the four mentioned methods.

Most of the cases involve unwed mothers who gave birth without the aid of doctors, he said. The law often decides the person guilty entered a mental condition which led the woman to the act.

Coroner Harold Brock of Peel County told the group that the automobile has become a public weapon of taking one's life. Coroners find it almost impossible to establish whether a fatal crash was accidental or planned by the driver.

On another point, J. J. Hills of Toronto, executive assistant to Ontario's supervising coroner, pointed out that those who pose mass burials following major disasters.

Hills' failure to positively identify disaster victims could create chaos later when estates are settled or remarriages arranged.

Anti-British Demonstrations Continue in Capital of Cyprus

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA — Anti-British demonstrations continued in Nicosia for the second straight day today as thousands of Greek-Cypriot students poured into the streets chanting "British go home."

Similar demonstrations were reported in other towns on the island.

The Nicosia students carried placards demanding withdrawal of the British from the UN peace force. The demonstrations broke out on the day the arrest Tuesday of a British officer accused of transporting arms for Turkish-Cypriots.

Greek-Cypriot police halted three convoys of Turks on the outskirts of Nicosia Wednesday they were escorted by RAF jeeps.

The Turkish-Cypriot Information Bureau claimed the Greeks beat some of the Turks, including women, and seized one man. claiming he was wanted for murder.

A UN spokesman confirmed the buses had been stopped but said the British escort dissuaded the policemen from taking the Turk for questioning.

Trying To Avoid a Debate

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes to avoid a passion-rousing debate, such as now is brewing up on the maple leaf flag issue, on the choice of O Canada as Canada's national anthem.

A government spokesman said the anthem resolution is purposely worded to avoid debate on what is to be the text of the official version of the anthem. All that is intended, he said, is to designate the melody and the title of the anthem.

However, indications are growing that there will be discontent among some Quebec MPs in particular unless an English version is prescribed for singing alongside the original French version.

As with the flag resolution, authorizing the newly - proposed maple leaf flag along with the Red Ensign, there is also latent discontent over the government's proposal that Canada's first flag be used over the Queen should be continued as a Royal anthem in Canada. Both French and English versions of O Canada, one including the words, "At Britain's throne we kneel, unflinchingly we'll stand."

IS LIKELY VERSION

The version likely to be used at government functions is the one written in 1908 by Justice R. G. Weir, starting with "O Canada, our home and native land." It most closely follows the French version, here is one version (land of our forefathers).

The forthcoming flag debate was introduced Thursday by Jean Marchand (PC — Jacques Cartier-Montcalm) complaining bitterly about the inclusion of two flags in the government's resolution.

"I want a distinctive flag—one, not two," he declared amid frequent calls for order while the Commons was discussing a proposal by another member to make public all flag design suggestions so far sent to the government. There are over 3,000 of them.

Herman Batten, Assistant Director of Design was presiding at the time, warned Mr. Pigeon repeatedly to stay within the terms of reference or face whether all designs should be tabled. He read the rule several times to apply to Mr. Pigeon.

Earlier in the day, Real Caouette, leader of the Ralliement des Creditistes, said in an interview he and his 12 members will vote against the government's flag resolution if it is not split into two so that MPs can deal separately with the new maple leaf flag and with the Union Jack.

DEBATE EXPANDS

Political sources said this position is spilling across party lines and gaining support among the Conservatives and others from Quebec.

The flag resolution made its way formally to the Commons order paper Thursday, following its introduction.

Paul Martin, acting prime minister in the absence of Mr. Pearson who was in New York for a speaking engagement, fielded most of the questions by suggesting O Canada remain until the flag debate opens. This may be next week. Mr. Pearson is to announce the time Monday.

Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) asked whether the government would table formal research into the historic background of the new flag design, and on the purposes for which the Union Jack might continue to be flown.

Mr. Martin said the suggestion deserved consideration and would be studied.

Mr. Fisher then asked whether such reports had been prepared. Mr. Martin said that when the debate opens the House will have the extent of preparations back of the flag resolution.

VIENTIANE — The United States, France, Thailand and South Viet Nam have agreed to attend consultations called by Britain in Vientiane to discuss the Laotian crisis, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said these four countries had already accepted the British invitation sent to representatives of the 14 countries which signed the Laos neutrality agreement making Laos neutral.

Cambodia declined to attend the consultations, the sources said.

Replies were still being awaited, from the other signatories but the sources said there was virtually sure the Communist nations would not attend.

Britain called the consultations under Article 4 of the Geneva agreement which provides for such action in the event of violation of or threat to Laotian independence, neutrality and unity.

The sources said Cambodia rejected the British proposal possibly in deference to the Polish counter proposal for the talks in a neutral country.

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist party organ People's Daily today warned the United States of seeking to wreck the Geneva agreements on Laos and "drag the United Nations" in.

The newspaper, quoted by the Chinese New China news agency, said the situation in Laos was "extremely serious" and warned China cannot stand by with folded arms and watch U.S. imperialists tearing up the Geneva agreement at will and setting fire to Laos and Indo-China.

People's Daily said the Chinese proposal for a 14-nation conference of foreign ministers in London Perth, Cambodia, on Laos was "fair and reasonable." The 14 nations are those which called the 1962 Geneva agreements on Laotian neutrality.

People's Daily said the "so-called Vientiane consultations by ambassadors of the 14 Geneva conference on Laos agreed as sought by the United States and Britain "can solve no problems." They are merely "actually designed to drag out matters."

Heart Attack or Poison?

Judy Garland in 12-Hour Coma in Hong Kong

C Pirom AP-Reuters

HONG KONG—Judy Garland was taken off the critical list in hospital today, but the illness that put her in a coma for more than 12 hours remained a mystery.

"She looks very much better now," said American actor Mark Herron, her travelling companion. He added she now was able to talk or eat.

The 41-year-old singer collapsed Thursday at her hotel and Herron hurried her to the hospital in a taxi while typhoon Viola was lifting the island with 90-mile-an-hour winds. She was given oxygen and other emergency treatment.

Herron said Miss Garland was suffering from "over exhaustion." Earlier one nurse said she had a heart attack while another in the same ward described the illness as "poisoning."

The attending doctor refused to say anything about the nature of the illness.

Herron denied rumors that Miss Garland had taken an overdose of sleeping pills accidentally.

"She takes only a normal amount of sleeping pills as many performers do," he said.

The actor said the singer's husband in Australia could have "some bearing on her illness."

"No one can take a beating like this without being hurt."

Herron said Miss Garland had not been feeling well since she arrived Saturday from Australia and had left the hotel only once, Wednesday, to consult a doctor.

He declined to say why she saw the doctor, adding, "it is too personal for me to say anything."

Miss Garland's sister, Sue Gumm Cathcart, 48, died in Las Vegas, Nev. Tuesday night, but Herron said Judy had not been told.

"We will tell her when the doctor advises us so," he said.

With a forecast of mainly clear skies and light winds tonight the risk of ground frost in southern Ontario remains very real with the chance of frost damage to tender plants perhaps somewhat greater tonight than last night.

Plump Burmese Cat In Role of UN Atlas

U Thant is a slightly plump five - foot - eight Burmese who weighs 162 pounds. Because he is UN secretary-general, he is actively juggling a dozen or more political pyramids.

The United Nations has suggested making him an umpire in the dispute started by Cambodia's charges of aggression lodged against the United States and South Viet Nam in the UN Security Council.

That came up recently, just after the Security Council dodged an outright request to him to be an umpire in the Indian-Pakistani dispute over control of Kashmir. The majority of the council wanted him to take over that task but India opposed it. The Soviet Union supported India with its threat of veto power, and the council upheld the recommendation.

Thant is already deep in Southeast Asia. He acts as a go-between for Indonesia and Malaysia in their complaints against each other over Indonesia's threat to crush the new federation of Malaysia. He is directly concerned in arbitrating the dispute between Cambodia and Thailand.

Heading the list of pyramids is his discussion of the UN Peace Force in Cyprus. He has an Indian general commanding military units, a Finnish mediator trying for a long-range political settlement between the Greek-

United Appeal Directors Hold Lengthy Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the United Appeal Board of Directors was held last Tuesday at the Y.M.C.A. with Mr. E. G. Gurnett, past president, acting as chairman in the absence of Mr. G. A. Wishart, vice - president.

Alderman D. D. Williams, chairman of the City's Welfare Council Committee was present and gave some interesting details concerning the work of the committee. He advised that a survey of the city's entire social welfare set-up was being undertaken that when completed should indicate what further action would be needed in the formation of a community welfare council. Since it will require some months yet in which to shape an effective organization of this nature, Alderman Williams said that his committee looked to the Belleville United Appeal to continue its fund-raising program as it has in the past together with the hope that the year's results would turn out to be a highly successful one. The chairman thanked Alderman Williams for taking time out from a busy schedule to come as he did.

Since the annual meeting last March had failed to elect a United Appeal president and chairman of the Agencies' Participation Committee, two members of the Board were elected to these offices. Mr. Gerald F. Cunningham assumes the office of president of the Belleville United Appeal and Mr. G. R. Cameron, that of chairman of the Agencies Participation Committee. Also, Mr. W. Gordon Anderson was elected to the Board of Directors as member representing the Canadian Red Cross Society. Mr. Anderson succeeds Mr. C. S. Lewis who was first elected to fill this capacity but who later assumed the office of secretary.

Reports given by both the public relations and campaign chairmen revealed considerable interesting activity in these areas. Mr. W. J. Killough, chairman of the public relations committee advised that 97/1st. E. Coit of the public relations section of the RCAF, Trenton and Mr. R. Smith, Liaison of "Shoppette", Shopping Plaza and Mr. Andy Turnbull of the Belleville Collegiate staff had joined his committee. Mr. F. E. Fell, campaign chairman, reported that several appointments as division chairmen had already been made.

The all-important work of determining a campaign goal is now well underway according to the report by Mr. D. G. Burr, budget committee chairman. All but two of the agency budgets have been received and regular meetings are being held by his committee.

Minister Will Receive Keys Of Old Home

Bellevue, the Kingston home of Canada's first Prime Minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, and now a National Historic Site, will be visited by Resources Minister Arthur Laing on Saturday, May 30th.

Mr. Laing will receive the keys to Bellevue from Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge, Director Emeritus of the house, marking the official turnover of Bellevue to the people of Canada. The Minister will in turn present Dr. Beveridge with an illustrated history of the building. Dr. Beveridge is Dean of Graduate Studies at Queen's University.

Prime Minister L. B. Pearson announced the intentions of the Government of Canada to purchase Bellevue in September, and the transaction was completed last week by the Historic Sites Division of the National Parks Branch.

Bellevue at 35 Centre Street in Kingston, is one of the few remaining houses associated with the life of Canada's first Prime Minister. It was purchased on the recommendation of the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada as a major historic importance to Canada.

A program for restoring the house has begun and it is hoped to complete the work by 1967, completed in two years. The house will be refurnished in the style of the 1850's and 60's. Macdonald's time, and will have some of the actual furniture used by him.

Built around 1840 by Mr. Kirkpatrick who was constructed of Kingston limestone, covered with stucco. It is a two-story dwelling, painted with a high tower, bay windows, and highly ornamented. It was leased by Sir John A. Macdonald to provide a quiet place of residence for his wife and infant son. He gave it the name "Bellevue" for its fine view. Because of its tower and ornamentation, the house was also known as "Treadaddy Tower", "Pekoe Pavilion" and "Resistance Hall."

Mr. Laing and Dr. Beveridge will meet at Bellevue at about 12:30 p.m.

First Offence Of Shoplifting, Fined $20

Shoplifting of goods valued at 88 cents cost an unemployed youth $20 fine in city magistrate's court today.

Police said the youth — out of work since February — took a Lobaw's Pinnacle Street store with the intention of stealing cigarettes. There were too many customers around the cigarette counter so he took some salami and a package of gum.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills, noting it was a first offence, told the accused the maximum penalty for shoplifting was a week in jail.

"It's not smart — and it doesn't pay," he warned the youth.

"That's true," the accused ruefully agreed.

Large Number Attend Funeral Of C. L. Hyde

The business, civic, church and social life of the city was represented at the funeral of Charles London Hyde, held on Thursday afternoon at Bridge Street United Church. Members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club of which Mr. Hyde was a charter member, formed the Guard of Honor as the casket was borne from the Church, while His Worship, Mayor Jack Ellis, members of his council and civic employees were seated in the body of the church. Also represented were the legal fraternity, police and fire departments and other organizations. A large number were in attendance to pay their respects to one who had for a long time been connected with all adjuncts of city life.

Rev. E. M. Davis said in speaking from a text chosen by the deceased there was always a sense of loneliness when one departs who supported love, companionship, good humor. He stated the late Mr. Hyde had an imposing list of activities but the manifestation of Christian brotherhood had many qualities but the greatest was faithfulness and Mr. Hyde had that in abundance. The minister stated that Mr. Hyde read his Bible daily and that he had asked that his favorite hymn "Rock of Ages" be read. He stated that Mr. Hyde had been held in great respect and was highly regarded in his church and community.

On Wednesday evening at his late residence the members of The Belleville Lodge A. F. and A. M. held a Masonic Memorial Service with George Greatrix, Worshipful Master assisted by Everett Fairman, Harry Bates, Russell Hicks, Joseph Bowerox, James Rapino, Don Williams, Gordon Anderson, Ken Sanderson, Josephus Mountford, Ray Gunsolus and Harold Mottaking part. This service was followed by a service by Minerva Chapter O.E.S. No. 138 in which Mrs. Kay Bushell, Mrs. Lil Jordan, Mrs. Nellie McBurney, Mrs. Dorothy Middleton, Mrs. Viola Greatrix, Mrs. Ivy Cooper, Mrs. Arlene Ashbury and Mrs. Reg. Cooper took part.

The honorary bearers were His Worship, Mayor Jack Ellis; S. J. Hibbard, G. W. Proctor, J. F. Hinchey, C. B. Morgan, G. K. Ashley, Les Grills, W. Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., Ron W. Cass, Charles A. Mott, A. B. Collins, Dr. Gerald A. Morton, Dr. Jerry R. V. Pressione, W. H. Finkle and G. J. S. Loynes.

The active bearers were Bryson Leslie, Bruce Kerr, Frank Pringle, Linton Reid, Wilbur Cousinyman and Charles Treverton. The committal rites at Belleville Cemetery were said by Rev. H. M. Davis.

Lions Club Holds Banquet To Honor 25th Anniversary

TRENTON — Twenty - five years ago this month, the Trenton Lions' Club was formed. The Trenton club was sponsored by the Napanee club and the first Trenton president was Arthur Norrington. Art was not able to carry on his duties very long, because he enlisted for overseas service in World War II.

One of the first community services undertaken by the club was the formation of the Lions' Boys' Band. The band was well received both in Trenton and in other communities where it appeared.

A mammoth undertaking, one which has been referred to as a "monument to the Trenton Lions' Club," was Trenton Memorial Hospital conceived and sponsored by the club in 1943 and brought to completion in 1950. Lions also contributed heavily to the hospital addition.

Other community work either sponsored or subsidized to a great extent were the building of the community gardens, the school for retarded children, Bain Memorial Park, public speaking contests, underprivileged children, Trenton Citizens' Band, Trenton High School Bursary, boys' midget hockey, the figure skating club and the White Cane Club.

The Trenton club has sponsored three Lions' clubs in this area, at Brighton, 1946; Frankford, 1947 and Belleville, 1953.

Past presidents Val Carswell and Harry Sager went on to become district deputy governors and Nostrand Sprague, secretary of the Trenton club for many years was district governor, and is an International Counsellor.

Past presidents of the club have been: Arthur Norrington, Dr. Carswell, Charles Cumberland, Harry Sager, Wm. Chambers, Fred Juby, Gordon Flynn, Alan McNab, Sherman Graham, Frank Sherbert, Ralph Weaver, O. W. Larry, Colin Crews, Roly Whitley, Thorne Spear, Mac Justus, F. J. Axis, Ernest Harlick, Herman Chambers, Larry McClintock, Donald McPherson, Darwin Sager, Walter Wright-man, Rube Herrington, Ross Forster, Robert Reid and Stanley Liston.

T. E. Bedford has served as president during 1963 and 1964 and Earl Cruickshank is president - elect.

Of the 32 charter members, three are deceased: Harold Campbell, Raip Huffman and Harry Moore. Seven charter members were present at last night's 25th anniversary celebration in the Batawa Recreation Hall. Frank Sherbert, Thorne Spear, V. P. Carswell, Sherman Graham, Reg. Armstrong, Harry Sager and Ralph Weaver.

Honored guests at last night's banquet were: Wing Commander H. J. Hemsley, Group Captain E. M. Butcher and Wing Commander H. G. Graves, of the RCAF; Mayor James MacDonald; Karel Vytopil, vice-president and managing director of Bata Shoe; Mrs. Violet Kennedy, president of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club; Dieter Rolf, president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club; Dr. Robert Patrick, president of the Trenton Rotary Club; Victor Burtt, president of Trenton Legion Branch 110; Bruce Malcolm, of Niagara Falls, district secretary for Lion's International Dalton Higgs, district secretary; James Johns of Frankford, an international counsellor; International Counsellor Robert Garden of Norwood; International Counsellor elect, Ross Oliphant; Lions' governor - elect Terry Evans of Campbellford; Zone chairman Wm. Oliver; past zone chairman Roly Whitley; past deputy governor Edward Loukes of Frankford and past zone chairman, Ralph Weaver.

Last night's anniversary celebration drew 250 persons to the Batawa Recreation Hall. Director LaVern Robbins paralleled the work of the Lions' club with the blind to the formation, 25 years ago, of the U.S. Leader Dog School for the Blind. Mr. Robbins paid tribute to the work of all service clubs and urged his fellow Lions to "sell" Lionism to the people of Trenton by continuing with their social service program.

TRENTON — Wednesday night, 16 Frankford firemen and 24 Frankford residents were given St. John Ambulance tests at the fire hall in Frankford. The tests were taken at the end of a 10 weeks' course in first aid procedures. The oral and practical tests placed emphasis on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

First aid instructor was William James of Belleville, while the tests were conducted by Dr. Burr of Belleville and Dr. Brasch of Frankford and Mrs. Ursula McKenzie of Belleville, divisional officer with St. John in this district.

Loss Is Lower Than Estimated

TRENTON — Colborne's Fire Chief W. Lee has re-estimated the loss in a fire which destroyed a livestock sales barn and hall in Colborne Wednesday night.

The loss has now been estimated at between $35,000 and $50,000 to the property of Mr. and Mrs. John Mecking.

Fire Chief Lee also stated that a representative from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office in Toronto, R. J. Simmons, has been called in to the investigation, which is now underway.

Chief Lee says he believes the furnace 'blew up' and they are seeking an explanation for it.

However, it is not known if this was the cause of the fire.

Moose Tramples Ohio Hunter

TIMMINS (CP)—Dr. Charles Casto, 39, of Akron, Ohio, received a broken arm and cuts when he was trampled by a moose this week as he and a companion from Akron were hunting bear about 40 miles southwest of here.

Dr. Casto and Dr. Andrew Opritz were attacked as they lay in a bush overlooking a moose, Dr. Opritz told police. The moose fled when the men fired their rifles.

Two other members of the 17-man party, who had been fishing on a nearby Kenogaming Lake, walked four miles to the Canadian National Rail ways line and flagged down a train to deliver a distress message.

A plane brought the injured out. Dr. Casto was treated in South Porcupine hospital and later flown to Akron. Other members of the party continued their hunting and fishing trip.

Details of the accident which occurred Tuesday were withheld so Dr. Casto's invalid wife and eight children would not hear of it before his return.

A LITTLE BIT OF OLD HOLLAND has broken out along Highway 2, just across from the Glenburnie Motel, in Trenton. Bart Boers, Trenton parks' gardener, and the owner of Hollandale Nurseries, came to Canada 16 years ago and is, by now, fully "Canadianized," but he couldn't forget the scene from his bedroom window in S'Gravensande, South Holland. So, this spring, Bart decided to reproduce the scene and had installed a working windmill.

Medical Assoc. Seeking Ban On Smoking by TV Artists

TORONTO (CP)—A committee of the Canadian Medical Association intends to seek a ban on smoking by Canadian television performers on camera. The ban would not extend to cigarette commercials.

Dr. R. K. Magee of Peterborough, chairman of the association's committee on flag cancer and cigarette smoking, said in an interview Thursday his committee will make the proposal at a Vancouver meeting of the association next month.

Dr. Magee, attending the Ontario Medical Association annual meeting here, said the request for the ban would be made to the board of broadcast governors.

British and American medical associations were on record in opposition to cigarette smoking, he said, and he wanted the Canadian association's position stated clearly as well.

Aim of his proposal would be to keep from the sight of impressionable children television performers puffing away on cigarettes.

REDUCE CANCER FACTORS

However, at a session of the Ontario meeting an American cancer researcher reported that cancer factors in the average U.S. cigarette had been reduced by half in the last five years.

Dr. Ernest L. Wynder of New York a researcher at the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, said he was hopeful that recent advances would eliminate smoking as a major health hazard within a generation.

Dr. Wynder said researchers had found that including tobacco stems in the content of a cigarette helped lower the tar yield while giving it a better combustible quality.

They also found that air-cured tobacco, such as is used in many American cigarettes, produced less tar than flue-cured tobacco, the kind primarily used in Canada.

Chemical activities might also cut down the danger of concern from smoking, Dr. Wynder added, but many of the ones currently used created a foul-smelling smoke.

A Great Man Dies

Jawaharal Nehru is dead.

It is a measure of man's capacity for misunderstanding that some people thought him a fool, a plumbing of the depths of man's distrust that others regarded him as a knave.

For Nehru might properly be regarded as the end product, the finest example, of the evolutionary process, a man ridden with the doubts and fears which high intelligence and sensitivity engender, but with a courage equal to all challenges and with an almost godlike disregard for his own comfort and convenience.

It is not only India which is impoverished by his death, for no country can lay sole claim to a man of his stature. He belonged to all humanity and in every part of the world there will be men who will mourn him.

No more dramatic proof of this could have been provided than by the tribute paid him by Habibur Rahman, Pakistani delegate to the United Nations' trade and development conference in Geneva. Part of the legacy of history to this extraordinary man was the distrust of many Moslem inhabitants of the Indian sub-continent and if history should eventually record black marks against Nehru's name, to prove him no more than human, it will almost certainly be in connection with his handling of the tremendously difficult relationships between the new states of India and Pakistan.

Nehru, in Rahman, we have a man who might be considered fated by circumstances to play the role of one of Nehru's enemies declaring, in a voice breaking with emotion, "He was a champion of liberty and freedom throughout the world."

Indeed, Nehru's enemies seem to have been among those most convinced of his worth. Sheikh Abdullah, the Lion of Kashmir, whom Nehru kept in jail for eleven years and only recently released, wept on being informed of his death.

Their reactions do these men honor, but they had already been given lessons in forgiveness —by Nehru himself. Jailed time and again during his struggle against the British Raj for the independence of his country, he was one of Britain's staunchest friends.

Such a willingness to forgive his enemies would only be comprehensible in a man who was able to see, and understand, both sides of any controversy. Such an ability is not always welcome in today's world, in which cleavages of opinion are so sharp that the slightest sympathy with an opponent's viewpoint is often regarded as treason. Nehru had ample opportunity to establish himself as unchallenged dictator of India, yet never swerved from his devotion to democratic procedures. For such a man to support communist Russia, in which climate of opinion one issue, was a much more telling blow at the policies followed by the West than could have been dealt by any despot and this was sometimes reflected by the harsh judgments of those whom he criticized. Yet, on the day of his death, we find President Lyndon Johnson of the United States wiping the slate clean of past aspersions by some of his countrymen, mourning the loss of "a great and beloved man" who had served all humanity in "fearless pursuit of a world free from war." From the other side of the Iron Curtain came Khrushchev's verdict, a minute's silent homage by Premier Chou-En-Lai and Nehru's portrait in the Indian Embassy.

It was this ability of Nehru to bring enemies to acceptance of some common proposition which was his greatest contribution to the strife-torn world in his life. His death, by dramatizing the role he played in the past, may leave a legacy for the future.

But it would be wrong, and diminishing his full worth, to value him solely as a world statesman, or as a practical politician building the foundation of a new, free nation. There was also there a man, idealist, scholar, dreamer, and athlete, sceptical and tolerant, a patriot yet a citizen of the world, born to the East and never despising it, educated in the West and accepting it, courageous, yet long-suffering, prepared to act in accordance with harsh necessity yet scrupulous and honorable—a complex product of two of the world's greatest civilizations, the Hindu and the British.

We may affirm absolutely that nothing great in the world has been accomplished without passion.—George Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel.

The welfare of the United States calls for stable prosperity and a rising standard of living in all parts of the free world.—David Rockefeller.

Motivation of Asian Child

By Richard Gremough in UNESCO Features

Children, contrary to a general belief, are not the same the world over. That children, for instance, are less outgoing, less impulsive, more contemplative than young people in the west. Though also intensely practical, they tend to lack the aggressive competitive spirit of the western child. Yet they are equally ambitious in school and have even a greater respect for learning.

These and many a host of other tentative conclusions reached in a long survey being carried out by the Government of Thailand in co-operation with Unesco.

During the past year or so, three remote villages in Thailand, each with only a few hundred inhabitants, have been put under close scrutiny. These villages — one each in the economic and social level — are Napa in the central rice growing province of the Korat region; Udon in the north-east, on the edge of the jungle, also a rice-growing and farming district; and Umang in the far north, near the Burmese border a community of small farmers. A cross section of some 200 children and their parents was observed and interviewed at length. About six months study was given to each community.

Here are some of the questions the children were asked: What do you fear most in school, out of school? What do you enjoy most and least? What do you want to be, or to do later when you grow up? What lessons do you prefer? What do you most often like and dislike and why? What makes it easy or difficult for you to concentrate? What kinds of responsibilities and home tasks do you have? How do they affect your going to school? What games do you like playing? Do you like playing by yourself or with you in school (or boys, in the case of girls)? In other words, in fact, what makes you tick?

Mothers of families, who were often illiterate, were cut off up to a total of 15 hours, were asked: What was your reaction when you first realized you were going to have a baby? What was your husband's reaction. Are you pregnant at this time - teller at that time? How did you feel over your baby? Do you look after it only? Any help beside yourself? Did you offer threats or rewards to disciplina baby? What do you want most of your child? The general make-up of the village, its economic and social structure was also investigated and local Buddhist priests the village headman and other community figures, consulted.

All this is part of a survey being carried out by the International Institute of Child Study in Bangkok, established only nine years ago by Unesco and the Government of Thailand, with Unesco providing international staff, some equipment and a number of fellowships. The institute is now under the direction of Dr. Lamsimas Saradatta, a distinguished Thai educator, who has degrees from Missouri State University and Columbia University Teachers' College in the United States, and the Institute for Child Study in Toronto. He has staffed by Unesco experts as well as a number of Thai graduate researchers.

The survey will be completed when another village in a different region is studied, along with the Malay peninsula to the South — it visited later this year. Its purpose, briefly, is to aid Unesco expert Dr. Hugh Philp, formerly professor of education at Sydney University, in to learn the answers to these questions: What are the problems of adjustment to new schools, to learning, what elements of curriculum are best fitted to ease the transition from an old society to a new? Which techniques are most likely to lead to conflict between child and teacher, child and family? In fact, how can the up-bringing and early education of the Thai children better adapted to present-day changes?

The main difficulty has been to find successful ways of carrying out the research. It was anticipated, and soon discovered, that western methods and values were of little or no use. No standard tests of ability or achievement were used. Though such surveys of child and family psychology are no longer new in the western world, the same standards and yardsticks cannot be used in Asia. Any system of education is part of a whole pattern of values, social aspirations, traditions and folkways. Any attempt to transplant bodily educational ideas, techniques or methods from one culture to another may destroy this pattern. The Asian child's mind is more contemplative, more shy and withdrawn, less impulsive than that of the western child.

The survey found that, by and large, he has a tremendous and genuine desire and respect, even reverence, for learning, probably a result of strong traditional religious influences, as for years the only repositories of education were the Buddhist temples in each village. This can also account, in part, for the great respect Asian children have for their teachers, their parents, and in general, for their elders. There is a definite respect, too, among children for each other as individuals.

Mothers in the village of Napa besides wanting — like mothers everywhere — that their children be obedient, stressed good manners and modesty. They viewed aggression and, and aggressive behavior towards parents and elders as the worst and most unpardonable sin. Yet though mothers preferred to use reward rather than punishment to discipline their children, they themselves more often than not used physical punishment and certainly strong words in spanking-down. The difference between western and Asian punishment as administered by the families is mainly that in Thailand it is given to children for any form of aggression or naughtiness, particularly towards older people. Parents are also especially anxious for their children to learn, not only for traditional and religious reasons, but increasingly for economic ones.

What has been the result of all this? The experts are cautious, awaiting a final analysis of the survey in mid-1965, however, which will fill gaps discovered in reviewing results of the other three studies. One fact, however, is common to all, however, according to Dr. Gordon L. Arvidson of New Zealand, another UNESCO expert, as a result of this survey a new methodology will be evolved, valid for similar studies in other Asian countries.

Side by side with this research the Child Institute has been carrying out a nation-wide program of curriculum revision, part of one of Thailand's overall plan for improvement and modernization of education. Over 1,000 schools, some 70,00 children and 1300 teachers were involved in a combination of text and questionnaires. Achievements tests were devised to measure a child's abilities in arithmetic, reading, writing, geography and natural sciences; testing were also evolved as well as those for reading speed and comprehension of what was being read.

High Water Loss Claimed

Watertown Times

The old Gut dam torn out of the St. Lawrence river in 1953 should not have been torn down, but have been left alone, or have been to blame for $8,473,000 worth of damages in a one-year period, Ver Planck has now been filed in the Foreign Claims Settlement commission, making such an allegation. The last time the water level of Lake Ontario was high was in 1952. The claimants seek to place the blame for the high water on the Gut dam.

This was at the time that the dam was about 50 years old. If one were to believe the claims as valid, then all the theories over why the lake level was high in some years, were fallacious because the dam caused it all. There were high water years all right, and before the dam was built. Who can be blamed for that high water?

Might we not hope for file claims before the Foreign Claims Settlement commission for the damages and loss of business that the low water of 1964 will create? Should we agitate for another Gut dam or should we take advantage of the low water and construct dwellings, boathouses, etc. to the shoreline this year? Then in a few years when the water level goes up we can suffer damage and sue someone. As a matter of fact, many summer citizens along the lake and river have long been impressed by the ups and downs of the water level. They know enough not to build anything at the shoreline in times of low water. They know that it is better temporarily to appear foolish when they construct on high ground. They know that they don't look as foolish perched safely away from the high waves of high water periods as the other who thought it would be safe to be close to the water when the levels are down and afloat when the levels are high.

Back in 1961 congress passed a law which put the claims against the Gut dam in the hands of the Foreign Claims Settlement commission to investigate. If Canada agrees to make damage payments, the commission will discontinue its inquiry. The Canadians so far are completely disinterested in paying off for the Gut dam's alleged indiscretions. These cases are like whipping a dead horse.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 29th-1944.

Full appreciation of the worth while work which the Young People's Union is doing for youth in that section of the city was gained by members of the Belleville City Council on Tuesday evening, when with Mayor Harry Rollins they were guests at the regular weekly meeting of the organization.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. J. Owen Hardy who pointed out to the young people their duty to their country in assisting in the safeguard democracy's greatest privilege - that of the secret ballot. Tribute to the organization's President, and to the various conveners, was heard from the lips of council members following the conclusion of the opening worship service. This measure of tribute for the meeting at which the meeting was conducted and the goal for which the members were striving, was echoed by the guest speaker who stressed that despite reports of increased juvenile delinquency, the proceedings of the evening have proven that not all young people are delinquent.

After introduction of his council members to the young people Mayor Rollins pointed out that youth today is being called upon to play a seemingly greater part in national and international life. Boys and young men were absent doing battle on the world's fighting fronts and their sisters were being called to carry on in their place.

"This responsibility is a challenge to the young people of today," stated Mayor Rollins. "And this responsibility calls for them to take part in the administration of the affairs of their municipality and country. It is up to them to choose their leaders, men with a Christian background and whom they can respect."

'Unodir' Key To Action

From the Milwaukee Journal

It turns out now that the United States Navy has been practising "unodir." And if it were left at that, without explanation, there would undoubtedly be a congressional investigation by tomorrow morning.

"Unodir," however, is respectable and logical. It has to do with responsibilities for decision. Admiral Arleigh Burke Gullion, back from the Congo, appeared before a congressional committee to discuss the problems of administering embassies and missions abroad. With so many turbulent new nations, it has become necessary, he said, to have a person on the spot decisions to the local head of mission without having him refer back home to state department in Washington.

Such a mission head, said Gullion, might well borrow from the navy's book in its practice of what it calls "unodir." Here's how it works. The chief of missions would communicate with Washington, stating that "unless otherwise directed, I propose to do . . ." and such. And unless he is overruled immediately, that's what he does.

Pre-Marital Physical Required by Some States

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I plan to marry in a few months and would like some questions answered.

Do you recommend a pre-marital physical? Should the couple go to the same doctor at the same time?

How soon before the wedding should this take place?

What is your opinion of the birth control pills and are they safe? How soon before the marriage should the pills be taken, or should they be started at that time? — Miss M. S.

Many states require pre-marital physical examinations; others don't. In too many cases the "examination" is something of a farce — a blood test to rule out syphilis.

Venereal disease isn't the only thing that can be devastating to a marriage. Tuberculosis, diabetes, nervous and mental disorders can ruin a marriage if a life examination will detect many of these.

After all, it doesn't require much more than a visit to a doctor to make suitable inquiries about general health check the chest X-ray and Mr. Lake pays out a handsome new bus today. He will meet all trains and boats. The bus, of which a picture was made here by the St. Charles Carriage Company. Buses made by this firm are in use in many places from coast to coast.

Belleville Lawn Bowling Club has launched a campaign to secure new members and the annual fee has been reduced from $10 to $5. The present membership numbers 60.

Mr. A. Holgate of Canniffon has purchased a new motor boat.

Mr. Herman W. Woolfe, window dresser at the Ritchie Store, has been awarded first prize in a window dressing contest which was sponsored by a large corset company.

Miss Lucy Rose-Coleshill, Ann Street, left today for Portland, Oregon.

The date for this city for 1924, has been set at 40 mills.

The C.P.R. liner, the Empress of Ireland, sank last night 30 miles off Father Point after collision with a collier in a dense fog. No official statement has been issued, but it is estimated that close to 1,000 lives were lost.

Mr. J. W. Davison of this city won the first prize of a McLaughlin Buick car in the Intelligencer's great subscription contest which closed today, and Mrs. R. D. Oliver of Consecon won the second prize of a Bell piano. The district winners were in the following order: Robert S. Sills, a victrola; Mrs. W. C. McDonald, a victrola; Charles Asselstine, a watch; Mrs. William E. Way, a watch; Helen Blair, a lounging chair; J. T. Mulligan, a ten dollar gold piece. The judges were A. R. Meagher, E. A. Moore and Fred Davey Diamond.

'Unodir' Key To Action

From the Milwaukee Journal

It turns out now that the United States Navy has been practising "unodir." And if it were left at that, without explanation, there would undoubtedly be a congressional investigation by tomorrow morning.

"Unodir," however, is respectable and logical. It has to do with responsibilities for decision. Admiral Arleigh Burke Gullion, back from the Congo, appeared before a congressional committee to discuss the problems of administering embassies and missions abroad. With so many turbulent new nations, it has become necessary, he said, to have a person on the spot decisions to the local head of mission without having him refer back home to state department in Washington.

Such a mission head, said Gullion, might well borrow from the navy's book in its practice of what it calls "unodir." Here's how it works. The chief of missions would communicate with Washington, stating that "unless otherwise directed, I propose to do . . ." and such. And unless he is overruled immediately, that's what he does.

that the doctor will leave the door open for questions, it is up to the patient to ask them.

The examination should be made a month before the marriage, but can be a bit later. Many states require a wait of several days before a license will be issued, and the examination, in such cases, must be done before the license is applied for.

Birth control pills are proving to be very satisfactory. Occasionally a woman will have unpleasant side-effects, in which case the pills should be discontinued, but this is not common. They are, however, safe when used with this in mind.

For special instruction, that is best left to the doctor, but they should be started no later than five days after the period preceding the marriage.

All people about to be married should have examinations. A lot of trouble can be avoided as a result.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend told me that if a male gets mumps after the age of 12, he can't be a father. Do mumps have this effect? — E. B.

Your friend overstated the case. Mumps, especially in the adult, may impair or destroy fertility if both testes are affected. That's a far cry from saying that it always will happen. Mumps may affect only one testicle — and in this case the male is still fertile.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have poor circulation in my right foot. Is this "vascular disease"? — Mrs. M. B.

Yes. Vascular disease is another way of saying there is impairment of blood vessels and circulation.

Distortion Lies in the Vision Angle

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Complaints about the "inaccuracies" and "distortions" in newspaper stories might be less frequent if we understood the psychological maxim that the closer we are to the events of fact, shifts of feeling, distorted appearances, sometimes gross omissions. And the more natural our role, the more intimate our involvement, the more authentic do we find an outsider's narration of it.

The biographical portrait of someone we hardly know may seem a model of fairmindedness; of someone we know well, a crude sketch; and of ourselves, an absolute travesty of the truth. The reason for this is the angle of vision itself, more than in the bias of the viewer.

Montreal Artist Displays His Paintings in Trailer

With a house for a gallery, 32 - year - old Manfred Sonnen of Montreal is a travelling one-man art show. He's set up now in Belleville, on a vacant lot on Bridge St. north of Belleville Plaza. There since Monday, he may move to the west end of town tomorrow, he says.

The house trailer is a standard unit, but one side has been fitted to take an awning and mounts for framed pictures. With this side of the trailer facing the street, and with the awning raised, Mr. Sonnen has an outdoor display for about 20 pictures. Most are his own work, painted in Canada, but he usually travels with some Parisian street scenes, painted by a friend of his in Paris, he says. "People like street scenes," he explains, "but they don't want to buy Canadian street scenes. I'd rather import the pictures than paint copies". Mr. Sonnen travels coast to coast with his outfit in the summer, and moves south during the winter.

Born in Montreal, he went to Europe with his parents when he was 18 years old. He studied art in Germany for five years, then returned to Montreal for four more years of art study. He married in Montreal and became a father. He's now 42.

Most of his sales, he says, are to merchants, who like his paintings and their prices. Most people are reluctant, he explains, to buy paintings in his price range. He asks $85 to $95 for a painting), from a street display, even though they might buy the same thing indoors. If he were really interested in selling direct, he says, he would set up his shop in a hotel near the centre of town. He has made no sales yet in Belleville.

Eamon de Valera Given Welcome In U. S. Congress

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eamon de Valera of Ireland expressed hope Thursday that Britain will "see the light" aside and allow the Irish Republic and the six northern counties to be united under a national parliament.

The 81 - year - old statesman received strained British rule a half-century ago told a press conference he never had asked the United States to bring pressure on Britain to co-operate in reunity.

Even the Irish government always had sought an expression from Britain that she was no longer interested in maintenance of the partition between the Irish people and he believed that American sons of Ireland probably also were trying independently to co-operate Britain of the need to co-operate.

Some day Britain will co-operate, De Valera said, and, as he had told a joint session of Congress earlier in the day, "The last source of enmity between Ireland and Britain will disappear and then we can be truly friends."

He was given a rousing five-minute ovation following a noon speech to a joint session of Congress.

Time for Leisure Will Be Increased Says Speaker

Some day — and some day soon — leisure may be as crucial a school subject as any job-preparation course.

This, warned Dr. Koerber, warning given by an expert to the Belleville district Home and School Association at its annual meeting in Tabernacle Church last night.

This opinion was Dr. W. F. Koerber, director of the Department of Education's newly-formed youth branch.

Automation of industrial production is reducing the work load on man with complementary shortening of the work week.

This, warned Dr. Koeber, also raised the problem of increasing the time available for leisure.

"We are proud when we take the drudgery out of life," he said, "but it's true that we are very reluctant to give real thought to the social consequences of his sort of thing."

"I am sure that the next ten years will show us that we've got to think seriously in that particular area."

And one result of facing the problem of increased leisure may see it taught in schools. "Experts already claim," said Dr. Koerber, "that children should now be educated for leisure just as seriously as they are trained for work."

If the predicted consequences of automation are even only half-fulfilled then "we are going to have to rethink what we are doing in our school system — and we are going to have to think our value systems in the home, because our children are going to face a world that is now little of it."

The association's new executive also was formally installed last night. They are: Mrs. E. A. Ford, president; Mrs. Eleanor Jourard, 1st vice-president; George Rutledge, H.

R. Woodcock Found Guilty Of Robbery With Violence

PICTON (Staff) — Ronald F. Woodcock, age 25, Belleville, was found guilty of robbery with violence following a special session of magistrate's court here Thursday.

A motion that there was not sufficient identification of the accused by defence lawyer William Lane of Picton, was lost.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills of Belleville, remanded Woodcock until next Wednesday to await a pre-sentence report before passing sentence.

Miss Audrey Allen, 30 Talbot Street, Picton, testified how she was assaulted shortly after midnight on April 4 last by an unknown assailant, who she said wrapped a type of cord or rope around her neck from behind.

She said she was walking home, and approaching her residence when she had a "funny feeling" that someone was watching," she said. She saw a car parked near her house where she met with Mr. and Mrs. George Wright. That area of the street was dark and she saw no one in the car. Just after she got past it, she heard footsteps running after her, so she started running too. Just outside her house door she said she was "tackled."

"I felt something like a rope come down over my head. It caught in my mouth. I screamed," she said. As the rope was pulled tighter, she said. When she came to, she saw nothing but the top of someone's head bending over her. She then sustained a slap, and what felt like a kick. When the assailant left, her purse was missing.

DOCTOR PHONED

She got up and went into the house where Mrs. Wright phoned police and a doctor, Dr. John Anderson.

While Dr. Anderson was driving her to the hospital a short time later, she thought she recognized the same car she had seen on Talbot St., parked on Main Street.

Dr. Anderson reported this to police, who apprehended Woodcock the lone occupant of the car, when they arrived.

Found in the car, Sergt. Scott Hele of the Picton police department, told the court, were some tubes of lipstick and a jar of deodorant, articles which Miss Allen identified in her evidence as having been in her purse. Three one-dollar bills and some change, which she also said were in her purse were not found, nor were several other articles.

Sergt. Hele also found three pieces of clothesline rope in the car.

All the articles, along with Woodcock's shoes and jacket were turned over to the Attorney General's laboratory in Toronto.

John Funk, an analyst at the laboratory said he found two tiny specks, and two small smears of what he identified as human blood on the jacket, but there was not enough to prove the type of blood. A sample of Miss Allen's blood was analyzed as Group A.

What was identified as human blood on one of the pieces of cord was classed as Group A. There was also a smear of human blood on the toe of the right shoe, but not enough to group it.

FOUND THE SAME

Another analyst from Attorney General's Laboratory, Douglas Lucas, compared a faint lipstick smear on the one piece of cord, with one of the tubes of lipstick and found they were of the same brand and shade.

Miss Allen was recalled to the witness box and identified the particular tube of lipstick as the shade she was wearing on the night of the incident.

Earlier in her evidence, she said she could at no time identify the man who assaulted here.

Magistrate Wills said, "I think the accused is called on to give an explanation for these charges. If there is no explanation, he must be found guilty."

Crown Attorney L. Nethery submitted the accused's past record, and a recent psychiatric examination report to the magistrate. The record included a conviction of indecent assault, two of breaking and entering with theft, and two of trespassing at night, or prowling.

His worship decided to withhold sentence until a pre-sentence report was prepared.

Three Months For Entering Given Accused

PICTON (Staff) — Magistrate T. Y. Wills sentenced Floyd Wood of Belleville and Toronto to three months in the county jail when he re-appeared in court here Thursday. He had found guilty in court here Wednesday of breaking and entering and His Worship withheld judgment until a special court held here Thursday.

Crown Attorney Lance Nethery held out for a stiff sentence in view of the very lengthy record of the accused, who had served back in 1958, but the Magistrate, in passing sentance remarked that this was a very unusual case and did not, in his opinion merit more than the three months.

and Turkish - Cypriots and an Ecuadorean diplomat as his special representative to iron out day-to-day disputes. But Thant is unmistakably the boss.

At the end of June he emerges from another military peacekeeping operation, in the treblescone Congo. The UN forces is to be withdrawn June 30 and Thant has been shrinking it slowly. But he still will be actively involved in continuing UN civilian aid to the country.

Thant has another personal representative in the field, trying to dampen the Republican-Royalist war in Yemen in encouraging the United Arab Republic and Saudi Arabia to end active support for the contenders. He has not been too successful and the situation there has become complicated when Republican and Arab League campaigns to drive the British out of Aden and form the South Arabia Federation over to Yemen. But Thant keeps trying, considering the life of his peace missions to the area every two months.

He still bosses a 5,000-man force keeping peace between Israel and Arab neighbors in the Middle East.

He played an important intermediary role between the United States and the Soviet Union and Cuba during the missile crisis. He is constantly being pressed by Cuba for further direct intervention to stop U.S. reconnaissance flights and exile raids on Cuba.

ON FIRING LINE

He is directly on the firing line in the African-Asian-Communist drive to give the Negro majority in Southern Rhodesia independence from Britain, serving as messenger to Britain for the UN special committee of 24 of decolonization. That committee keeps the question on a hot griddle throughout the year.

Thant is directly involved in dealing with South Africa's racial segregation policies and the trials of apartheid opponents, and with trying to get a UN technical assistance representative established in the territory of South West Africa as a first step to its independence under a Santa government.

He has been a moving force behind the gigantic UN trade and development conference and the arrangements for it. He has personally had a hand in the disarmament conference. He has a high-level scientific committee scattered around the world to keep pushing scientific advancement in developing countries.

Thant also has a continuing chore in Iran, which the Netherlands relinquished in 1963 to the United Nations and the UN in turn transferred to Indonesia.

The terms of the agreement call for the inhabitants of the territory to hold a plebiscite before 1970 on whether they want to remain with Indonesia. The United Nations has to keep a finger in the pie until then, and Thant has one of his top aides out on a scouting expedition in the territory to see how things have worked out so far.

church hold an institute of church and industry to grapple with the problem of automation.

The conference recommended that family planning advice and procedures be made legal by divorcing contraception from abortion in the Criminal Code.

Rev. G. B. Petrie of Haliburton, in introducing the resolution and speaking on the problems of the population explosion said: "Of all the commandments God has placed before mankind none has been pursued with more vigor and more enthusiasm than the one which we should be fruitful and multiply."

"So much are we concerned about obeying God's commandment that, if the present rate of growth continues, in 1,000 years we won't have enough room to stand up."

BOY REVIVED

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)— A two-year-old boy who was unconscious when pulled from his father's submerged car Thursday was revived by a man using mouth-to-mouth respiration. Michael Hall, son of Haileybury high school teacher Christopher Hall, apparently released the brake on the car in his father's absence. The car rolled downhill into 10 feet of water. Highway surveyor Leighton Robinson, 39, of Neelville, Ont., applied respiration after the father pulled the boy out.

Teen-Age Canada

A pool by Teen-Age Canada has disclosed that the younger generation in Canada seems more inclined to accept a new flag than its elders. The flag shown above was briefly flown as a spoof on the controversy.

Majority of Young People In Favor of a New Flag

By JACK HUTTON

A majority of young people in Canada are in favor of a new flag for this country, according to a poll conducted by this column during recent weeks.

Several months ago, I asked for opinions and ideas about Canada's national flag.

I can't remember the last time that this column, which appears in 18 newspapers between Victoria, B.C., and Sydney, N.S. attracted such an immediate rush of mail.

A Vancouver reader mailed me three of his own designs for a new flag within two hours after reading the column. A Toronto reader not only designed a flag but personally presented it to Premier John Robarts.

Because it was impossible to reproduce most of the flags that came across my desk, I returned 33 designs. But I still have another 10 in my office and I wouldn't blame my boss for suspecting me of trying to start my own country.

Two hundred and 33 readers felt strongly enough about the issue to sit down and write, many of them in well thought out and lucid letters. I only wish I could print them all.

WANT NEW FLAG

The results? One hundred and fifty-one readers said they honestly feel Canada would fly a distinctive flag within their lifetime. Fifty-four said they thought the present flag — the Red Ensign — was just fine.

Another 17 letters didn't really deal with the flag. They mentioned it briefly, then launched into tirades on religion or race. I didn't count them.

Most of the designs shared a common fault: the artists tried to include too much in them. At least half of the flags worked in the official colors of all 10 provinces. Maple leaves showed up in about one-third.

No one included a beaver.

Here were some of the comments:

Janet Williams, 16, Halifax, N.S.,: "We discussed the question of a flag just a few nights ago over coffee and it's fair to say we all felt Canada should have its own flag.

"How are people at the U-N to know we are not a colony of Great Britain if our flag is a rough copy of the Union Jack? We understand the relationship (and it's one we wouldn't give up), but I'll bet the new African nations don't."

IRATE READER

An irate Reader, Winnipeg, Man: "I'm sick and tired of all this discussion about a national flag. Don't people realize we already have one. If young people are getting stirred up about this, why don't they read our history?"

Chuck Thompson, 24, Vancouver, B.C.: "Three cheers for your column on the flag. Too often we listen to the politicians discussing Confederation that will affect our future, not theirs. Thanks for giving us a chance to give our views. I'm in favor of a new flag that can be easily recognized as our own."

I should emphasize three things about our little poll. I'm not sure any of you are getting ready to put pen to paper again.

First, the original column was written weeks before Prime Minister Lester Pearson unveiled his flag. Secondly, I asked for readers to submit designs, so probably tilted the poll in favor of the pro-new flag group.

Finally, few polls prove anything, especially in a country as large as ours. But I do think ours proved that younger Canadians are more willing to accept a new flag than their elders.

HIT PARADE

Justice has triumphed on the hit parade.

Weeks ago I said that Hello Dolly — and I meant the record featuring Louis Armstrong and his group — should go to the top of the hit parade if there was any justice in the world.

Several readers agreed, some of them by Evans G. Valens, Clarke, Irwin and Co. Ltd., Toronto; and A Parent's Guide to the New Mathematics, by Evelyn Sharp, Clarke, Irwin and Co. Ltd., Toronto.

U.S. course of action.

The Honolulu conference will take a long-range look at the problems of trying to establish peace and stability in Laos, South Viet Nam and Cambodia, as well as discuss the immediate problem arising out of the Communist offensives.

Expanded military action by the United States is another of the possible courses to be considered. State Secretary Rusk said in a speech a week ago that, if Communist aggression continued, the result could be "to expand the war."

WILL MAKE REVIEW

Johnson announced the Honolulu meeting Tuesday, saying the purpose of the cabinet-level talks would be "to review the situation in the entire area" of Southeast Asia.

Officials said that the talks was against the Beatles and recommendations would be reported jointly to the president.

Rusk, now in India, after attending Prime Minister Nehru's funeral, is scheduled to visit Bangkok, Thailand, and Saigon, South Viet Nam, this weekend on his way to Honolulu.

Others who will participate in the conference will be Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. envoy in South Viet Nam; Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara; and John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

It is also understood that Assistant State Secretary Harlan Cleveland, director of the Bureau of International Organization Affairs, and an expert on UN activities, is also expected to take part.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson proposed in the UN Security Council last week that the United Nations might help in the Southeast Asian situation in one limited respect—to patrol the 600-mile Cambodian - South Vietnamese frontier to prevent further border incidents.

KILLED BY MINES

SAIGON (AP) — Three South Vietnamese were killed by Communist mines Thursday and six others died when a grenade went off accidentally. A U.S. Navy man was killed when he tumbled down the stairway of his quarters in Saigon.

Sunday School Lesson

Love World as Country

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A man from the continent of Europe criticized his English neighbors because, he said, wherever they go, they seem to think that where they are standing is a little bit of England. He meant that all Englishmen away from home are arrogant, this would not be true of the most Englishmen are no more subject to an attitude of superiority than others. But if he meant a that, wherever they go, they carry with them a sincere love of their own country, this would be an understandable sentiment.

Love of one's country ought to be one of the real loves of every person's life. However, like any good thing, it can get out of hand if one becomes militant nationalism. One of the forces imperiling world peace today is the exaggerated spirit of nationalism on the part of many people.

Love of country is one thing. Deification of country is quite another. When one's love of country leads him to think his nation can do no wrong, when he will brook no change or criticism, when he suspects every one's loyalty to country ahead of human rights, then his love of country becomes an unhealthy thing.

PROPHETIC VOICES

No persons ever loved their country more than the Hebrew prophets, but they refused to be lulled into thinking everything was as it should be in the land they loved land. Perhaps no persons have been more openly critical of their nation than those prophets, but it is an insensitive reader who does not sense the sob in their throats as they spoke and wrote. They criticized unjust labor conditions (Amos 2:6). They criticised foreign policy that put more trust in political alliances than in God and His spiritual strength (Isaiah 31:1). They preached against immorality, and drunkenness. Above all, they taught that their nation was under the same divine scrutiny and judgment as every nation.

Amos, the first writing prophet, did this with consummate skill. He first attracted the attention of his hearers by predicting disaster and judgment on Israel's enemies. He called the roll and named their sins. Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, the Ammonites, Moab — all were to be punished. Then came the clap of thunder. Israel and Judah were also to be the object of God's judgment. It was not so much that God was venting His anger as that they deserved to be punished over because they were no longer true to God's plumb-line (Amos 7:7).

What Amos did in the northern kingdom of Israel, Isaiah did in the southern kingdom of Judah. He loved his country too much to see it drift away from God. He warned his people against thinking that military alignments could save them when their problem was primarily a moral one. The future of the nation depended on those who would be true to the principles on which the nation was founded, and to God whose righteousness was the basis of those principles (Isaiah 10: 20-26).

The Apostle Paul saw the rest of the world not as a threat but as an opportunity for achieving God's larger purposes for mankind. No nation can live to itself alone. It must learn to live in a family of nations. As Paul, a Jew, said to the Greeks in Athens, "He made from one every nation to live on all the earth." (Acts 17:26)

Ours is a great nation. We have every reason to be proud of it. It has an abundance of natural resources, great and varied beauty, and a great history. Above all, its citizens enjoy a measure of freedom enjoyed by almost no one else in the world.

We must not, however, let our love of country blind us to its weaknesses. There has been a softening of its moral fibre. Too many of us put success ahead of service, and the almighty dollar ahead of Almighty God. We must not let our love of nation blind us to the needs and greatnesses of other nations. We must not be willing to advance our nation at the expense of other nations.

We must not let our nation's strength be undermined by hate groups, but just as Isaiah dreamed of a day when the wolf and the lamb would lie down together (Isaiah 11:6-8) so we must work for the day when labor and management, negro and white, old and young shall work for the good of all.

Pearson

to distort or misrepresent them. We would be foolish to overlook the mutual benefits of our close interdependence. But neither of us should for a moment consider that these benefits are sufficient to override our respective national interests; or to permit us to ignore our problems."

He promised a friendly climate to American investment, equipment and technology. In turn, Canada asked foreign companies which "settle" in Canada to become Canadian in outlook.

"We ask that they seek out foreign markets when this is in Canada's interest and otherwise govern themselves as good Canadians."

He warned that Canada wouldn't always do what is right but, at least would consider it bad good reason for what it did.

"Rarely will anything that is in the best interest of Canada's national development be against your own larger and longer-term interest, even though it may at times present some difficult short-run problems."

POLICE REFUND

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit policemen Isaac Corp, now retired, lost his service revolver on April 26, 1923, and the police department charged him $34 to replace it. Now the department says it will be glad to refund his money now. The gun turned up Wednesday night in a mailbox. Police said it was in perfect condition.

Club Activities

CONTACT CLUB

During the past couple of weeks Contact Club of Christ Church has been active in bringing the spring session to a close. Two recent rummages sales proved quite successful, under the supervision of Dorothy Sinclair's group. During Mental Health Week the club attended the Corby Public Library for an evening of interesting and informative films, after which coffee and doughnuts were served.

On Monday evening, under the capable direction of Dorothy Sinclair's group, Contact Club held the last meeting for this season. This was celebrated with a husband and wife bowling party at the Belleville Bowl, followed by a potluck supper at the church hall. The "U"-shaped supper table was attractively decorated with spring floral arrangements by Florence Lennox. The serving table was centred with a bouquet of yellow mums, snapdragons and fern. Around this were placed a varied choice of delectable salads, cold cuts, Bavarian creams, pies and cake.

HONORED GUESTS

Honored guests were Rev. and Mrs. Richard Fleming, and Rev. James Smith. Upon conclusion of the meal, President Shirley Harris on behalf of the club bade farewell to Betty Cook, who is leaving for Toronto during the summer. Mr. Fleming expressed good wishes to the club family on behalf of the parish. At this time the traditional cup and saucer were presented.

Prizes for the bowling were as follows: ladies' high single, Pat Spencer; men's high single, Gordon Pringle; ladies' low, Jean Hodges; men's low, Frank Pelling. Hidden scores for ladies and men were Jean Ford and George Hodges.

A most enjoyable evening was had by all. The members were reminded to save the items required for the Golden Book of Charity, throughout the summer.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

—PATRICIA LEWIS—

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Maybe you know how to go through a receiving line gracefully and you're an old pro at answering formal invitations correctly, but are you just as careful about the little everyday courtesies? For instance, do you:

1. Stand when an older person enters a room?

2. Hold the door for the person right behind you?

3. Say "excuse me" when you have to pass in front of another person?

4. Watch where you're going, so you won't bump into others?

5. Pay attention when someone is speaaking?

6. Arrive on time for appointments?

7. Send a bread-and-butter note after you've been a house guest?

8. Remember to make a thank-you phone call to a hostess after a party?

9. Avoid interrupting when someone else is talking?

10. Say "please" when you ask for something and "thank-you" when you get it?

RAY — DeJONG

Rev. F. J. Hommersen performed the double-ring wedding ceremony before a background of pink and white gladioli in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, when Edith DeJong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wieger DeJong, Stirling, was united in marriage recently to John Kenneth Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray, also of Stirling. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Grace Brown played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Carol Bailey, who favored with two selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length bridal gown of silk nylon tulle fashioned with a fitted bodice of imported lace trimmed with delicate hand beading of sequins and seed pearls, and full length pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt was accentuated with lace appliques. Her bouffant illusion veil with scalloped edging was caught by a chiffon rose with petals of tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of Yuletide red roses mingled with baby's breath and encircled with white tulle and fern.

The bride's sister as matron of honor, Mrs. Betty Lutzendorff of Sharbot Lake, and the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Morrow of Stirling and Miss Barbara Fobert of Belleville, were identically attired in aqua nylon organza over taffeta sheath styled dresses featuring fitted bodices with scoop neglines and short cap sleeves. The tiered skirts were accented with removable overskirts of nylon organza. The matron of honor carried a cascade bouquet of aqua and white poms, while the bridesmaids each carried a colonial bouquet of aqua and white poms.

Mr. Glen Floud of Stirling was groomsman, while Mr. Jack Lutzendorff, brother-in-law of the bride and Mr. William Bailey, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The wedding supper was held at the I.O.O.F. Hall immediately following the service with a reception later on at the Legion Hall where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a dress of champagne beige French lace over taffeta with matching jacket having three-quarter length sleeves, dark beige accessories and a corsage of yellow feathered carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a dusty rose lace and crepe dress, matching accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

For the wedding trip to the East Coast travelling through Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York States, the bride chose a raspberry red suit with black accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Islington, Mimico, Sharbot Lake, Peterborough, Belleville, Port Perry and Simcoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray will reside at Oak Lake.

Tips for Financially Harassed Bride's Father

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for the June wedding season comes this tip for the financially harassed father of the bride: he like the African tribesman dad—and make the bridegroom help finance the wedding.

The word comes from the National Geographic Society, faithful recorder of odd and not-so-odd customs the world over.

Telling of the African tribal custom of "lobola"—or bride-payment—the society says in a press release inspired by the imminence of the June wedding season:

"Before consenting to the engagement, the father of the prospective bride squeezes every possible cent out of the would-be bridegroom, and uses part of the booty to help meet expenses."

But apparently, some of the prospective bridegrooms are too shifty for their future fathers-in-law, because the society also says:

"Even in primitive societies of Africa and Asia, the father of the bride often runs himself into near-bankruptcy to pay for a lavish wedding and feast."

WORDS AND CUSTOMS

Here's some more wedding data to pass on as you wait your turn in the reception line:

—The term "bridegroom" comes from the Anglo-Saxon. It was the custom for the husband to wait on the bride at the wedding feast, and so he was called the "groom," or "servitor."

—The still-popular custom of tying old shoes to the bride's moon car is a carry-over from ancient Egypt where the father, in giving away the bride, would hand the bridegroom one of his dad's sandals—signifying that from this day forward, he was to be the young man's care.

—The term "honeymoon" derives from a custom of the Norsemen. Each day for a month after the wedding, the newlyweds took a sip of mead, a fermented drink made of honey, to bring them good luck and health.

—Rice-throwing is a legacy of the custom of the ancient pagans who brought grain to the wedding ceremony—to insure fertility.

Finally, if the bridegroom walks swiftly to the ceremony, he may be harkening to the ancient Andalusian proverb:

"Matrimony and the bath must be entered with a rush, because if you do it slowly you will get cold feet and not enter at all."

Fear of Childbirth Not Uncommon but Avoidable

DEAR DORIS — I have been married a little over a year (am 34 years old) and would like to have a baby some day in the near future. I have a terrific fear of hospitals, operations, any kind of pain and can't seem to get rid of this fear. My sister is a registered nurse but I have always seemed to be this way. Luckily enough I have never been hospitalized.

Is there any way I can get rid of this fear? To put it plainly, I am afraid to have a baby. — AFRAID.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR AFRAID — Many a woman faces this prospect with panic in her heart. You had the courage to write me a letter about it, and that's the first step. It's the unknown that scares us. Childbirth is a natural process and a healthy, well-readied body and mind and spirit can sail through. And the rewards are tremendous!

Learn by reading about it; and, more important, by talking with your doctor. The fact that your sister is a nurse may have given you just that little bit of knowledge which is a dangerous, distorting thing. Write in again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for the name of a book about this fascinating subject.

DEAR DORIS — Men find me attractive; I am good at studies; I am 20. Now I ask you, Doris, shouldn't I be the happiest person alive? Instead, I am the most miserable. I have become introspective and obsessed by fears.

"What people think" has become a cruel and relentless master. Psychiatrists say my fears are groundless, that I must overcome them by getting out and mixing with people. But the more I try, the worse it gets.

You see, my fears drive me so that I appear "shook up" to people, and my fears get worse. It's a vicious circle! Am I abnormal? — TORTURED BY THOUGHTS.

DEAR TORTURED — I've read over your long letter twice. What started the present trend so examine, question, torture yourself? You are living proof that brains and looks just aren't enough. Peace of mind must come from an inner sense of worth.

Tough part is, we can't get it by focussing on our own personality, even on our own good points. I agree with the psychiatrists that you simply must start turning the spotlight on somebody or something outside of yourself.

When you have done something useful for somebody else, at some cost to yourself, you'll begin to have a feeling of self-worth.

DEAR DORIS — I am a girl of 16 and was going with a guy of 18. He lived too far away and the only way I could see him was to meet him at a dance, so I started going with someone else who lives handier to me.

Unfortunately when I see the guy I went with before I feel guilty and get butterflies in my stomach. I can't tell the one I am going with now how I feel because he always has someone with him. Could you give me a few hints on how I could solve my problem? — GUILTY.

DEAR GUILTY — If the butterflies mean "suddenly it's spring!" — and that you'd rather be with the first one — better find a time to explain to the guy you broke off. You were still right to want an escort who would come and get you where you live. Hold out for it.

DEAR DORIS — Maybe this sounds stupid to you but my problem is that I have too many skills. I am skilled in carpentry, gardening, typing, any mechanical things. My best loved talent is art. Right now I manage a store.

Do you know someone who would be a true critic of art and would have the time to evaluate my paintings? It would help me greatly to decide whether to rid myself of these fantastic notions or go ahead all the way.

My wife recognizes my talent and has begged me to do something about it. — ARTISTIC.

DEAR ARTISTIC — Your best move is to collect your best paintings and take them or send them to a reputable dealer in a large centre. Dealers are always on the watch for fresh talent.

If you have a flair, it will not go unnoticed. It's not a matter of contacts, but of dedication and love of the work. And whatever the critics decide, don't ever give up your painting. Art is a satisfying outlet in a world millions to you in mental health.

Confidential to TWENTY MILES FROM TOWN — If you are well enough, you could go to the National Employment Service in town and get advice about physical work you could do. Many epileptics are now living normal lives with the assistance of drugs to control their seizures.

If you find that work away from home would be just too tough, begin making friends near where you are. Could you find a pal with whom to develop a hobby — perhaps music or photography or birdwatching — for those lonely hours?

(Don't just muddle along. Write to Doris about what's troubling you. And remember that stamped envelope!)

U.C.W. Meeting

HOLLOWAY ST. U.C.W.

Holloway St. U.C.W. held their May meeting in the church parlors on Tuesday evening. The program was under the direction of Ruth McMillan's group. The theme for the evening was Christian Education. Representatives from each youth group of the church were present and gave an interesting outline of the activities of their group and the reasons they enjoyed being part of it.

They were introduced by Mrs. H. Holt as follows: representing Messengers — Lance Jeffrey; Explorers — Lynn Bailey; C.G.I.T. — Donna Wannamaker; Cubs — Craig Anderson; Scouts — Doug MacCormack; Vacation School — Alaine Skura; Hi-C — Suzanne Lowther; Energetic Club — Oria Shantz.

Barbara Jones gave an inspiring report of the weekend several of the young people spent at Queen's University and thanked the ladies for their help in giving them an opportunity to attend and learn of vocations in the church.

Mr. D. Ptolemy, superintendent of the Sunday School, drew attention to the tremendous need of more space for the 33 classes from the smallest class of seven pupils to the largest class with 22 pupils. Attendance and enthusiasm are high in spite of the crowding.

A letter of thanks was read from Dr. Hronitsef for the donation received for the Victor Home Mission in Toronto, and it was decided to send a contribution to Camp Quin-me-Lac to help cover expenses. It was decided to continue saving labels for the "Golden Book of Charity".

A period of devotion was led by Doreen Carlisle, stressing the need of working together for the good of all.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

We returned last week from a holiday down south and now have a 8-pound bag of pecans (in the shell) and a gallon jug of Ontario maple syrup. The pecan pies we had in Louisiana were delicious as were the pralines candy of New Orleans and maple sheps. Do you have such recipes or any other suggestions for using the pecans and syrup? — Mrs. M. H. C.

Dinner Menus

FRIDAY

Quick Salmon Loaf (see Thursday); Boiled White Potatoes; Green Pea Sauce (see Thursday); Shoestring Potatoes; Shredded Cabbage and Radish Salad; Apple-sauce; Ginger Cookies; Coffee.

SUNDAY

(Important Guests)

Standing Rib Roast of Beef (see Monday); Corn Popovers; Steam-Fried Cucumbers and Green Peppers; Tomato, Avocado, Watercress and Lettuce Salad with Lemony French Dressing; Strawberry Ice Cream Meringue Pie (see Wednesday); Coffee.

ANSWER:

I have mailed to you my recipes for making Southern Pecan Pie, Chocolate "Turtles" (using pecans) and a recipe for lease giving a Maple Syrup sauce. Here is one for

SOUTHERN PRALINES (quoted as given to us old Southern cookery cookbook):

1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup icing sugar, 1 cup maple syrup, 1 cup cream or half and half, 1 tablespoon light corn syrup, 1 teaspoon maple or rum flavoring.

Mix the above, cook over a low heat until it makes a soft ball, or to 238 deg. on the candy thermometer. Start beating by hand. This takes a few minutes but electric mixer beats too fast. When the mixture begins to turn a little lighter, add 1¼ cups pecans, then start spooning out before the candy hardens too much. Have ready, heavy, large flat crooks pans covered with waxed paper. Make the pralines as large or as small as you want them — 3" diameter is averages.

QUESTION:

I have an abundance of rhubarb this year. Can I conserve it? — Laura S.

ANSWER:

RHUBARB CONSERVE:

Four cups cubed rhubarb, cut fine, 3 cups raisins, 2 cups sugar, juice of 2 oranges, rind of 2 oranges, finely sliced, ½ to 1 cup walnuts. Combine rhubarb, raisins, sugar, oranges rind and juice. Let stand ½ hour. Bring to boil and boil, uncovered, 60 minutes, stirring frequently. Add walnuts, coarsely chopped, and boil to jam stage, about 8 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars. Cool slightly and seal with paraffin.

RHUBARB CHUTNEY:

Two lbs. rhubarb (7 cups cut), 1 large onion, 1 cup vinegar, 1¼ cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each cloves, allspice, few grains cayenne pepper, 1 teaspoon whole pickling spices (tied in cheesecloth bag). Wash and cut rhubarb into ½" pieces. Peel and slice onion. Combine rhubarb, onion and vinegar and cook, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and cook, uncovered, until the chutney is of the consistency of jam, about 40 minutes, stirring to prevent sticking. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Design Faults Of Refrigerator Are Listed

TORONTO (CP)—Home Economist Margaret Laws of Toronto believes appliance manufacturers should put a woman with experience on their executive staffs to correct what she calls the obvious sins of male engineers in appliance design.

She delivered her criticism of the industry at the annual meeting Thursday of the Canadian Council of Appliance Manufacturers.

She listed these design faults in ideas of male engineers who had not tested the items properly:

—Heavy ranges and refrigerators that can't be moved for cleaning;

—Electric kettles that, can't be washed to avoid scales and mineral water deposits;

—Refrigerators shelving without setting controls for synthetic fabrics and with openings so wide "you have to thread in a blanket";

—Roasters that won't toast whole wheat and other bread without putting the slices in for another try;

—Crisper pans so shallow they won't hold a head of lettuce.

—Egg storages shelves for seven, nine or 14 eggs;

—Broilers that don't produce enough wattage to broil a steak properly.

WEEK'S DIRECTIONS

Miss Laws said it is important to provide easy-to-read directions with appliances because more than half of today's brides are younger than 20.

Mrs. A. J. W. Plumptre of Ottawa, president of the Council, asked why producers of appliances don't consult with one another but also with themselves.

She said the CAC found identical irons bearing two different names, both recommended to the consumer by the Appliance Manufacturers' Association in a bulletin, were not listed as the same thing, even though the CAC found they were made by the same company.

She said that among the irons and electric kettles the CAC has tested, the highest priced item has never been the best quality.

ONLY $5 QUID — You can be the proud owner of this fine piece of horse-flesh — well, plaster, actually — for only £55 at London's Dodo Shop. A Bizarre Bazaar Of British Junk

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—If you're still looking for that stuffed horse to fill the blank space in the front hall, your troubles are over.

You can pick it up for only £55 in London's Dodo shop, not far from the famed antique market in Portobello Road.

While you're there you can also collect that 1890 brass weighing machine you've always wanted for the bathroom and the 1933 Chicago-made pinball machine you've been promising the kids all this time.

Opened three years ago by a couple of happy - go - lucky 24-year-olds, Robin and Elizabeth Kerrow, the Dodo flourishes as a repository for the unusual and sometimes grotesque things people like to decorate their homes with these days—a bazaar for the bizarre.

"It's not 'art nouveau' or anything like "that," said Robin, leaning nonchalantly on a mahogany post box from some hotel lobby Queen Victoria might have visited. "The style of design has no real label.

"I believe in America they call it Country Junk—and they don't mean that disparagingly—but this stuff is as much urban as country."

WANT JUNK

Robin trained as a graphic designer, which explains the dozens of ancient signs scattered around the shop—signs for 'extinct brands of beer, tea, bicycles, mustard and one reading: 'Shop Here For Your Umbrella." His wife's family are antique dealers.

"What we're after are things that are exciting to look at," Robin explained. "Everything in the shop has one thing in common—they are all liable to be thrown out.

"We do 50 per cent of the buying ourselves and the rest comes from four or five people we deal with regularly. Hundreds of people come in offering us worthless junk but we seldom take it."

The couple work in the shop full time and "earn enough to make a living, which I must say surprises even me."

Among the recent things they've sold was a life-size baby elephant with an electric motor that made the trunk move and the eyes roll.

"That went for £60. We were glad to get rid of it. It took up half the shop."

They have also sold a miniature merry-go-round, complete with animals and an organ, that was eight feet across.

But there are lots of things left, including a four-foot toothbrush, a mechanical corkscrew the size of a submachine gun, an ancient ceiling stone, three or four telescopes, a barber's pole and a colored engraving of the branch emblems of the Amalgamated Union of Operative Bakers and Confectioners, 1889.

And for some lucky bargain hunter there is a simple cast-iron tombstone reading: "In memory of Wm. G. Williams, Purser R.N., who died October 26, 1826, aged 41 years." room fireplace.

Just the thing for a living.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

Y.M.C.A. BUILDING

Big news of the week is final completion of the new Y.M.C.A. building on Victoria Avenue. Architects Craig, Zeidler and Strong had their men go over the building Monday, on a final inspection, and the Y.M.C.A. began moving furniture in on Tuesday. First official use of the building will be for a coffee party for staff and group leaders Sunday — the party will be put on by the directors and the main purpose will be to give the staff and leaders a preview of the building. First activity, a Learn-to-Swim class is planned for Monday.

Meanwhile, Hugh Murray's men will be working outside the building on some jobs not covered by the original contract and other contractors may be called in for other outside jobs, landscaping and such. First job for Murray will be erection of a sign and other odds and ends should take about two weeks to clear up.

If Hugh Murray's supervisors look especially happy this week, it's because they've just returned from a four-day fishing trip in Northern Quebec. Jack Wickins, Archie Parks, Don Jackson, Bob Pennell, Truman Ferguson and Jimmy Murray all drove up via Ottawa to the end of a road somewhere in Quebec, then flew by light pane to a camp. No game available on the lake or the camp, but they caught about 200 speckled trout between them in four days, Murray says, and in two hours one morning from the same spot he saw a wolf, a moose, three ducks and a beaver. The company paid for the trip and the men got back Sunday.

McFARLAND'S ROAD WORK

Work started slowly at McFarland's Construction yard in Bellevile about two weeks ago and has been gathering momentum since. First jobs are a runway extension at the Station Trenton and paving of the north land of Highway 401, east of Marysville.

On the 401, granular fill is being laid low. Paving will be from west to east, ten-and-a-half miles to where Carter Construction left over. MacNamara Construction has the final stretch into Kingston. Paving is with concrete, but with a special type of expansion joint to avoid the bumps of the concrete pavement on Highway 400 and on some parts of the Queen Elizabeth Way.

MacNamara's is also doing some work on Highway 14, and the firm expects to start operating two bituli-mix plants, one at Belleville and one at Foxboro, next week.

SIX PLEXES

Martin Geertsma of Cannifton is laying brick now, on the second of the six-plexes in Leo Buckley's 'Idlewood Manor' development, and Dick Poelstra is doing the plastering. The top floor of the second building is about ready for trim now. The first building in the development is finished and occupied; there is no start on the third building yet. The development will include four buildings.

Next door to "Idlewood Manor" Ron Henwood of Ivanhoe is bricking the third six-plex in the "Sidney Court" development being built by Bill Green and Bud Lambert. Number four is the last building planned for this development.

And about a hundred yards south on Sidney St., Howard Thompson is framing the second floor of his second six-plex. Thompson plans three of the buildings, one of which he built about two years ago.

BELLEVILLE TOWERS APARTMENTS

Windows were installed on Monday at Belleville Towers apartments, corner of Victoria and George Streets. Quinte Roofing has the roofing contract, the only local subcontractor to go on the job since it re-started.

Plastering will start in about a week and a half, according to superintendent Albert Baird.

SMITH TRANSPORT TERMINAL

Office area is almost finished at the Smith Transport terminal on Adam St., and Tallman's men installed the local levellers (short-range hydraulic elevators), at the loading dock Monday. Ashfoot has a bulldozer there now, levelling and filling the parking lot area.

JOBS COMING UP

Hugh Murray Construction appears to be low bidder on the new LCBO building planned on Station St. The single story building will have a full basement and will cost about $150,000. The firm is also low bidder on the new Bayside Public School, in Bayside, and has put in a bid on the 11-classroom Sir MacKenzie Bowell public school in Belleville. No contracts yet.

T. E. Andre and Sons Ltd. of Kingston appear to be low bidders on the new Federal building in Trenton, at about $410,000. No contract has been let yet, but Andre officials say local subcontractors will have preference if Andre gets the job.

Of eight firms requesting plans, five have submitted tenders on the new building for the Ontario Intelligencer, to be built at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge Streets. No tenders have been received from local firms.

TRENTON STREETS AND SEWERS

Carr's Electric of Trenton, subcontracting for Raynor Construction on the Sidney Street sewer job there, will be finished in a few days on the main line south from the underpass by Highway 401. The sewer meets another line run north from North Murray St. last year. Lateral connections and catch basins have still to be finished on this section, according to D. W. Evans, supervisor for Raynor.

On Dufferin St., the main line work is finished south of Wilkins St., but some laterals are unfinished. Rock between Wilkins St. and Dundas West is slowing completion of the final section.

And in the east end of the town, gravel is laid and curbs and walks are completed on Dundas from Campbell to Sidney St., and the street is open to traffic. From Sidney St. west, down Gilmour Hill, the road is completely torn up and sanitary and storm sewers and water lines are being replaced.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Syndication is a method of real estate investment that has been of increasing interest and concern to readers.

The following letter from Mr. F. L. is typical of the many we have received asking for information on the organization of syndicates and their advantages and disadvantages.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am a professional man and am interested in investing in real estate. I don't know very much about real estate, and I would not have the time to manage it myself.

A realtor has asked me to join nine other professional men to form a syndicate to purchase an apartment house. The price is $300,000. A $200,000 mortgage will be obtained, and we will each invest $10,000 to cover the downpayment. The realtor will manage the property, and he promises that we will receive between 10 and 12 percent return on our investment.

On the face of it, it looks very promising. I would appreciate your comments, however, on the advantages and disadvantages of such an investment arrangement.

Answer: Syndication real estate investment, when properly organized by a reputable and knowledgeable realtor, can prove very satisfactory.

You get the advantages of investing in real estate: high rate of return; constant growth of equity (as the mortgage is amortized from the income of the property), and depreciation allowances on your income tax return. At the same time you are relieved of the burden of management and can participate in a major piece of real estate with a modest investment.

Two disadvantages are that unless there is a guaranteed lease on the property the income may fluctuate, and it is not always easy to disengage from your investment.

By far the most important consideration, however, is the realtor you are working with — this is unquestionably the key to success or failure in syndication.

Investigate other syndicates that he has organized. Speak to the people he has dealt with and the success of the properties he has selected. Then you will have a sound basis for decision.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My house was condemned for a new highway and I was offered $12,000 for it by the Highway Department. I thought it was a pretty good offer and it is about $1,000 more than I could have sold it for before.

I had just about made up my mind to accept when a fellow came to see me and said that if I signed some papers to give him the authority he could get me twice as much. I don't see what I have to lose as he is not asking for any money in advance — only a percentage of what I get.

Should I accept his proposition? — Mr. F. L. T.

Answer: I would most definitely advise you against accepting this proposition it has been my experience that getting twice the value of your house is most rare and unusual. Probably you will end up with less money than your current offer, for your "agent" will be entitled to a substantial fee and, in addition, you fees, expert testimony and other costs.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband works for a large national firm We thought we were going to be stationed permanently in Philadelphia, and built a new house in the suburbs. Now we are being transferred to Chicago

We love our new house so well we want to build an identical one in our new location. Could you tell us if it would cost more to build it there — or less — and how much difference there would be?

Answer: A house built in the suburban area of Chicago will cost about 15 percent more than an identical one built in the suburban area of Philadelphia.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I want to get thrown out of my apartment. I have a terrific chance to get a new one that makes the one I have now look like a slum, but my lease has nine months to go.

My friends have given me the usual breaking suggestions — wild parties where the neighbors call the police; constantly letting the sink and bath tub overflow; banging up the walls and woodwork, etc. But none of these strikes me as particularly imaginative and I would like to try some new approach.

Could you give me a few ideas along that line? — Mrs. B. E.

Answer: If those suggestions in lease breaking are the usual ones for your friends, you don't need new ideas, you need new friends. Their advice will likely provide you with a lawsuit or a stay in jail instead of a broken lease.

Assuming that your landlord wouldn't be happy to terminate your lease, I suggest you face up to your responsibility and honor your commitment. Honoring contracts is, after all, part of growing up — and nine months isn't forever. You will discover the right way is the least complicated and most satisfactory.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

How Many Roses Can You Expect From Each Plant?

Who says roses don't bloom profusely? Rose test garden officials at Ohio State University counted the number of blooms on the best 100, of about 200 varieties of roses in the garden. The results?

On the hybrid tea roses there was an average of 78.8 blooms per plant.

On the grandifloras, the average was 82.4 blooms; and on the floribundas, the average number of blooms per plant was about 225.1.

If a three-dollar rose plant produces a minimum of 6¼ dozen rose blooms to decorate the home, the home owner at $3 per dozen saves $18.50 on each plant by "growing his own," says the American Association of Nurserymen. It is probable that at Ohio State the rose plants were cared for scientifically for the very best growth and blooms, but anyone can grow roses and receive returns from them in blooms that far outweigh the original cost of the plants.

Shopping for a House A Serious Business

In the search for a house of his own the prospective home owner comes up against that "mental block" question. Which is better, to build or to buy?

Like a good many other questions it is not one that can be answered simply. There's little doubt that an individually tailored home may be only got a clearer notion of what every feature will mean to you when the house is completed, property, but the actual workmanship can also be assessed. Materials that go into the house are bared to view and a comparison can be established between houses put up by various builders.

This method of shopping for a home is becoming more firmly established, not only in our larger urban areas but also in selected communities and in smaller municipalities. Blocks of land in different parts of the city are developed at the same time by different builders, model houses are put up on display and the customer places his order for the type of house that he feels is best suited to his needs and his means. Making the rounds of model houses on various streets has become an established week-end pastime in Canadian cities. Sometimes, to assist the shoppers, a group of builders will organize a "parade of homes" in a single location, each builder displaying his wares like a giant fair.

Whether you have a house built to your specifications or whether you buy one "off the counter" will depend on how exclusive are your tastes, whether you have a lot of your own, and on the amount of money you are prepared to pay for your new home.

Enjoy Properly Planned Patio

If you are considering a retreat for relaxation in the backyard — a little planning can go a long way toward capitalizing on the advantages of outdoor living.

"Whether it's simple or elaborate, kidney-shaped or round, made of flagstone, concrete or brick, careful planning will help make a finished patio much more comfortable," says a noted remodeling authority.

R. J. Baker, remodeling specialist for Allied Chemical's Barrett Division offers a few simple points about patio construction:

-Location can be important depending upon the uses planned for the patio. "For example, if it is to be used extensively for outdoor cooking and eating, it is usually best to locate it fairly near the kitchen door," says Baker. "Even a complete meal, such as a barbeque, can be cooked outdoors, but don't forget the food, plates, etc., all must be carried from the kitchen."

"Sun-worshippers" who wish to bask in the backyards will wish to consider the best possible unshaded location. Those who prefer the shade should also include this factor in their planning.

A lighted patio may make summer evenings more enjoyable. If electricity is to be wired to an outlet on the patio, it is always best to have the job done by a professional.

A family with small children may desire to keep their play areas separate from the patio. This way the whole family can enjoy the yard at the same time. A locker of some sort, in which games such as badminton and croquet can be stored when not in use, can provide valuable storage space. A locker also may provide accelent storage space for lawn furniture, barbeque grilles, charcoal and the other accessories to outdoor living.

When planning a patio adjacent to the house, Baker suggests attaching an awning made of rigid vinyl building panels that can be fitted over a lightweight metal or wood frame. The panels can be either translucent or opaque, ribbed or flat and installed in colors that blend with the exterior of the house. They can be used in varieties such as alternate translucent and opaque panels for in differ-

Architects Design Better Homes

We tend to associate architects with churches, schools and tall buildings, and maybe some of our finer built - to - order residences, but seldom with the more modest homes. The services of the architect are available to every prospective home owner, not only to those who can afford a mansion. Most of the better home plans that have found favor with the public have been architect designed. Creating is the architect's job, but he often assumes the additional role of building supervisor. He will make sure the building standards, plans and specifications are being observed. If you are looking for something a little different in the way of a house, if the lot on which you plan to build is not a conventional flat piece of land or if you want to make the best of the scenery, the architect with his skill and experience can assist you. Given your ideas he can translate them into shape, combining the attractive with the practical. The architect can also tell you what kind of materials would be best suited to your house plans. If you are an individually minded person when it comes to the design of your home then let the architect is the person to consult.

ent colors to provide a bright appearance.

If privacy is desired, an attractive fence of the vinyl building panels can easily be attached to a redwood or metal frame. The panels are incombustible, resist corrosion and are not affected by chemical agents used on garden and insecticide sprays. They can easily be washed clean with a garden hose.

Shopping

Shopping around for a house is a game that pays dividends if carried out intelligently. The main pitfall to guard against is haste. Take your time and don't allow yourself to be carried away by the first sales talk. In able to every prospective home owner, not only to those who can afford a mansion. Three of Four Remaining Famous Dionne Quints Join In Observing 30th Birthday

CALLANDER, Ont. (CP) — Time has taken its toll in material ways, but the memory of a spectacular quintuplet birth 30 years ago is still fresh in the minds of people in this Northern Ontario community.

Thursday was the 30th anniversary of the birth of the famous Dionne Quints.

The old farmhouse where the five girls were born is gone. It has been removed from the site and placed in a commercial entertainment centre now filling a role as a tourist attraction. In its place is a modern ranch-style bungalow.

The log nursery still stands on the property surrounded by high grass.

The family mansion has been converted into a nursing home. A lofty building nearby—partly restored for use as a restaurant—still wears the white lettering the word "information." In the "Quints' room" youth it served as a souvenir shop.

LIVE NEARBY

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, the Quints' parents, live a short distance from the huge Dionne homestead.

Celebrating on their 30th birthday, three of the four surviving Dionne Quints celebrated the occasion quietly at the home of Gemain Allard, Annette's husband, at nearby Bruno, Que. The Allards have three children.

Marie, who is Mrs. Florian Houle, lives in suburban Montreal with her two daughters and brother, Mrs. Philippe Langlois, of Montreal, also attended, without her three children.

Yvonne, now at a convent in Moncton, was not able to attend.

Emilie died Aug. 6, 1954.

The reunion was private. A home-cooked meal, a birthday cake and an exchange of gifts.

A story which has been told about how news of their birth reached the world centres around a telegram sent to the late E. H. Bunyan, editor of the North Bay Nugget.

"How much would it cost," the caller asked," to insert a birth notice for five children?"

LEARNS OF BIRTHS

Mr. Bunyan asked a couple of questions and learned that the caller, Allan Dafoe, a 54-year-old mother of five, had just given birth to quintuplet daughters.

He sent a reporter to the scene—William Dumaday, now with the Toronto Star—and the combined armed forces in the department of national defence.

Mr. Dumsday and the late Dick Rollton, a studio photographer, found Mrs. Dionne in bed with five baby daughters near her. Mr. Rollton was the only photographer to take a picture of Mrs. Dionne and her babies in their bed—a picture which has been reproduced and published in every newspaper in the world.

Stay Execution Of Marcotte Until July 3

MONTREAL (CP) — A last-minute stay of execution Thursday night postponed until July 3 the hanging of Georges Marcotte, convicted "Santa Claus" killer who also killed two policemen just before Christmas of 1962.

Marcotte, 32, was to have mounted the gallows at midnight. But Governor Albert Tancrede Jodoin of Bordeaux Jail confirmed at 7 p.m. that a postponement had come through from Rene Hamel, Quebec attorney-general.

Mr. Hamel said he granted the postponement because the Crown may want Marcotte to testify at the trial of Raymond Fournel, 40, an alleged accomplice in the double slaying during a bank robbery in suburban St. Laurent.

Fournel's trial is set tentatively for June 8.

Marcotte's lawyer, Yves Mayrand, sought the postponement after federal authorities refused Thursday to commute the bandit's sentence to life imprisonment.

Witnesses at Marcotte's trial in March, 1963, identified him as the bandit dressed in a Santa Claus suit who sprayed the two policemen with bullets from a submachine-gun. The victims were constables Denis Brabant, 31, and Claude Marineau, 34.

Welfare Dept. Will Supply Pills for Free

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's welfare committee voted Thursday to make free birth control pills available to welfare recipients.

Previously, the city had not officially approved of payment for the pills received by prescription. Welfare commissioner Rebena Morris revealed last week some such prescriptions had slipped through the department's screening system and ordered an immediate halt to the purchase.

The committee voted 7-to-1 to support a motion by Ald. May Birchard that suitable drugs be included on the welfare department's prescription list and that they be supplied only by prescription to those "requiring them for medical reasons."

The committee agreed that religious, moral and medical aspects of the question were matters of private or professional judgment.

Its action has taken despite a warning from city solicitor Gordon Bates who said the supply of birth control pills by welfare recipients is of doubtful legality. He said he was trying to determine if there was a precedent for the action.

Last week, two Toronto suburbs rejected the move supplying the pills to persons on welfare.

Ald. Thomas Wardle, committee chairman, cast the lone dissenting vote, claiming it was an improperly to saddle taxpayers with a charge that should be borne by birth control pill users.

Pro-Cuban Forces Open New Campaign

By PAUL H. FINCH

CARACAS (AP) — Terrorists of the pro-Cuban Armed Forces of National Liberation have opened a new campaign of robberies, sabotage and petty guerrilla raids in Venezuela after a pause of nearly five months.

The latest pattern has changed slightly since the AFNL was formed in September, 1962, with the goal of toppling then-president Romulo Betancourt and setting up a Fidel Castro-type regime.

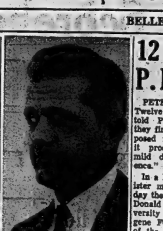
Originally the AFNL was more interested in spreading fear among businessmen by office raids and bombings that the govern ment by propaganda stunts and sabotage. But gradually AFNL action have concentrated more on looting cash, weapons and supplies.

In another raid AFNL agents murdered the chief of a government identification bureau branch office and escaped with blank documents, presumably for use by terrorists under false names.

At least five small villages have been raided and sacked also by AFNL guerillas in the last month.

STRENGTH SMALL

Officials have estimated AFNL strength at no more than 300 or 400 men in the country.



It has been considered a peculiar party striking force aimed at provoking a coup d'etat.

Not a breath of rumor about coup d'etat plots has been heard from the armed forces since the election. Businessmen, both foreign and Venezuelan, report booming trade since the election.

One-million of the 8,500,000 population still suffer malnutrition and at least 700,000 are unemployed, admits the government. But Venezuela's poor are not politically restless.

PERMITS VISIT

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China has agreed to permit a Japanese delegation to visit graves of Japanese war criminals who died in captivity on mainland China after the Second World War. A total of 192 war criminals died in Communist Chinese prisons and the bodies of 126 of them were sent back to Japan.

GERALD F. CUNNINGHAM

Labor Council President Heads United Appeal

Gerald F. Cunningham, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council, has been elected president of the Belleville United Appeal. The post of president was left unfilled at the Appeal's annual meeting when directors were unable to find anyone willing to serve.

"Labor is willing to fill the gap," said Mr. Cunningham, in accepting the post. "The men and women who belong to the labor unions in Belleville are proud to play this important role in our community's development. We pride ourselves in doing a good job, whatever the job may be. The biggest job for all of us is to put the Belleville United Appeal over the top this fall," he said.

"I have accepted this post, knowing well that I have a busy years ahead of me in both the Labor Council and the United Appeal," said Mr. Cunningham, "but the Appeal is a duty that no one can shirk. Both the members of the Labor Council and the directors of the United Appeal have my surrounded these offices with extremely capable people who will provide the necessary assistance to see me through the year," he continued.

"I fully support, and I know that every member of labor's team supports the United Way of giving. We are going to give all our efforts in making the United Appeal go over its goal this year for the first time," stated Mr. Cunningham. "For after all, the United Way and the labor movement are linked in the same basic concept," he said.

Mr. Cunningham, a member of the Appeal's board of directors, was earlier elected to the mayor's special committee on welfare services.

ACCIDENTS KILL 277

OTTAWA (CP) — Traffic accidents in Canada claimed 277 lives in March—40 more than in March last year, the bureau of statistics reported today. This brought the toll for the first quarter of the year to 728 deaths compared with 620 a year earlier.

12 Leading Canadians Tell P. M. New Flag 'Innocuous'

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Twelve leading Canadians have told Prime Minister Pearson they find the government's proposed new flag "innocuous"—a colorless "tepid approval, mild disapproval or indifference."

In a letter to the prime minister made public here Thursday the 12, headed by historian Donald G. Creighton of the University of Toronto and Dr. Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the flag is not unmistakeably Canadian and does not express unity.

They ask the prime minister to abandon the maple leaf design "for the time being" and meet with leaders of all parties to agree upon a design "which asserts our history."

The letter expresses support for the project of a distinctive Canadian flag, but adds that the only advantage of the proposed design is that it is innocuous.

"We have a distinguished feeling that this insipid flag, instead of promoting national unity, will produce only an indifferent response, and in doing so will erode our national spirit," the letter says.

It stresses that Canada is founded on "the long and often turbulent marriage of the French and English heritages" and suggests that Canadians "celebrate ourselves on this union, and "on its parliamentary and non-revolutionary tradition."

The writers say the maple leaf has "never gained anyone's vigorous allegiance and involves no commitment to the human fact of Canada."

In addition to Prof. Creighton and Dr. Forsey, the letter is signed by Mrs. E. A. Dyde, Edmonton member of the board of the National Gallery; David M. Harley, Toronto lawyer; W. L. Morton, professor of history at the University of Manitoba; Eric McLean, Montreal music critic; T. H. B. Symons, president, Trent University, Peterborough; Walter Pitman, head of the history department, Kenner Collegiate, Peterborough; Jean Palardy, author and film director, Montreal; Dr. MacGregor Parsons, Red Deer, Alta. past president Canadian Medical Association; Denis Smith, professor of politics at Trent University, and Scott Symons, assistant curator, Royal Ontario Museum.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The young promoter of a Canadian Youth Parliament for 1967 appears to have overcome some of the political problems that threatened to torpedo his proposal.

In doing so, he may have given an object lesson to the country on its choice of parliamentarians and how Canadians should align themselves once they get into the House of Commons.

William S. Fair is a University of Saskatchewan student who came to Ottawa last year fired with enthusiasm for convening a national mock Parliament of young Canadians in the House of Commons as a centenary project.

He was given a polite but somewhat sceptical hearing by party leaders, MPs, reporters, civil servants and leaders of various national organizations. They saw merit in the idea, but feared what might happen if it became identified with any one or all of the existing political parties.

RETURNS WITH BRIEF

Now Bill Fair has come back with a nine-page brief on the subject. In it he names groups and pairons, and ideas to emphasize the worth of a Youth Parliament with safeguards against partisanship.

For one thing, members of the Youth Parliament would not be chosen on the basis of straight election, either in personal popularity polls or as representatives of existing political parties engaged in partisan warfare.

They would have to earn their seats. Selection of members and alternate members would be made on the basis of essay and public speaking contests among those who will be 18 to 21 years old in 1967.

In the judging, Bill proposes that speaking and writing ability be counted 50 per cent, 25 per cent respectively — along with knowledge of current national and international affairs. Scholastic standing and group or community activity would each contribute 12½ per cent.

DIVIDED BY OPINIONS

Once the members of the Youth Parliament were chosen they would be divided between government and opposition groups as is required to make the parliamentary system work, but not on the basis of political parties. Mr. Fair's proposal is that the young members be asked to vote on a series of issues which they take their seats, such as the importance they attach to foreign trade as opposed to domestic commerce in the development of a prosperous economy in Canada.

As a result of such a quiz, they would be divided between government and opposition benches according to their prime minister and opposition leader.

It is known that the Centennial Commission headed by John Fisher has endorsed the idea of a Youth Parliament for 1967 in principle. Details have not been worked out but it is reported Bill Fair's proposals are being given more than what is usually described in parliamentary jargon as "sympathetic consideration."

HEAD BOY AND GIRL at Nicholson Catholic College this year are Bob McLaughlin and Brigitte Koestler. Both Grade XIII students Bob is a top athlete and is president of the Student Council; Brigitte has been an honor student since coming to the College and has taken an active part in public speaking and Glee Club activities.

Bruce Zeran Of Napanee Wins Award

Bruce Zeran of Napanee, Grade 13 student at Albert College, has won the Hastings and Prince Edward high school awards contest sponsored by the Certified General Accountants' Association.

The award for $50 is one of seven for Ontario, the overall winner receiving a $250 prize. Seven high schools in Hastings and Prince Edward area competed. Participants were required to write two one-hour papers on English and Math. Throughout Ontario five hundred students competed, the top three going to a Toronto study camp.

Bruce, whose father formerly worked for a bank in Belleville, will receive his prize at the Albert College convocation on Monday.

Computer Issue In Paper Work Not Resolved

TORONTO (AP) — All issues but one have been resolved in the contract dispute between Toronto's three daily newspapers and Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC), it was announced Thursday night. No details of the agreement were given.

A joint statement by negotiators for both parties said still under consideration is a union request for jurisdiction over electronic computers to be used in connection with the publication of newspapers.

The newspapers — The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail—have refused to accept ITU jurisdiction over the operation and maintenance of computer equipment.

The statement, issued after two days of negotiation, said a new proposal governing a "data processing centre" has been made by the newspapers and is now considered by the international union's headquarters.

This is the first time the ITU has been involved in what has been used in the computer dispute and negotiators gave no details of its implications.

WILL MEET AGAIN

Representatives of the two parties will meet here again when the international union has made its decision.

None of the newspapers has installed computers but all three are planning their use in the work of various departments.

The computer issue already has been taken before the international executive of the ITU, in previous talks between the papers and local 91, the parties agreed to ITU control over copy directly before and after it goes through a computer involved in composing room work.

But actual operation and maintenance of the computer would be out of ITU jurisdiction The ITU international rejected this.

The announcement Thursday means that negotiators reached agreement on the practice of setting bogus type—a system by which printers are paid to reproduce type from papier-mache moulds supplied by another newspaper or other source.

The type is later scrapped without being used.

This reproduction practice has been restricted in the past to retail advertisements. The newspapers had said the union sought to extend the practice.

Wages and other benefits were not disputed in current negotiations. They were agreed upon at earlier talks.

Opposition Critical of Govt. For Not Having a Cabinet Minister at Nehru's Funeral

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition accused the government Thursday of "complete negligence" and "an inexcusable amount of incompetence" because Canada was not represented by a cabinet minister at the funeral of Prime Minister Nehru of India.

External Affairs Minister Martin refuted the Conservative charges by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and said everything possible had been done to get Defence Minister Hellyer to Washington Wednesday in time to get a ride to New Delhi with U.S. State Secretary Rusk.

Mr. Martin said the only plane which could have got Mr. Hellyer to Washington in time—the transport department's Jetstar —was in New York.

He said the Jetstar had left Ottawa—it carried Trade Minister Sharp to New York for private talks with businessmen there—before news of Mr. Nehru's death had been received.

RECEIVED INVITATION

Mr. Martin also said the invitation from the Indian government for a Canadian cabinet minister to accompany Mr. Rusk to India on the U.S., presidential plane was received between 9 and 9 a.m. Wednesday.

When he left Ottawa he said the matter was "an example of complete negligence," Mr. Martin said the invitation was worthy of a former prime minister.

"When it comes to unworthiness," Mr. Diefenbaker (Prince Albert, Martin) has a place all his own."

Mr. Douglas raised the matter by asking who was responsible for the "muddle" which prevented Canada from being represented at the Nehru funeral by a cabinet minister.

Mr. Martin said there had been "no muddle."

AMBASSADOR WENT

The senior Canadian representative at the funeral had been Jean Chapdelaine, Ambassador to Cairo.

Mr. Douglas said "I think there was an inexcusable amount of incompetence on the part of whoever was responsible for making the arrangements."

Mr. Martin denied this. He said it was the government's fault it didn't have a plane which could fly to New Delhi in time for the funeral.

The defence department has been considering purchase of two DC-8 passenger jets.

Mr. Martin asked Mr. Douglas not to persist in his questioning because of the "wrong and unfortunate impression that it creates." He said he had been made to have a cabinet minister attend the funeral.

Parole Board Saves Prisoner On Tied Vote

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph Flaherty, 41, was saved by a 2-2 tied vote of the parole board Thursday from being returned to prison to finish serving a sentence of 36 to 76 years.

The four members of the board said a final determination will be made later.

The case came up before the board after Flaherty, released 13 after serving 13 years, was injured in an auto accident.

The four members of the board meeting Thursday declined to reveal details, but said the discussion covered possible parole violations.

MARRIED CANADIAN

When he was injured, Flaherty was with his wife, the former Frances McKearney of Peace River, Alta., whom he married shortly after his release, and another couple, not publicly identified.

It was through his wife's efforts in part that Flaherty won his release after prison and correction department officials said he had been rehabilitated.

He had worked on the prison newspaper and after his parole obtained a job as a newspaper reporter here.

Four Cuban Exiles Shot By Firing Squad

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro's firing squads have shot four Cuban exiles captured when they tried to land in Cuba. A government announcement Thursday asserted they were agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The announcement was the first mention of the capture of infiltrators since anti - Castro exiles in the United States announced plans to begin landings to launch guerrilla warfare.

The men had sailed from Miami in a speedboat that was organized, directed and financed by the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States of North America," the announcement said.

The four were executed Wednesday after a trial by the First Revolutionary Tribunal of the Revolutionary Army. They were identified as Felipe Vidal Santiago, former officer in the army of former dictator Batista; Ladislao Gonzalez Benitez, Elias Rivera Bello, and Alberto Valdez Linares.

They were captured by frontier guards of the interior ministry after they were sighted by fishermen off the coast of Bahia of Las Villas province, the announcement said.

The government statement gave no hint as to when the men were captured.

India's Socialist Party Leader Refused Entry

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Police escorted the leader of India's socialist party from a segregated cafeteria Thursday after he refused a manager's request to leave.

Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia of India and a white woman companion, Miss Rita Roy, native of York City, were stopped at the entrance of Morrison's cafeteria in suburban Jackson.

Police said later the two were not arrested, just "escorted out" and released. They said the cafeteria manager declined to press charges.

Lohia and Dr. A. D. Belitel, white president of predominantly-Negro Tougaloo College here, had been refused entrance to the restaurant Wednesday.

DON'T WANT HIM

"We don't want your business," he told Lohia. "This is private property. I am asking you to leave."

"I am not leaving," replied Lohia. "I tell you with the greatest humility I am not leaving."

Police Lieut. C. R. Wilson, who had been standing nearby, then stepped up and asked: "Did you understand the manager?"

Lohia replied cheerfully that he would not leave. Wilson told him:

"I'm sorry, I'll have to place you under arrest." Wilson directed Lohia and Mrs. Steven to a police wagon.

Lohia, here visiting integrated Tougaloo College, heads a party of 25,000,000 members. He is a member of India's Parliament.

STATES STAND

Lohia said he wanted to make it perfectly clear that I am not trying to uncover or publicize something but in American life. Such foul spots exist everywhere — also in India.

In Washington, the state department apologized to the Indian ambassador for the treatment of Dr. Lohia in Jackson.

Pedro San Juan, director of the department's office of special representational services, said that in addition in an oral apology made Thursday a letter expressing formal regrets was being sent to Ambassador B. K. Nehru by George Ball, acting secretary of state.

Ontario Intelligencer Sports

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There seems to be an air of optimism along shedrow in what is now called the "Belleville Raceway" (Chat's the new blueblood title for the Fair Grounds track.)

Now that a brotherhood-of-man aura has settled over the hitherto strife-scarred scene, harness racing buffs can anticipate what is said to be one of the greatest seasons on record.

The track which was little more than a quagmire when the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held their colors ceremonial and no credit to a city this size, has undergone a strenuous face-lifting and present indications are, with the co-operation of the weather-man, that it should be in good racing condition come post-time tomorrow evening.

Tomorrow night's inaugural meet of what I believe is a sixteen-eight season is the first venture under the Quinte Driving and Riding Club's new management. Racing buffs can top off the Saturday night BBB, (beans brown bread and bath) with a fling at their favorite sport.

Word from the Driving Club's front office has it that post positions will be drawn at the track tomorrow night. After that they will be drawn the previous Wednesday and published in the club's racing program.

Another new feature this year will be a photo finish equipment to be installed on the roof of the grandstand. This will be in operation Saturday night.

It will be located in a small building next to the roof-top press box and owned and operated by the government.

In reply to a number of inquiries the track will not be lighted this year. Infield parking will be used. Failure of the Parks Board and the Driving Club to arrive at a lighting agreement has postponed the venture for the season at least.

The club presents a card tomorrow night that includes some of the best harness horses in the district. Four races are scheduled, the first heat getting under way at eight o'clock.

As of this writing some twenty-five horses are entered in the four classes. They come from Kingston, Belleville, Trenton, Odessa, Tweed, Crookston, Stirling, Springbrook, Crosby, Godfrey and Picton.

Due to the lateness of getting final arrangements made, a tremendous amount of work has been crammed into a few days by club president Ken Isaacs, his executive and board of directors. Many wrinkles had to be ironed out and unexpected obstacles overcome.

However, matters appear to be on the straightaway now and with everybody bending a shoulder to the wheel it is felt the club is off to a good start.

I don't know whether Madame "Seidemrite," the club's one-eyed selector, has returned from her winter cottage in Alaska, but if her crystal ball made the grade her services will be available again this year.

Be that as it may. The "Away We Go" sign is out and club directors with an outstanding card "kicking off" the new season feel that with public co-operation, 1964 should be one of the best years harness racing has experienced here.

Late word has it that more horses are expected to enter for Saturday's opening meet and don't be surprised if a full card is available by post-time.

TORONTO (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics dressed only nine men Thursday but outscored Fort Credit Sailors in every period to take a 15-11 victory in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

George McGaffey scored four goals for the Sailors. Paul Henderson scored twice while Gord McCracken, George Kapasky, Bill Allan, Ron Brown and Brian Absarm had one each.

'The Face In The Scoreboard' Caper

By MIKE RATHERY, Associated Press Sports Writer

Now National League headquarters faces a rather delicate decision.

Here's what happened Thursday as the Phillies lost 6-5 to Pittsburgh Pirates and dropped into second place behind San Francisco Giants, who defeated St. Louis 3-1 on Willie Mays' 19th homer.

Mauch protested as the Phillies came to bat in the sixth inning, complaining he had spotted a face in the left field scoreboard. Mauch said it belonged to Roy Face.

Knowing that faces in scoreboards often steal signs, Mauch said this Face had no business there.

The Pirates' relief specialist admitted he was in the scoreboard.

"I went there just before the first Philadelphia batter came up in the sixth," he said. And, said Face, he had a reason: He was using the rest room there.

The case now goes to the National League Jury, Warren Giles presiding.

While the Phillies and Giants were exchanging place in the standings, Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds played the longest game of the season—with neither team winning. It ended in a 2-2 tie, called because of curfew after 17 innings, and will have to be replayed.

BUNT SCORES WINNER

Elsewhere in the NL, a suicide squeeze bunt by Nellie Fox gave Houston Colts the tie-breaker run in a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee Braves and Chicago Cubs defeated New York Mets 2-0 on Billy Williams' 11th homer and Larry Jackson's three-hit pitching.

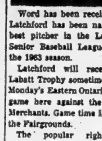
In the only American League game scheduled, Kansas City Athletics capitalized on four Chicago errors and handed Juan Pizarro his first loss by beating the White Sox 4-1.

The Phillies took a 5-4 lead in the eighth on Roy Sievers' sacrifice fly. The Pirates tied it in the ninth on a walk to Dick Pagliaroni and singles by Stargell and Pete Schofield.

Curt Simmons, now 6-3, scored the Cardinal run in the fifth inning on Curt Flood's double and had the Giants blanked on five hits until the eighth. Cap Peterson then led off with a walk and walked two outs before Mays connected. Mays' shot was touched by a fan in the stands and the ball was knocked back onto the field but the umpires waved him home.

CURFEW ENDS GAME

The Dodgers and Reds were scoreless until the 12th. The Dodgers scored two against Cincinnati starter Jim Maloney on his throwing error and a run-producing single by Tommy Davis. The Reds then tied the score in their half on run-scoring singles by Leo Cardenas and Johnny Edwards. It stayed that way until the 12:30 a.m. local curfew time ruled a halt.



Fox bunted with the bases loaded and the score tied 1-1 in the eighth and scored John Bateman with the tie-breaker for the Colts. Warren Spahn, now 4-4, took the defeat. Mike White's single accounted for the other two runs.

The Cubs managed only two hits off Galen Cisco and Larry Bearnarth but scored in the first on Lou Brock's double, his steal of third and an infield out. Williams's homer in the sixth gave Jackson, 6-4, additional working room.

The Athletics scored three unearned runs on the four White Sox errors and that was more than enough. Orlando Pena brought his record to 6-3 with John Wyatt's relief help.

Will Honor Latchford At Opener

Bill Latchford, mainstay of the Belleville Kenmor pitching staff and club MVP last season, will receive another honor at Seniors' opening game here next Monday night.

Word has been received that Latchford has been named the best pitcher in the Lakeshore Senior Baseball League during the 1963 season.

Latchford will receive the Labatt Trophy sometime during Monday's Eastern Ontario Senior game here against the Oshawa Merchants. Game time is 8:15 at the Fairgrounds.

The popular right-hander compiled the most impressive won and lost record during the scheduled season, posting eight tops in strikeouts. He was also a main factor as the Kenmore marched to the Ontario Baseball Association's senior finals before bowing to Galt Terriers two games to one.

While no official announcement has been made, it is expected that Latchford will get the opening pitching assignment for Joyce against Oshawa here Monday night.

MADE FAVORITE

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP)—Roy Sturgis' Mr. Brick, a $10,000 yearling purchase who has earned about $300,000 is the favorite for Saturday's $100,000 Jersey Derby. Mr. Brick, with Bob Usserry in the saddle, was made the choice after Kjell Qvale's The Scoundrel was forced out of the race because of a leg injury. The injury is expected to sideline the Frankness runner-up six months.

Derby Just Another Race

Big Ones Don't Worry Hartack

NEW YORK (AP) — Apart from his passion for expensive sport cars, fine clothes and good times, Bill Hartack is no more typical of the average jockey than Cassius Clay is of the average prizefighter.

To begin with, Hartack never wanted to be a jockey. He went to work as a stable hand only because he could get no other job. He is an exceptionally intelligent young man who was valedictorian of his high school class in 1950.

"I'm too intense in what I'm doing to really enjoy myself," Hartack said as he tried to explain his complex nature. "That is, I never get elated when I win, no matter how big or important the race."

The angry young man of racing was polite and stimulating as he discussed his stormy career, from his shaky start to his present status as the highest and bet of the riders, and his hopes of the future.

"I just never become enthusiastic about anything," he said. "Even when I won my first race, I wasn't overjoyed. I was so worried about not making any mistakes that I actually did not enjoy it."

"Honest, I get no bigger kick out of winning a big race like the Kentucky Derby than I do out of winning a $2,500 claiming race," added the man who has won four Derbies, including this year's, which he followed with a spectacular Preakness triumph aboard Northern Dancer two weeks ago.

"I admit it's more important to win a Derby because of the amount of money it brings and because of the accent on such an important racing event by the press and public. But winning a small race for a poor owner gives me the same satisfaction."

In all, Hartack, who will try to become the first jockey to capture the triple crown of racing since Eddie Arcaro did it with Citation in 1948, has won more than 3,300 races since he began riding in 1953. He was the first to win the national title as the leading jockey three years in a row—in 1956, 1956 and 1957.

The 31-year-old Hartack lists four requisites of an outstanding jockey, other than riding a good horse — determination, judgment, reflexes and memory.

"Even when I won my first race, I wasn't overjoyed. I was so worried about not making any mistakes that I actually did not enjoy it."

"Honest, I get no bigger kick out of winning a big race like the Kentucky Derby than I do out of winning a $2,500 claiming race," added the man who has the future.

Juniors Blank Trudeaus 1-0

Ethier Tosses 2-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Bobby Ethier faced only 29 batters in a brilliant pitching performance last night that gave Ellis Juniors a 1.0 B. and D. Softball League victory over Trudeau Motors. He struck out four with no walks.

Ethier allowed only two singles, in providing his club with its first win of the season. He was backed by Trudeau's third consecutive loss.

Both clubs played errorless ball and completed the tilt in just 66 minutes despite the football weather. A small crowd braved the cold and was rewarded with first class ball by both clubs.

The same two teams hook up at the CNRA Park again Saturday night, at 6:45, in a game rained out earlier this week.

Doug Ellis also hurled well in defeat, scattering six hits over the route. He nipped three on strikes and walked one.

Juniors scored the game's lone tally in the fourth inning and it was a mistake by Doug Ellis that helped the run cross the plate. Chatland led off the inning with a solid triple but appeared destined to remain there when the next two batters popped up.

Malloy walked and with two strikes on Larry Soule, Ellis threw a low changeup, permitting Chatland to race home with the run. Soule struck out.

Trudeau's best chance came in the eighth when Garry Duggan led off with a single to centre, reached second on a passed ball and moved to third on Plane's ground out. McGuire was called out seconds later when his bat hit the ball twice, ending the threat.

The only other Trudeau runner was Frank "Shiner" Murray with a two-out single in the second inning. Ethier fanned Plane after Murray got to second on a wild pitch.

Bailey Plane pulled off an unassisted double play after two singles with one out threatened to add to the Juniors' total in the eighth.

Umpires—Austin Watkin (P) and Keith Berrin. Time: 1:06.

"Bulldog" Hady Here Tonight!

This evening's main event professional wrestling match at Memorial Arena will be contest of brute strength versus speed and science.

Dick "The Bulldog" Brower, Mr. Unpredictable of the pro ranks and one of the sports most powerful competitors, will pit his battering ram tactics against the scientific manoeuvres of Gentleman Jim Hady, 223 pound Detroit speedster who only a few years ago won the Junior heavyweight championship of the world in Paris, France.

The semi-final should be a thriller, Billy "Red" Lyons, number one contender for the British Empire title, will tangle with veteran Mateese workhorse, Mike Valentino.

Johnny Foti, 236 pound smoothie from Regina, will take on a king-size chore in the opener. Foti will attempt to duplicate Jack the Giant killer's feat by downing Big Bob Stanlee, 6' 9", 315 pound import from Hollywood, California.

Clark Out To Break Yankee String

Indianapolis '500'

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Scotland's Jimmy Clark, world road racing champion, will make history across the starting line of the 48th Indianapolis 500 auto race Saturday determined to break a string of American victories going back to Howard Wilcox in 1919

His effort may bring out the biggest paying crowd ever drawn by an American sporting event, upwards of 250,000.

Italian Dario Resta, in a French Peugeot, was the last foreign winner in 1916 before the First World War closed the old 2½-mile racing oval for two years. The foreign factory teams never came back in force.

Clark smashed qualifying records in a new British - American hybrid car, a dagger-slim green Lotus built by Colin Chapman of London and powered by a new Ford special racing engine mounted over the back wheels. It's a much improved version of the car in which Clark finished a close second to Parnelli Jones last year.

Ford, in the biggest corporate effort to win the race in modern times, provided the new overhead cam engine to seven of the cars starting Saturday. Only Ford engineers have been permitted to touch the screaming beauties.

MAY BE TOUGH

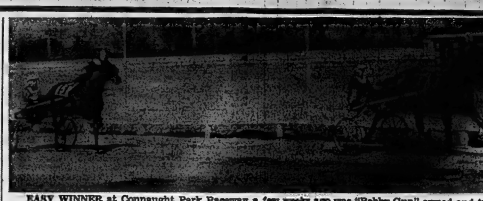
Rodger Ward, twice winner of the 500 and no worse than fourth in the last five Memorial Day classics, may have the biggest challenge to the three Lotus-Fords in a rear-engine Ford built by A. J. Watson, creator of six winning 500 cars, including Jones' 1963 Agajanian Special.

Ward was third-fastest qualifier and will share the front row at the start with Clark and Bobby Marshman, who reached 160 miles an hour in practice with a 1963 Lotus powered by one of the new Ford engines. Climax.

Jones had to settle for the second row in his Watson roadster. He had an alternate rear-engine car but it had bugs and was parked for this year.

Two other former winners in the field are A. J. Foyt, defending U.S. Auto Club big car champion, and Troy Ruttman, the youngest winner in 500 history when he took the 1952 event at the age of 22. Foyt will be in the No. 5 position and Ruttman in No. 18. Both will drive conventional Offy roadsters.

Ward, 43, will be starting for the 14th straight year. Eddie Johnson, 45, will start for the 11th time.



45 A SENIOR

Walt Hansgen of Bedminster, N.J., one of seven first-time starters, will be one of the senior drivers at 44. A noted sports car racer, he is rated a genuine contender in a new Huffaker rear-engine Offy owned by Kjell Qvale, San Francisco sportsman.

There will be television of the long, noisy show, starting at noon EDT and expected to last about four hours, for the first time. It will be by a closed circuit to about 175 theatres and arenas.

The Speedway management reported record advance sales, while the Bradenton, Fla., area's 153,000 seats in the stands and infield bleachers and almost as many more speed fans through the 337 - acre ground and sit on parked autos and trucks.

The only foreign driver who made the field besides Clark is Jack Brabham, the Australian race racing out of England. He built his own rear-engine Offenhauser. He drifted the 500 once before in 1961 and finished ninth in an underpowered Cooper-Climax.

EASY WINNER at Connaught Park Raceway a few weeks ago was "Bobby Gun" owned and trained by Bruce Kemp and driven by Al Vance. "Bobby Gun" paced the mile in 2.14 and won going away. The horse will be seen in action at the opening meet of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club here tomorrow night. He is entered with six others in the fourth race of the card. The club opens its season at the Fair Grounds under highly favorable conditions. Pari-mutuels will be available with new photo-finish equipment installed.

(Have you tried an IPA... lately?)
Satisfying

IPA has the generous flavour to give you the satisfying feeling you expect from a really great ale. Not too strong...but not too bland. Brewed just the way you like it. Like the feeling of 18 holes of golf on a sunny summer day. Satisfying. Try it.

Lightfoots Clobber Landscapers

Lightfoot Construction used the home run weapon to grab a 10-8 Commercial Softball League victory over Barrage Landscapers last night.

Lightfoots moved ahead 4-0 in the first frame on a grand-slam homer by Dick Hurst. Stanley Garvin added a bases-empty homer in the second inning. Don Dolan a two-run clout smash in the fourth and Hurst belted his second and fourth in two games, with none aboard in the sixth.

Barrieges also got in on the homer parade when Jim Sopha crashed a solo shot in the fourth.

For the winners, R. Garvin had a single as well as his homer. Jim Sheridan, contributed a double and single and Don Smith one single.

Harry Powers pitched the win, allowing eight hits, fanning two and walking two. Larry Leveque started and lost with Gerry Genereaux taking over in the third. They gave up 10 hits, whiffed four and passed four.

MAY BAN CHECKOFFS

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Labor Minister L. P. Coderre said in an interview Thursday his department is "considering" legislation banning check-offs of labor union dues for political purposes. Walter Smishek of Regina, executive secretary of the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor (CLC) said in an interview such legislation would be a backward, reactionary step denying political freedom to trade unionists."

Golf Club Short Putts

MIDLAND LEAGUE

The second round will be played Saturday, May 30, at the Golf and Country Club, Lindsay, Ontario. The club will be represented by some 20 members whose starting times have been posted at the clubhouse — post entries will be received until 2.00 p.m. on Saturday — if you are interested, contact either: Jack Lomas or Peter Jones, the conveners.

NORTHERN ELECTRIC TOURNAMENT

On Saturday, May 30, the lea will be closed for the period from 8.30 a.m. to 11.30 a.m. Those members who are not taking part in this tournament and wish to play golf on Saturday should take note of this and plan to play at a time other than the period mentioned. Don't "grouch". This is a small price to pay when you consider that the revenue received from a few tournaments of this kind help to keep dues as low as they are.

CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP SENIOR MEN QUALIFYING ROUND

This event will take place on Sunday, May 31. Winter rules will apply. The draw will be published on Saturday in this newspaper. Times requested by players have been adhered to as closely as possible. Post entries will only be accepted after 8.00 a.m. and until 11.30 a.m. Please co-operate by being ready at the tee when the starter calls your name.

The nine (9) low scorers on the day's play will represent the club in the Quinte Cup competition to be held this year at Trenton Golf and Country Club at a date to be announced later.

RINGER SCORES:

This competition which created considerable interest last year will begin on Sunday, May 31, as announced in the fixture card. Scores reported prior to this date can not be used.

GOLF FESTIVAL

Don't forget the dates, August 1, 2, 3. Plan to be in Belleville and take part in the activities.

WINTER RULES

Preferred lies can be taken anywhere on the front or back tees except in the rough. A ball may be moved in the rough but a one stroke penalty is imposed.

NEW TREES

Several hundred new trees were planted this year and when full grown will be a source of pleasure or damnation depending on your point of view. We want to make certain they do survive and members are asked to assist in this by moving their ball (without penalty) two club lengths away from the new trees but not nearer the hole being played.

SAND TRAPS

If you get in them, that's your fault. Rake them when you get out. Don't compound the problem for the next unfortunate. He knows you are no trickster and the trap is not the foyer of Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

RUBY BERSERK

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby, convicted slayer of president Kennedy's accused assassin, went berserk in his Dallas County jail cell Thursday and was subdued by a jailer, Sheriff Bill Decker said. The sheriff said Ruby, 53, broke his eyeglasses and threw a cuspidor at a light bulb, breaking the light fixture.

US Charity Golf On Saturday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Weekend golfers will be out in force throughout the United States Saturday, throwing $1 each in a charity kitty and hoping to beat Jack Nicklaus or Julius Boros.

The National Golf Day Festival allows the once-a-week golfer to play his favorite layout, then stack his handicapped score against the performance of Nicklaus, the Professional Golfers' Association champion, and Boros, U.S. Open champ. The "hackers" donate $1 to the PGA for each round they want to play against the pros.

Boros and Nicklaus will match strokes Monday at the par-70 Columbus Country Club Course and those who pay $5 each to watch their exhibition round also will be supporting charities.

Golfers winding up with better scores than the champions get a certificate from the PGA, which gives the money to be used for such causes as caddie scholarship funds, golf programs for the blind and amputees and the PGA benevolent, educational and relief funds.

Hydroplanes To Race At Cedar Cove

Hydroplane racing fans of the city will not be disappointed after all.

The Hydroplane Racing Club has completed arrangements to hold a series of races at a new nautical location.

The club president Doug Storey said today that the club will hold its first race Sunday at "Cedar Cove," better known as Sand Cove off Massassaga Point.

Storey said he has effected clearance with the Ontario Provincial Police and the City Harbor Commission to hold the races at this point.

Mr. C. E. Coon, owner of properties around the Cove, has given the club full permission to use his property and other facilities.

Storey said his club plans to hold races all summer on the new location.

He added that some 15-20 boats will take part in the opening races on Sunday starting two o'clock through four o'clock.

The Hydroplane Club sought the Cedar Cove racing grounds after being refused permission to race off Victoria Park by the city Parks Board.

Soccer Game Put Forward To Three P. M.

The Parsons Cleaners-Trenton RCAF soccer match scheduled for the Fair Grounds tomorrow at 6 p.m. has been brought forward to 3 p.m. so it will not interfere with harness racing.

A Parsons spokesman said this will probably be the last game played at the Fair Grounds as a field on Zwicky's Island is rapidly being readied.

Goal posts have been erected and the field laid out. Much stone, however, is yet to be removed.

The field is expected to be ready for Parson's by next week.

SEES WORK AUTONOMY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Maurice Sauve, forestry minister and federal administrator of the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, said Thursday provinces likely will be getting more autonomy for spending under the ARDA program. He also said at a press conference the three-year-old program for aiding development in rural agricultural areas is "just starting."

Minor Softball Results

The Redlegs edged the Mets 13-11 in a West Hill Peewee game last night, one of two tilts postponed by rain on Tuesday. The other game, Phillies vs Athletics, will be played at King George School tonight, at 6.15.

In the East Hill Peewee, also postponed on Tuesday, the Braves clipped the Whitecaps 18-8, and Tigers clobbered the Pirates 24-6. The Giants-Colts game is yet to be played.

In last night's regular Bantam games, Blue Bombers nipped the Argos 15-15 and the Ti-Cats dumped the Riders by an 11-8 score.

Team standings for all divisions will be published tomorrow.

POPE TAKES PART

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul carried the eucharist Thursday night in a Corpus Christi procession. First Pontiff in 100 years to walk with a consecrated communion wafer outside the Vatican. The pope paused at sunset through the Circus Maximus, a long, flat area between Rome's Palatine and Aventine hills, with thousands of Roman Catholic laymen, seminarians, priests and prelates.

Concrets Tie Shannonville

Plane's Concrete came from behind to grab a 3-3 South Hastings Baseball League tie with Shannonville on Wednesday night.

Shannonville scored two in the fourth, and one in the fifth while Plane's bagged a single ton in the fifth and two in the seventh to tie.

Dave Lewis pitched the distance for Shannonville, allowing only three hits while striking out seven and walking four.

Butch Clapp matched the performance for Plane's with a three-hitter, seven strikeouts and no walks in the close contest.

R. Urch hit a double and single and Jack Calnan a double for Plane's. L. Lewis, B. Barberstock and D. Lewis had the Shannonville singles.

hush

(little Evinrudes are seen, and not heard)

Big Evinrudes are great. They can zoom and whoosh all over the place.
But what if you don't want to zoom and whoosh?
What if you just want to troll? What if you need a catlike motor that's powerful but stealthy?
That's when you think about the little Evinrudes. The famous "take along" motors. The 18, the new 9½, the 5½ and the 3 h.p.
They're quiet. They're economical. They're easy to carry around. They'll go anywhere (even among shoals) as slow as a canoe with a nice old lady paddling.
If you want, they can do their share of zooming and whooshing, too. They all have the same high-torque powerhead you'll find on the big Evinrudes.
Some people have two Evinrudes—a big one and a little one.
They're lucky.
They can zoom. And whoosh. And hush.

Says Young Lady Should 'Dry Up and Grow Up'

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 15-year-old daughter is upstairs crying her eyes out. I told her I didn't want to hear any more about it and that I was writing to you. This is what happened:

ANN LANDERS

Marietta's boy friend called her on the telephone an hour ago. Her father answered. He told Gordy that Marietta was taking a bath and asked him to please call later.

When Marietta came into the living room her father announced that Gordy was supposed to call again, after she had time to get out of the tub. Well, Marietta went right straight through the roof. She said it was vulgar, crude and horrible of her father to tell Gordy that she was in the bathtub. Now she doesn't think she can face him again as long as she lives.

May we have your views? — BEDLAM CENTRE.

DEAR CENTRE — It is not essential that everyone who calls on the telephone be provided with a detailed account of why the person wanted is not available at that precise moment.

It should come as no surprise to Gordy however, that Marietta bathes. I don't see how this information could diminish her in his eyes. If she hasn't stopped crying by the time this appears in print tell her to dry up and grow up.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are three married children who need some advice.

Ma died 10 years ago. Pa bought a double cemetery plot and put one big stone in the middle. Ma's name is on one side of the stone, and there is a space for Pa's name on the other side.

Three years ago Pa remarried. These past few months Pa's second wife has been after him to buy another double plot for the two of them. It is the only thing we have ever heard them rave about since they married.

We are trying to stay out of it. Of course, we talk among ourselves and think our father should be laid to rest beside our mother but we haven't said so. If Pa doesn't decide soon, he may need that plot sooner than he thinks. What should be done? — C.O.

DEAR C.O. — It is customary to be buried beside the spouse with whom one spent the greater part of life.

Circumstances alter cases, however, so please suggest to your father that he and his wife discuss this with the clergyman who married them. The family members will then not be involved and the decision will be an objective one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am getting sick and tired of reading that same old worn-out phrase in your column — "when you marry a divorced man you marry the whole package — the ex-mate, the kids, the ex's in-laws, old friends, and so on." You gotta be crazy.

I married a divorced man and there's nothing in my marriage contract that says I have to be bothered with any of the aforementioned kooks. My husband's ex-wife is a religious fanatic who reads the Bible with one hand and drinks gin with the other. Her children are going to be just like her.

American courts seem to have the insane idea that children are better off with their mother, even if she is a nut, so I say let her paddle her own canoe. And why don't you talk about something else for a change? — OUTSPOKEN.

DEAR OUT — It's easy to say "Let her paddle her own canoe" but that canoe has your husband's kids in it.

If this woman is as nutty as you say, and if your husband is halfway decent, he will keep in close touch with his children. This means you are going to be "in touch" too, Madame — whether you like it or not.

AT THE BELLE — James Garner and Polly Bergen are discussing the marital mix-up which they find themselves in "Move Over Darling", the romantic comedy which also stars popular Doris Day. The DeLuxe Color, CinemaScope comedy is now showing at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Streetcar Named Desire Soured Brando on Stage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "No, I have no yen to go back to the stage to play Hamlet or anything else," said Marlon Brando.

Brando established himself as a legend of the American theatre with one play, A Streetcar Named Desire. That was in 1948, and he has not returned to the stage since.

"In the theatre they expect you to freeze a performance and play it the same way night after night for months — years," he said. "I couldn't have that again."

Those who claim he is wasting his talent in movies will no doubt renew their charge after release of his next film, A Bedtime Story, a bawdy farce.

"Let 'em," said Brando. "They've been saying that ever since I did Desire."

Brando, who turned 40 last month, said he had a ball making it, especially in the company of David Niven.

The reviewers have indicated it will be a crowd-pleasing moneymaker.

"That's nice, but it's not important to me" said the actor.

"The Ugly American was a failure — at least it didn't do the business that the studio hoped for. But I believed in it, and I'd do it again tomorrow."

Brando placed a call to his secretary and then couldn't remember how he called her.

"Happens to me all the time," he remarked. "On sets, too, and we're the most important scenes. There were two or three times on Bedtime Story when we just had to shift to some other scenes because I couldn't get the lines I was doing.

"And for one small scene in Desire, I had to do 64 takes!" Brando said he would often black out during the long run of Streetcar on Broadway.

Two Homers Give Jets 4-3 Victory

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Connecting for his eighth hit in his last 13 tilts, Pancho Herrara of Columbus boomed two homers for three runs Thursday to pace the Jets to a 4-3 victory over Atlanta and give Columbus three out of four games in their International League series against the Crackers.

Richmond Virginians pushed across an unearned run in the 10th inning at Jacksonville to chalk up a 2-1 victory over the Suns in the only other league game. Toronto Maple Leafs' scheduled appearance at Buffalo was postponed because of cold weather.

Herrara put the Jets out front 2-0 with his first homer of the night in the second inning. After the Crackers tied it up in their half, he cracked a solo dagger in the third to put the Jets ahead to stay.

Pitcher Barney Schultz, who has worked 27 1-3 innings this season for Jacksonville without giving up an earned run, was the hard-luck loser against the Virginians. Tom Metcalf, second of three Richmond pitchers, got the win.

AT THE PARK — Breaking Free by virtue of his amazing strength is Gordon Scott as Goliath in American International's "Goliath and the Vampires." The Colorscope action spectacular, now at the Park Theatre, today and Saturday, also stars Gianna Maria Canale and Jacques Sernas. On the same program thrills with the Fgratroopers in "Airborne", starring Bobby Diamond and Carolyn Byrd. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open 12.30.

NBC Will Bump Special To Carry Primary Returns

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—NBC has decided to bump an entertainment show—the telephone hour starring Robert Goulet, no less —for full coverage of California primary returns next Tuesday night.

CBS will take over the first half of Garry Moore's hour, and may expand its coverage to a full hour.

As usual, the three major television networks are in fierce news competition during this presidential election year.

The networks are planning to provide extensive, expensive coverage of the two party conventions, an accepted part of television programming since 1952.

Next season may be the last for the slick comedy team of Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance.

Miss Vance, it is known, finds constant transcontinental travel between her Hollywood job and her Connecticut home difficult, and would like to settle down on the East Coast.

Carol Burnett's new broadway musical, Fade Out, Fade In, immediately jumped into the smash hit class. Meanwhile, a TV adaptation of Dorothy Upon a Mattress, the off - Broadway show that helped to make her a star, will be seen on CBS next Wednesday.

50 Boxers Participate In Trials

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 50 boxers, representing the cream of Canada's amateurs, open the two-day Olympic trials and Canadian championships today to determine who will fight for Canada at the Tokyo Olympics.

The five-man Olympic team will be chosen from the champions and runners-up in 10 weight divisions, who will be awarded gold and silver medals.

Top-ranked boxers from each province and the three armed services are entered. Several American fighters have entered the Canadian championships, but are not eligible for Olympic selection.

Sgt. Terry Weatherall, a physical education instructor at Camp Bordoe, Ont. has been named manager-coach of the Olympic team. He previously represented Canada at Olympics as a boxer and now teaches technical aspects of boxing in the army's hand-to-hand combat training.

Deseronto Beats Latta

Deseronto scored all their runs in the fourth inning while defeating Latta 9-2 in South Hastings Baseball League play at Latta.

The homesters carried a 2-0 lead when Deseronto exploded for their five runs, and the victory, the game was shortened to five innings by darkness.

Will Coach NY Rovers

NEW YORK AP)-(CP)—Steve Britakich, 34, last year's coach of Kitchener Rangers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league, has been named coach of the re-activated New York Rovers in the Eastern Hockey League.

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League announced Thursday the creation of the farm club that, as an amateur team, was disbanded in 1952. The Rovers will join five other clubs in the EHL's northern division.

Britakich, a former Rover defenceman, turned professional with St. Paul of the old United States Hockey League in 1950 after leaving the Rovers.

Tourney 'Sideshow To Race'

Nicklaus Blasts '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The roar of sleek racers tuning up for Saturday's 500 - mile auto race was matched by a Jack Nicklaus' blast at the $70,000 Speedway Golf Open, but failed to disturb big George Bayer's charge into the 36-hole lead with a nine-under-par 133 Thursday.

A two-hour time-up run on the motor strip which splits the easy par-71 golf course within the vast speedway grounds dinned into the ears of the Bayer, but it failed to affect his touch for a second-round 67 following Wednesday's opening 66.

Bayer, 42ih in the PGA money list with $5,275 and starved for a tour victory since the 1960 St. Petersburg Open, wound up the chilly wind - swept afternoon with a two-stroke lead over a quartet of 135 shooters.

Runners-up were the first-round leader, California' rookie pro George Archer, Australian Kel Nagle, 1960 British Open champion; Dean Refram and Bob Rosburg, all with 71.

Nicklaus, who finished before the afternoon s r a i n g tests, sharply criticized the tournament as "a sideshow to the race."

Nicklaus shot a 68 and with his 141 for 36 holes was well before the cut-off mark of the top 90 scores and ties. Jerry Mayer of Toronto shot a 68 Thursday. He had a 73 Wednesday for a two-round total of 141.

Bunched at 136, three strokes behind Boyer, were Gary Player, Charles Sifford, and Tommy Jacobs.

KAYO EXPECTED

NEW YORK (AP) — When Florentino Fernandez steps into the ring, it's a 2-to-1 bet that somebody will be knocked out. Only 11 of his 45 pro fights have gone the distance. The Cuban has finished off 31 opponents, he has been stopped three times and has a 39-0 record. Fernandez takes on Joe Gonzalez tonight at Madison Square Garden in a 10-round middleweight match. Gonzalez, a 24-year-old Puerto Rican, has a 27-9-1 record with seven knockouts.

SHAPING the EARTH

THE EARTH'S SURFACE UPHEAVAL

The SAUMAN, pictured here, lived during this time, as did the enormous dinosaurs.

The end of the period saw NEW KINDS OF ANIMALS mostly because the climate had changed and with less water and vegetation available, the many earlier animals died off. LARGE MARSHES OF REEDS, pushed up into the earth's crust with the new formations of mountains.

The CRETACEOUS PERIOD, 63-135 million years ago brought great changes. The ocean spread over the lowland basins of the EARTH'S SURFACE then ever before or since. The once lush plant life only lasted through the first part of this period. It was replaced with vegetation similar to that SEEN TODAY.

No Law Requires Maltreatment To Be Reported

GUELPH (CP)—A coroner's jury was told Wednesday that there is no law in Ontario requiring doctors or hospitals to report injuries to maltreatment of children.

The jury investigating the death of nine-month-old Scott Simpson of pneumonia April 6, recommended that hospital officials be required to report all cases of physical injury or neglect of children to proper authorities.

He said a letter from the attorney - general's department stated there was no law in Ontario to require that hospitals or doctors report injury or maltreatment of children.

The baby was admitted to Scarboro Aug. 28 with a broken left arm and released several days later. On Nov. 8 he was readmitted with a broken right arm and eight broken ribs and was released Nov. 20.

Mrs. William Simpson, the infant's mother, said the baby at times appeared to hold his breath until he passed out. The first time he did it, during October, she called a physician.

Simpson said his wife was a strong woman and the fractures of the ribs and right arm might have been caused when she shook the baby to make him breathe again.

ANNOUNCE AWARDS

World Anxiously Watching For Successor to Nehru

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It seems infinitely sad to recall that Prime Minister Nehru said only a week ago today:

"My lifetime is not ending so very soon."

In his gentle way, Nehru was turning aside questions as to whether he should name a successor during his lifetime to protect the democracy he did so much to achieve in India.

Now that Nehru is no more, the world is anxiously watching the succession in the country of 490,000,000 with its vast diversity of race, religion and economic problems.

Nehru's Congress Party holds 355 of the 500 seats in India's House of the People so that it is obvious the new leader must come from the mainstream of this political group.

But the range of political coloring in the Congress is far greater than in political parties as known in Canada and other Western countries. It embraces radicals like V. K. Krishna Menon and conservatives like Morarji Desai, pillar of financial orthodoxy and guardian of finance minister.

In fact, some observers have been wondering whether the Congress may split now that the tragic and enormous prestige of Nehru is gone. Certainly an all-out struggle for the Nehru succession would point in that direction.

The Nehru tradition of a mixed socialist economy dictates that the new leader must favor socialism but not be hostile to a measure of private enterprise. He will be a moderate Hindu.

The man who can to a considerable degree claim to be Nehru's choice is Lal Bahadur Shastri, 59, a five-foot, bird-like figure who has a different background from the genial prime minister but is a brilliant political organizer.

In the late cabinet last August to help reconstruct the somewhat flabby Congress Party but was appointed in January as a sort of unofficial deputy premier when Nehru needed help after his heart attack.

Shastri is the son of a village schoolmaster and has never been out of India — striking contrast with Nehru, a Brahman who went to Harrow and Cambridge, a cosmopolitan from his youth.

But Nehru recognized Shastri's political wizardry when they worked together on the 1951-52 general election—the first after independence — and later appointed him to a succession of ministries. These included the home ministry, a key position in the multi - racial, poverty-stricken country.

A man of the political Centre, Shastri has shunned publicity but nevertheless gained through the years the respect of the great and small. This was the quality noted by Nehru.

Shastri, who joined Gandhi's independence movement in his youth and was jailed several times, found his gifts in handling men and in unobtrusive conciliation.

Perhaps his biggest test came in recent months over the Kashmir affair that has soured Indian-Pakistan relations since independence. Now the situation shows some hope for the first time in years. India's border fight with China, which saddened Nehru's last days, will be the most dangerous problem faced by the new prime minister.

Guizarilal Nanda, who is presiding over the government for the time being, may yet contest the leadership on a permanent basis but Shastri has other powerful rivals.

There is only prediction being made with any certainty is that it will take at least a few weeks to reach a decision on such an important matter now that Nehru is dead and "the light is out."

Says Matmen Have Chance

SASKATOON (CP) — Canada's amateur wrestlers lack speed and tackling ability but the Canadian team that will compete in the 1966 Commonwealth Games in Tokyo has a good chance to win a medal, says one of the team said Thursday.

Koji Hirabayashi, a 23-year-old Tokyo-born student who was eligible for the Canadian team because his father was born in Canada, said speed and tackling are essential in Olympic competition.

Hirabayashi was named to the team after winning the 125½ pound weight division last week during the Canadian amateur wrestling championships and Olympic trials at the University of Saskatchewan.

Hirabayashi, who has only a scant knowledge of English, made his comments in writing during an interview. An interpreter translated.

Flag Makers Getting Ready For New Market

TORONTO (CP) — Several major flag manufacturers said Thursday some orders for the proposed maple leaf flag are being accepted but that specifications of the flag are withholding production.

They also said Red Ensign sales are booming because of the flag issue.

J. B. Scythe, general manager and vice - president of Scythes and Company, said in an interview his firm has made three new flags on a custom-made basis.

But the most other companies, he said his would await specifications from Ottawa before going into full-scale production. He expressed concern the government did not even consult flag manufacturers for their opinion of the maple leaf flag.

He said the white background on the new flag would fade quickly and that "anyone with brains in his head would know it."

Sales manager Jack Sinclair said customers are buying the Red Ensign "as a collector's item as a souvenir."

Edward Armstrong, president of Dominion Regalia Limited, which produces mainly flag components, said his firm is taking orders that are "running into the hundreds." He said production of the maple leaf flag started at his company on a custom-made basis Wednesday.

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP)—A textile plant in this Eastern Townships community today began preparations to go into mass production of the newly finished new Canadian flags for manufacturers.

Robert Bruck, vice - president of the company, said in Montreal, "We'll be in a position to provide material to flag makers 72 hours after it gets official approval."

Gerald Bruck, president of the firm, said chances are slight that any manufacturer will begin production of the new flag before Parliament acts.

STATE IS PRECARIOUS

TORONTO (CP) — With estimates of $6,000 a month and an income barely sufficient to meet payroll, the Canadian Arctic Research Institute is operating in a state of "perpetual precariousness," its founder, Norman Alcock of Toronto, said Wednesday. The institute, founded 2½ years ago on pledges totalling $350,000, is continuing its original aim of "using scientific methods to find new facts on the causes and preventions of war."

Six Clubs In W. Ont. For Baseball

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Senior baseball in southwestern Ontario's oldest continually operative league, swings into high gear next week with each of its six clubs in action.

Competition in this, the 68th year of operation for the Intercounty Association, began last week with London Pontiac blanking Kitchener - Waterloo Panthers 3-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Rolf Schaal, a former member of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

The 1964 Inter-county League features play-by-operated organizations. Defending titlists Brantford Red Sox will be bidding for an unprecedented sixth straight title.

The retirement of 10-year-veteran centre fielder Jimmy Wilkes and the loss to pro ball of second baseman Bob Frazier has left a big hole open, leave the Sox with a big question mark down the centre. Under the direction of manager-catcher Ted Baker and former Toronto Maple Leaf southpaw Ron Stead, the Brantford club will still be a formidable adversary.

Sixteen Persons Now Awaiting Deportation

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Tremblay told the Commons Thursday night there are 16 persons in Canada awaiting deportation and that six of them have been in custody more than 60 days.

In answer to questioning by David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North), he said the six were either awaiting appeal proceedings of their deportation or arrangements being made with the countries to which they are being deported.

To charges of denial of rights and ruthless treatment of aliens, Mr. Tremblay replied his department shows the greatest respect for those who come here illegally and who must be deported.

Mr. Orlikow had said there were different treatment for rich and poor and for whites and Negroes.

RESULTS FROM CASE

The question arose in connection with the deportation earlier this week of Eric Claude Hoover, 41, an alleged United States Negro who spent 190 days in Don Jail at Toronto prior to being sent to Buffalo.

Justice Minister Favreau told the Commons earlier that steps were taken to prevent any recurrence of such incidents. He and the immigration minister stressed, however, that there were extenuating circumstances in Hoover's case.

Asked by R. G. L. Fairweather (PC — Royal) whether a request would be made of provincial attorneys - general to check the possibility that similar cases have gone undiscovered, Mr. Favreau said that the facts of the Hooper case would be forwarded to the provincial ministers along with Mr. Fairweather's suggestion.

Newsman and Former Mayor Of Toronto, Bert S. Wemp, Bows Out of Job End of May

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Just after the First World War, a Canadian major in the Royal Air Force was told by the doctors in Britain that he'd be lucky if his heart, wobbly from prolonged high flying in open cockpits, lasted long enough to get him back home.

So far it's carried Bert S. Wemp through an energetic double career as a newspaper man and civic politician — including a term as mayor of Toronto, a hitch as war correspondent in another war and various desks on The Telegram including the city editorship.

In all, it's been 50 years since he started lugging copy for The Telegram, and 45 since the medicos gave him a melancholy outlook. He's still laughing at the doctors, and it's only the calendar that's caught up finally to be sure on his 72nd birthday.

Bantam-size Bert—"The Major" to generations of newspaper and municipal people—bows out of the job at the end of May after spending the last 15 years heading up his paper's courts coverage from the city hall pressroom.

KNOCKED COLD

He leaves behind some notable firsts. He was the first Canadian to be accepted in this country for flying service in Britain during the First World War, first from Canada to win the Distinguished Flying Cross and, likely, the first man to step from a newspaper city desk to the mayoralty of a city the size of Toronto.

Quite probably, too, he was the first Toronto mayor to get knocked cold while officiating at a civic ceremony.

He was presiding at the start of demolition of 98 ancient houses to make way for a playground in 1930 when an enthusiastic workman heaved a 50-pound slab of roofing from a housetop. It landed on the mayor's top hat.

A contemporary illustration shows a burly citizen toting away His Honor—all five-feet-three and 140 pounds of him—dead to the world. The first thing he did when he revived was to get the rooftop marksman, who had been quickly fired, reinstated.

"A gentleman of almost courtly grace," commented his old enemy, The Star, in recalling the incident some years later.

COVERED SHOOTING

One way or another, things happened to Bert. He was 16 and the fastest-footed copy boy on the Tely in 1905 when the city editor, one of reporters, told him to bicycle over to a shootout on the other side of the Don River. An escaped convict who had shot three persons and eventually was to shoot himself was barricaded in the basement of a house.

Young Bert got the story from police in the living room, with an occasional bullet popping up through the floor, and went back to the office with eyewitness material and a permanent job as reporter.

By the time war broke out he was studying on the side for the Methodist ministry but a yen for flying led him to a recruiting crew of the Royal Naval Air Service, which was looking for Canadians with air experience. His own experience dated back to 1911 and a four-minute flight with Charles Willard, an American barnstorming in Toronto.

The RNAS was taking only qualified pilots, and he paid $400 for training under J. A. D. McCurdy, who had made the first Canadian flight in 1909 and headed the RNAS training program in Canada.

SPOTTED FOR NAVY

Overseas, he survived several crackups in such bygone planes as the Sopwith 1½, Caudron and Bristol Bullet and flew patrol duty over the North Sea in the open machines, wearing five pairs of socks to keep from freezing and drawing down the equivalent of about $2 a day.

Later he went to France where he did aerial photography and spotting for naval bombardments — including the Royal Navy attacks on Zeebrugge and Ostend—and spent his last year in daylight bombing under escort of such immortals as Billy Bishop and Roy Collishaw.

By the end of the war he had accumulated the rank of major, the DFC, France's Croix de Guerre and Belgium's Cross of the Order of Leopold, but also the supposedly fatal heart disability from prolonged flying at around 20,000 feet without oxygen.

Back in Toronto and fit despite the doctors, he was covering board of education for The Telegram when he observed in disgust after a windy night session that he could lick the lot of them. Challenged to do so, he ran in the 1921 election and topped the poll.

RECORD VOTE

By 1930 he was city editor of his paper and a municipal controller when he took on the redoubtable Sam McBride, twice mayor and a legendary figure in civic politics. Addressing as many as 29 meetings a night, he knocked over McBride by rolling up the then record vote of 56,455.

He took leave of absence for a year from The Telegram to handle the mayoralty—he gave up politics at the end of the year when he was hit by a major operation—and by the time of the Second World War was ready to leave his desk again.

In 1942 he toured the Canadian Pacific Coast and Alaska and visited Britain with a group of Canadian writers, and the next year he was a full-fledged war correspondent at the age of 54. In 2½ years he got around to seeing action in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

He had some close shaves as he hunted around the front lines for Toronto boys. The closest came at Messina, Italy, when he dived into a ditch under bombardment just before the jeep he had been riding was demolished. He added the OBE to his decorations.

"I've been lucky," he says.

SOMEWHERE IN ITALY — Bert Wemp, who retires from the staff of the Toronto Telegram at the end of May, was no stranger to the business of war when he went to Italy as a war correspondent in 1943. In the First World War he was the first Canadian to be accepted for flying service in Britain and the first Canadian to win the Distinguished Flying Cross. (CP Photo from National Defence)

"Lucky in getting back healthy and lucky in having a job I've always enjoyed."

He plans to devote more time to work as a member of the Shriners' crippled children' committee, to gardening and to watching baseball with the wife he married 44 years ago.

Here's an arresting fact: Now, more than 591,000 Canadian automobile owners can stop paying too much for gasoline!

Their cars are designed for premium grade fuel, but not for the full power in the top-octane premiums they have been buying. These motorists pay for extra octane their cars can't use.

Up to now, Now, BP has added two new medium-octane, medium-price Super gasolines. With four great BP gasolines... one Regular and three Supers...you can exactly match the power requirement of your car at the lowest possible cost.

Think about that. Maybe you're one of the thousands of premium gasoline buyers who can use one of the new BP Supers and save 2¢, even 4¢ per gallon.

FOUR GREAT GASOLINES

One Regular and three Supers: SUPER RED is the top-octane fuel. SUPER WHITE costs 2¢ less per gallon. SUPER BLUE costs 4¢ less...and only a penny more than REGULAR.

Rusk And Soviet Deputy Premier Confer In India

Britain Asks Russia To Seek Red Retreat

NEW DELHI (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk held a secret, 45 - minute meeting with Soviet First Deputy Premier Aleksei Kosygin at the Soviet Embassy Friday.

U.S. and Soviet officials confirmed today that the conference had taken place, as Rusk left for Bangkok, Thailand.

Although the officials refused to say who initiated the meeting or what was discussed, it was almost certain Rusk and Kosygin reviewed the critical situation in Southeast Asia, particularly Laos.

Both men came to New Delhi for Prime Minister Nehru's funeral on Thursday.

Kosygin, member of the Soviet Union's ruling presidium, sat next to Rusk in New Delhi's Lok Sabha on Friday at a public meeting for eulogies to Nehru.

They exchanged a brief greeting at Nehru's cremation on Thursday.

Rusk - Kosygin meeting raised a question whether Kosygin would hand Rusk a message to North Viet Nam through Moscow.

With Soviet listening at the public meeting Friday, Rusk spoke of the crisis and dilemmas in the Congo of Nehru.

He (Nehru) reminded us that it is never too late to draw back from a crisis and attempt to find a peaceful solution," Rusk said. An attitude which we once regarded as a panacea in the 1963 or previous years. This would be a terrible job," one said.

TO RISE IN ONTARIO

This is what the ruling means to an Ontario resident sharing the provincial government premiums with his employer: the premium now is $4.20 a month for families and $2.10 monthly for single persons. But effective July 1 it rises to $6.50 and $3.25 respectively. That increase was announced in the Ontario government's budget last spring.

For the full year this works out to $81.00 for a family and $32.10 for a single person.

If the employer now pays half the government premium, it means that T-4 slips next spring will show an added $32.10 in income for each family man and $16.05 for a single person.

The move came to light Friday in a statement by the Canadian Labor Congress protesting the move.

Election Talk In Air

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's maple leaf flag proposal has stirred a wave of election speculation in Ottawa.

One backbench Liberal MP says his party will go to the people if the Conservative opposition wages a filibuster to delay action on the government's flag resolution.

For their party, the Conservatives are said to be ready and eager to battle the issue through to an election.

Behind this element lies Prime Minister Pearson's declaration that his minority government considers its flag resolution a matter of confidence. If defeated on it, he would resign and call a general election.

Quite another from the flag dispute, strong sentiment for a federal election this year has been building up among backbench Liberal MPs.

However, there is no indication backbenchers are influencing the stated position of Mr. Pearson that his government should operate as it commanded a majority in the 265-seat House, and that only parliamentary defeat on a confidence issue should bring on an election.

SAYS 'MIGHT AS WELL'

"If we can't get our program through Parliament we might as well get out," one backbencher said. "The people will elect a majority government," said another backbench Liberal.

The backbench belief he was voicing a fairly general reaction among Liberal MPs to the slow parliamentary pace of the government's legislative program.

The Liberals now hold 127 House seats against 95 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes and nine Social Credit. There are three vacancies due to deaths of two Liberals and one Conservative.

There's some talk of frustration behind backbench Liberal agitation for a vote.

Some argue that now is a propitious time for a government to hold an election, with the country's economy humming in high gear.

Some Liberals — and some MPs from other parties share their view—would like an election before Conservative opposition to projected redistribution becomes effective and carves up their constituencies.

Redistribution is an argument the opposite way among other Liberals who contend the party would gain through added seats because Commons if reduced, bution could be brought into effect before an election.

The government would be the third in three years. On June 18, 1962, the Conservatives were re-elected with only 116 of 265 seats and their subsequent defeat on a confidence issue led the 28th general election on April 8.

If the flag issue leads to an election it would likely mean a July date, or at least largely in summer campaign.

Since a single date for elections became the practice in 1874 only two elections held in the two summer months — on Aug. 10 in 1953 and on July 28 1930.

There have been three September elections, which meant summer campaigning, in 1878, 1911 and 1926.

Judy Garland Now Feeling Much Improved

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Singer Judy Garland, in hospital here with an undisclosed illness, was reported to be much better today.

American actor Mark Herron, Miss Garland's travelling companion, said I haven't seen her since late Friday night, but when I left her she was much better."

There was no clarification of Miss Garland's ailment, which has been labelled here as a heart attack" and was reported to have been rejected as such by her doctor in the United States.

Congress Party Is Rededicated To Policy of Non-Alignment

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The ruling Congress Party's executive committee today rededicated itself in Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's memory to the service of a united India.

It urged "the people to set their face firmly against all divisive and disruptive forces" following the premier's death.

The meeting of the 21-member working committee, which will meet again Sunday to consider Nehru's successor, adopted a resolution to continue the late leader's policy of "non-alignment, friendship to all and of strengthening the forces of peace in the world."

A clear picture was expected to emerge tonight on the extent of support for the main candidates to succeed Nehru, who died Wednesday.

The chief contenders were Gulzarilal Nanda, home affairs minister and acting prime minister; Lal Shastri, minister without portfolio; and Morarji Desai, former finance minister.

Desai generally has won the support of rightists in the party and Shastri the support of the centre group.

Member Defends Smoking

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was warned Friday that if it takes the sex and muscle out of cigarettes, it may be taking a first step toward abolishing democratic rights.

Smoking is a personal habit outside the realm of legislation, Jack Roxburgh (L — Norfolk) told the Commons during consideration of a bill sponsored by Barry Mather (NDP — New Westminster) seeking to give the government control over labelling, exposing, advertising or promoting of tobacco products."

What people decide they want to do is their business, said Mr. Roxburgh.

The government can advise them not to do it, but the government cannot force them to stop it."

Mr. Roxburgh, a former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, represents an Ontario constituency growing a lot of Canada's tobacco. Ontario grows the bulk of this $100,000,000 - a - year crop and Quebec supplies virtually all the rest.

DISCUSS AGRICULTURE

The remarks came at the end of a day devoted mainly to agricultural matters. Agriculture Minister Hays was criticized for not giving enough attention to agricultural matters while Forestry Minister Sauve, whose portfolio has certain agricultural responsibilities, was told he spent too much time on western farm problems.

The bill to control tobacco promotion was discussed for an hour but hadn't come to a vote in the allotted time and automatically was discharged with little hope of reappearing this session.

Mr. Roxburgh carried his argument in favor of cigarettes to the field of cholesterol—another controversial connected to harmful effects on health.

We are going to put in legislation to stop people from eating butter, eggs or putting cream in their coffee?" he asked. "Every one of these products contributes to cholesterol."

Actually, cholesterol had a cherished place, Mr. Roxburgh said.

Not only is the brain rich in cholesterol but cholesterol contains the same chemical nucleus as sex hormones and, therefore, is not to be deprecated."

My gosh, perish the thought, I can see an unproductive generation if you give the government too much power."

If this bill is passed it will be the first step towards doing

Martin and Diefenbaker Exchange Starchy Comments

OTTAWA (CP) — The inflammable flag issue, which the government hoped to keep in check until it officially comes before the Commons, was stirred indirectly by Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland Friday.

The resulting flareup, which Speaker Alan Macnaughton damped down several times, prompted External Affairs Minister Martin and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker — often at the same time—to exchange starchy comments.

"I do not propose to take any lectures from him," said an angry Mr. Martin, acting prime minister in Lester Pearson's absence, in a reference to the leader of the Opposition.

The government thinks it has some divine right, retorted Mr. Diefenbaker. The attitude of Mr. Martin was "when I open my mouth, let no man bark."

The spark was a telegram Prime Minister Pearson sent to Premier Smallwood suggesting that the government proposed to do on the question of the Union Jack it would likely mean a resolution passes Parliament.

Mr. Smallwood tabled the telegram in the Newfoundland legislature Thursday.

It said that when the flag resolution is passed "there steps which would then be taken would be to recommend an ordinance which in turn would authorize a Royal proclamation to issue providing that the . . . Union Jack shall be recognized as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth."

Mr. Diefenbaker in the Commons Friday asked what action the government proposed after the resolution might be passed by Parliament.

Mr. Martin said that question, along with other inquiries, would be considered when the resolution comes up for debate. Justice Minister Favreau said later Friday that the House would be told Monday or Tuesday when the debate could be expected.

When the external affairs minister answered, the opposition leader intervened on a question of privilege to "point out that this information which is being denied to parliament was given to Premier Smallwood in a telegram." He then read it.

Parliament has not been denied any information, said Mr. Martin, "in accordance with our rules any question having to do with the matter should be discussed when the subject matter is before the House."

Anyway, said the acting prime minister, Mr. Diefenbaker didn't want information but he hopes by these simple questions to cause confusion and disunity."

Survey Shows Provinces Join Govt. in Flag-Making

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada, a country without an official flag for most of a century, bids fair to become one of the most beflagged of nations as the provinces join Ottawa in flag-making.

With the Union Jack sinister, the Red Ensign passant and Maple Leaves rampant on a federal field of verbal war, the provinces are acquiring regional banners with each company a fuse.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows four provinces have their own official flag, two are making overtures in that direction and one—Newfoundland—has a choice of two local flags.

Ontario and Saskatchewan are thinking about running up official flags and Prince Edward Island has just quietly unfurled a new one.

Nova Scotia has had a flag for more than three centuries. Quebec, in 1948, and British Columbia, in 1960, got theirs by legislative decisions.

Manitoba, which caught up with the Red Ensign as a result of the Union Jack issue just as the former was about to pass from the national scene, is stuck with new legislation making the Ensign the proper flag for public schools.

Alberta's law as it stands will permit schools to fly the Union Jack, Red Ensign or maple leaf flag as they choose. New Brunswick, Premier Louis J Robichaud says, will be quite happy with the Canadian flag."

Pearson Steers Through Shoals Of Flag Issue

P. M. Receives Degree At London Convocation

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has steered skilfully through the shoals of Conservative western Ontario in his first major cruise under the banner of the proposed maple leaf flag.

In his first public speech since unveiling the new flag design, Mr. Pearson put his case without once mentioning the word "flag" to a London, Ont., audience.

But if the prime minister sidestepped direct mention of the flag, he left no doubt in the minds of his audience what he meant when he argued in favor of making "national expression of appearance of things" accord with "the reality of Canada's proud position in the world."

He took a roundabout way of telling the convocation at the University of Western Ontario that he thinks Canada needs a flag indicating that this country enjoys full independence.

His words were received calmly by the capacity audience. During the five hours he was in London there were no serious incidents of disorderly conduct in case of flag demonstrations.

DOWNTOWN DECORATED

The downtown area was well-decorated with Union Jacks and Red Ensigns. Some citizens said they were just a hangover from the May 16 holiday. Others said Loudoners just wanted to show Mr. Pearson a preference for these banners.

As it turned out, Mr. Pearson didn't make a scheduled drive downtown so he missed the flag display.

In his address after receiving an honorary doctors of laws degree Mr. Pearson called the necessity for Canadian constitutional amendments to be made by the British Parliament "an anachronism."

This "not the absence of certain normal symbols of national sovereignty, have helped to create in the minds of strangers outside Canada and in the minds of many citizens, especially her own, a certain, I am quite mistaken idea that we are not really an independent country," he said.

His prepared text came even closer to spoiling out "flag" by referring to the "distinctive" way Canadians bring in a "distinctive Canadian flag."

IT'S ACCIDENT

Mr. Pearson told reporters later the omission of "distinctive" was purely accidental. His audience seemed to get the point, however, without it.

At another point, he appeared to be referring to the Union Jack in saying that other existing equal partnership with

Caretaker Hero In Explosion

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The warning of a caretaker who discovered a leak in a natural gas line enabled teachers to lead 100 students to safety before an explosion ripped through an elementary school here Friday.

Caretaker Ralph Parent and Kenneth Preselle, 23, a Grade 7 teacher, were inspecting the school for possible stragglers when the gas exploded, leaving the school in shambles. They escaped injury.

A meeting will be held to decide what to do with the students—150 of whom were in the yard when the leak was discovered—would resume their schooling and what would be done with the wrecked building.

The explosion occurred when gas, escaping from a joint separated by a power shovel working on additions to the Princess separate school, was ignited by a flame in a water heater.

Mr. Parent detected a strong smell of gas when he entered his room in the basement of the school shortly before 9 a.m.

GAVE WARNING

He alerted the parted janet and, realizing an explosion was imminent, ran through the school shouting: first floor teachers and children get out."

About half the students were inside when the blast went, were playing in the school yard waiting to be summoned indoors by the school bell. As a precautionary measure, the bell was disconnected.

Before running through the school, Mr. Parent described the situation to a trench driver on the construction site, Mr. Costes, who called ambulances and the fire and police departments. They were standing by when the explosion occurred.

Thomas Hemsworth, manager of Union Gas Company of Canada Limited, said the company has a Toronto Inspection Company, should have followed the usual practice of finding out where the gas lines were before digging.

ROCKS ARISE

The blast rocked the neighborhood for several blocks, causing thousands of dollars damage to the brick school house. The interior of the basement and ground floor of the two-storey building were practically demolished.

Many floors were buckled, a fire door was torn from its hinges and almost every window was blown out.

Mr. Parent and Mr. Preselle, who were on the second floor when the blast occurred, said the whole school moved with the explosion.

Malaysia Agrees to Peace Talks With Indonesia and Philippines

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) — Malaysia today formally announced its agreement to go to a summit peace meeting with Indonesia and the Philippines in Tokyo next month.

An official statement, which was to be simultaneously announced in Kuala Lumpur, Jakarta, and Manila, said the three countries would be preceded by a foreign ministers' meeting.

The date of the summit meeting would be announced shortly, it said.

Malaysia accepts the principle of withdrawal of her forces, both regulars and irregulars, from Sabah and Sarawak" the statement said.

"The beginning of withdrawal shall take place simultaneously with the commencement of the foreign ministers' meeting which immediately precedes the meeting of the heads of government.

"As soon as such verification is communicated by the Thai foreign minister to the foreign ministers and the summit agreed upon, the meeting of the heads of government will commence," it said.

The summit meeting would be by the Tunku Abdul Rahman of the Malaysian Federation, Indonesian President Sukarno and Filipino President Diosdado Macapagal.

Indonesian guerrillas have been fighting Malaysian and British troops along the border of Sabah (North Borneo).

Sukarno had vowed to crush the new British-backed Malaysian Federation, which "links Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, because he assertedly sees it as a "neo-colonialist plot" by Britain.

Negotiations for a summit meeting up to Friday night had been deadlocked on the question of Indonesian troops withdrawing from Malaysian Borneo.

Jacqueline Says JFK Believed One Should Try to Right Wrongs

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) One of the late president John F. Kennedy's firm beliefs, his widow says, was that one should try to right wrongs."

Mrs. Kennedy said Friday on an international television program her husband also believed one's aim should not be to live the most comfortable life . . .

one man can make a difference and that every man should try."

The assassinated president's philosophy was broadcast by his widow on the two-way program arranged as a tribute on what would have been Kennedy's 47th birthday.

Mrs. Kennedy and the president's brother, Attorney - General Robert F. Kennedy, spoke from the living room of the seaside summer home of Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain and the patriarch of the Kennedy clan.

Another brother, Senator Edward Kennedy, in Britain on a program from Dublin, Ireland, by a picture and sound signal relayed via Telstar 1, which brought the European segments to the United States and relayed the American portion to a number of European stations.

Also participating were Mayor Willie Brandt from West Berlin and Harold D. Macmillan, former British prime minister, from London. Irish Prime Minister Sean Lemass joined Senator Kennedy from Dublin.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—A low pressure area centred in northern Quebec continues to control the weather throughout Eastern Canada. Cold air is being forced southward from Hudson Bay into Ontario. A low pressure area centred in western Texas is expected to move east northeastward and may bring some light rain to the southwestern regions on Sunday afternoon.

Two Mishaps Within City Send 4 Persons to Hospital

Four persons were hospitalized after two serious traffic accidents in Belleville last night.

Narrowest escape was on John Street South where a car driven by Terrance Lewington, 20, R.R. 2, Belleville, drove across the path of a CPR eastbound passenger train.

Lewington suffered possible spine and other internal injuries while a passenger, 19-year-old Robert Kiser, 19 Franklin Street, received a broken leg and internal injuries.

At Church and East Dundas Streets two automobiles ended on the sidewalk after a collision that hospitalized Bryan Lever, 26, of R.R. 4, Trenton, and 20-year-old Elaine Storey, 20, of 170 William St.

Police said Lever's automobile was heading south on Church when it was hit broadside by a car driven by 64-year-old Gordon Maracle of Shannonville.

Miss Storey sustained knee and shoulder injuries and Miss Storey—a passenger in his car—head cuts and shoulder injuries.

Total property damage was estimated at $1,200.

Flag Issue Is Sidestepped By Churchmen

KINGSTON (CP) — United churchmen decided Friday to sidestep the flag issue by refusing aside a recommendation to the church's general council that flags be removed from all churches.

Rev. Charles Catto of Oshawa presbytery said, however, that the idea he presented to the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada had nothing at all to do with the flag issue.

"This memorial (recommendation) has nothing to do with the Red Ensign-maple leaf controversy," he said in an interview. The hanging of national flags in churches is basically unchristian."

Delegates implied from the floor of the conference that they did not want to deal with Mr. Catto's memorial because they felt it might involve the church in the flag issue which is sweeping the country.

COMMERCIALS HIT

Beer and liquor commercials and cigarettes came under fire Friday at the conference.

The final sessions of the five-day conference adopted resolutions that:

—All liquor and beer advertising be banned on radio and television sports programs.

—Cigarette be brought under the same measures of control that apply to substances dangerous to the health of the public.

Rev. Edward Shcamerhorn, a former heavyweight boxing champion of Queen's University and now minister at Maynooth near Peterborough, said he was concerned about beer and liquor advertising on sports programs because they were watched by millions of young Canadians.

WHAT IS THE COLOR OF YOUR LUNGS

It may surprise you to learn that a child has pink lungs, an adult grey or black lungs, and the city dweller exposed to industrial smoke or fog has darker lungs than those who live in the country. The average person breathes about 18 times a minute, which totals about 25,000 times each day.

Therefore, it is most important to take good care of your lungs. Have you had your physician check your lungs lately? It is a wise precaution to avoid future trouble.

Bill Evans Visits Sister Not Seen in 44 Years

TRENTON — In 1920, 44 years ago, William Thomas Evans, 21, sailed away from his native England to become a farmer in Canada. He had spent the previous year as a conscript, on the police force at Wolverhampton Borough, and the four years before that in uniform, fighting with the 2nd/1st. Shropshire Royal Horse Artillery.

In Canada, the "feel" of uniform came to the fore again, and Mr. Evans answered an advertisement for a constable on the Belleville, Ontario, police force. He applied; got the job, and went on to serve on the force for 40 years. Retiring 18 months ago, Mr. Evans decided to make a trip after he had heard news of his sister, Mrs. A. L. Brotherton of Chetwynd-on-Tern, Salop.

On May 1, this year, Mr. Evans docked at Liverpool, where he was met by relatives he hadn't seen for 44 years, her husband, Sidney, and their two children. Then a prearranged symbol—the family all wore yellow wallflowers pinned to their lapels—brought together went according to plan.

Today, Mr. Evans, in England for six weeks, will visit other relatives he hasn't seen since leaving the land.

Last year, Mrs. Brotherton heard news of her brother through a friend who had visited Sidcot, Joseph Knott, who was visiting in England. Mr. Knott knew Mrs. Evans' wife, Ida, and it a point to get in touch on his return to Canada.

Mr. Evans enlisted in the British army at the age of 16. Turned down by one officer because he was too young, he returned to the enlistment office later in the day, told another officer that he was 18 and was in uniform by nightfall.

He served in France in 1916, was wounded in 1917 and invalided home. When he was demobilized in 1919, he joined the Wolverhampton Police force. Seven years here, and stable Lioge Wise, who had joined only a few months earlier. This year, his retirement England, the two buddies got together again.

After his 44 year absence from England, Mr. Evans was mostly impressed by the narrowness of the roads and the smallness of the cars.

"The streets here are so narrow, and the automobiles people aren't run over and killed, he told his sister.

Mr. Evans is the father of Donald Evans, manager of the Front Street Red and White groceteria in Trenton, and his wife, the former Rosemary Bailey, who died a few months ago, worked for the Ontario Intelligencer at one time.

Band Seeking New Uniforms

TRENTON — The members of the "Trenton Citizens' Band" are selling ballpoint pens to pay for uniforms. If the band were asked to march in uniform right flow—they'd be banned from Trenton streets, as all they have at the moment are ties.

Formed two years ago, and getting very listenable, under the baton of Ted Snider, the band is becoming more and more in demand for parades, etc.

Ultimate hope of the band is a bandshell in the planned waterfront Park at the Community Gardens. Here, Sunday night concerts would be held for the enjoyment of the citizenry.

GUESTS ENTERTAINED

Lyle the Reptile and Just Pat, a hopped-up version of Charlie McCarthy, in the able hands of Canada's foremost ventriloquist, Ted Rusk, entertained with 250 guests at Thursday night's 25th Trenton Lions' Club birthday celebration for more than an hour.

Lyle slithering gally out of his snake basket, ogled the ladies and Pat had some very personal observations to make about some very dignified Lions. One particular gentleman was advised to get some corsets. Hardly anyone disagreed that Lion Red Whitley was a dead ringer for Frank Sinatra, president Tom Bedford had the last word with: "He'll do like to me for a pupil?" Pat asked the principal of Queen Elizabeth School.

"I've got lots of them there just like you," Tom informed him.

Mr. Rusk added to the general merriment when he got "Auntie Alice" Whitley and Kelly Park up to sing a duet —Auntie Alice contributing an "oh-so-low bass and Kelly hitting the high soprano notes.

When we were all together,
But memories and loving thoughts,
Will live with us forever.

Sadly missed and loved by mother, Mrs. Dorothy Ellis.

CARR — In loving memory of our dear mother, Margaret Carr who passed away May 31, 1963.

We are sending a kiss, dear great heart,
Across the miles apart,
Who is with the angels above,
Where there is no sorrow nor pain,
And we'll meet all our loves,
In God's eternal domain.

Lovingly remembered by daughter Sarah, son-in-law Elmer, grandson Gordon, Barbara and Carl.

FARROW — In loving memory of William Henry R. Farrow who departed this life June 1, 1963.

It was dear to be,
When my husband left for eternity,
He smiled to those he loved best of all,
He breathed his last at the close of day,
I was not there to say goodbye,
But he left this world for his home on high,
But I always will be grateful to friends sincere,
Who did all they could for my loved one dear,
As I read what he left that day,
To serve his Lord in his usual way,
I can't help but love each day and kneel to pray.

His loving wife.

He's just gone around the corner,
And out of sight,
Some day in the future, I know not when,
I hope to meet my loved one again,
But I'll not say goodbye forever,
I'll greet him there, never more to part.

Lovingly and gratefully remembered by his wife Leeta and daughter Joan, son-in-law Ralph and his wife Joan and the grandchildren.

CARR — In loving memory of our dear grandmother Margaret Jane Carr who passed away May 31st, 1963.

CARR — In loving memory of a dear mother, Margaret Jane Carr who passed away May 31st, 1963.

The last time we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts in deep sorrow broke,
You fought so hard to stay,
But when your time was slipping,
So peacefully free from pain,
You left us all to bear and look again
Until another day.

To suffer the end,
Sealed your lips and often stood,
With heart both crushed and sore,
Silent till the end would come,
Not lost but gone before.
Still we think of you each time you pass,
And whispers she only sleeps,
For those we love dear mother,
Until God takes me home for we always will,
Sadly missed by daughter Dorothy.

McFARLANE — In loving memory of our dear mother Ruth McFarlane who was taken so suddenly May 30, 1959.

Kept memories, fond and true,
From you we learned to do.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his niece Eleanor, Sam and family.

Survey

brating the 100th anniversary of the Charlottetown Confederation conference, picked a flag for itself this spring almost without public notice. The legislature voted unanimously for a banner bearing the provincial coat of arms—an island with an English oak and three saplings for the three counties, topped by a lion.

Premier Roberts of Ontario, who says the national maple leaf flag doesn't thrill me," announced last Tuesday in London a distinct possibility" that Ontario will acquire a provincial flag. The province has plenty to choose from—its coat of arms bears a Cross of St. George, a sprig of three maple leaves, a moose, an elk and a bear, plus he trillium as the provincial flower.

The Saskatchewan Jubilee and Centennial Corporation, set up to organize celebrations for the province's 60th birthday next year and Canada's Centenary in 1967, opened in April a five-month contest for a provincial flag design. Saskatchewan has three sheaves of wheat on a red lion passant on its arms, a prairie (tiger) lily as floral emblem and a prairie crocus (sharp-tailed grouse) as additional emblem.

BOASTS OLDEST FLAG

Nova Scotia boasts the oldest flag and the only one granted by Royal Charter. The blue St. Andrew's Cross, with red lion rampant of Scotland on a gold shield in the centre, is based on the charter of New Scotland granted in 1621 to Sir William Alexander by King James VI of Scotland, James I of England, and to Nova Scotia's coat of arms, granted in 1626 by Charles I.

Quebec got its flag — white cross on gale blue with a fleur-de lis in each quarter—after some nationalist agitation but with minimal fanfare Jan. 21, 1948. Then Premier Maurice Duplessis simply rose in the Legislative Assembly at the start of its afternoon session that day and announced that Quebec's new flag had just been hoisted on the tower of the Legislature.

British Columbia, after two false starts, got its flag from Premier Bennet and his cabinet June 29, 1960. A sun rises from, or is setting into, wavy blue and white bars under a Union Jack sky. Critics compare it to Japan's rising sun or a fried egg, but controversy dwindled after the Bennet government won an election following its adoption.

Newfoundland broke out its own Red Ensign, with the provincial arms on the fly, for the visit of Queen Elizabeth in 1959, but many consider pink, white and green tricolor as Newfoundland's true flag.

SYMBOL OF PEACE

The tricolor was created more than a century ago as a symbol of peace between feuding Irish and non-Irish settlers. When hauling loads of firewood to their respective churches, the Irish carried a green banner and the others pink—ostensibly to avoid confusion but more often as a prelude to violence. Settlement of differences was celebrated by combining the two banners with a white bar of neutrality. The tricolor flew at half staff on some St. John's homes when Newfoundland joined Canada in 1949.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba says it was pure coincidence that his government amended the school act in April to replace the Union Jack with the Red Ensign on school flagpoles, just before the federal government produced its maple leaf flag. The premier says he has no intention of opposing the new national flag. But the Red Ensign meanwhile remains the official flag of Manitoba schools until legislation changes it.

Alberta's school act gives schools the choice of Union Jack, the Canadian Red Ensign or such flag as may be adopted by Canada."

HONOR SOCIETY POET

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial statue of 19th century Ukrainian poet Taras Shevchenko is to be lifted into place at a Washington Park on Wednesday. The 14-foot bronze statute, sponsored by anti-Communist Ukrainian - American groups, is scheduled to be unveiled June 27. The statue has been opposed on grounds the poet was both anti-semitic and an idol of the Communist party.

SCALE MODEL of proposed historical redevelopment of South Front Street has been built by grade 12 architectural drafting students at Moira Secondary School as a class project. The model is built to a scale of one-sixteenth inch to the foot, of art board, wood and celluloid. The trees are goldenrod tips. This is the first year architectural drafting has been offered at Moira, and the redevelopment model is the first attempted by the class. In the picture, Kenneth Russell and Richard Bowler discuss placement of a "tree."

UN Must Find Solution For Paying Up Back Debts

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Professional diplomats at the United Nations are looking forward to a long, hot Manhattan summer of backstage dealings on one of their dreariest and most important problems — financances.

Actually, the problem cuts much deeper than mere money. It goes down to the roots of the UN itself; to the way in which the organization reacts in the face of an international emergency.

The problem is to find a solution to the long-standing dispute over financing peace - keeping operations. The deadline is Nov. 10, when the General Assembly next meets.

By that time it is hoped that a way will be found to get the Soviet bloc, France and a handful of other countries to pay up back dues on peace forces.

If no compromise is found by the time the assembly reconvenes, Russia's right to vote in the body will be challenged since she now owes the UN the equivalent of two full years assessments.

The betting in UN corridors is that the issue will go right down to the deadline.

MAKE TEST CASE

The Russians then are expected to decide, on purely practical considerations, whether to push it any further. If they feel they have enough support in the 110-member assembly, they will make it a test case. If not, they will probably try to settle out of court.

Negotiations now going on are aimed in a roundabout way at making it easier to reach agreement on the back dues.

Western diplomats feel that if they can find a workable formula for handling future peace-keeping operations, Russia and France will be much more disposed to clear away the left-over problems of the Congo and Middle East forces. This is particularly true since the Congo force is being disbanded at the end of June and the Middle East force has been reduced.

The Soviet Union argues that assessments voted by the assembly for those two forces were illegal, since only the security council can control peace-keeping matters. It has repeatedly insisted—in public, at least —that it will stick by that stand.

SOME PROBING

There has been some gingerly probing among the American, British and Soviet delegations this spring but these talks apparently have not moved far from dead centre.

A handful of Asian, African and Latin Americans are reported to have discussed a compromise under which the delinquents would pay up and, in return, the Security Council would be given back full control of financing future operations.

At present the assembly is authorized to move in to deal with a crisis when the Security Council reaches a dead end in a big power veto.

It is considered doubtful that a majority of the smaller powers would be willing to give up this right of last-resort action by the assembly.

A 21-country committee of the assembly charged with seeking a solution put off a scheduled April meeting and now is not expected to meet until autumn —unless the shape of a settlement emerges from the private negotiations before then.

Urges Doctors To Be Careful About Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — A United States woman doctor said Friday that unnecessary doses of vitamin D given to mothers could be a cause of recent cases where infants were born with malformed hearts and accompanying afflictions.

Dr. Helen Taussig, professor emeritus of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, said inborn errors of metabolism, once almost unknown, have begun to emerge throughout the world.

She told final sessions of the Ontario Medical Association annual meeting that she knew of seven such cases in Baltimore and 50 more in Germany.

She urged doctors not to prescribe drugs for women of child-bearing age unless absolutely necessary. The women could take fetus-injuring drugs before they know they are pregnant.

Dr. Taussig proposed establishment of an international central agency to which doctors could report their findings after using new drugs. This would be better than the present system of reporting back to drug companies which, she said, often buried bad reports in bottom desk drawers.

SEEKS ASYLUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Communist Chinese diplomat has sought political asylum at a United States embassy in central Africa, state department officials reported Friday night. The Chinese was identified as Tung Chih Ting, 24, who had just been assigned to Usumbura, capital of Burundi, as an assistant cultural attache at the Red Chinese Embassy.

Dept. Charged With Insolence Against Negro

OTTAWA (CP) — After being charged with insolence and having his department accused of "indescribable injustice," Immigration Minister Trembley promised the Commons Friday there would be further investigation into the case of a deported American Negro.

A general attack from the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party benches was headed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas.

The clash arose over whether Eric Claude Hooper, 27, of Buffalo, had adequate opportunity to obtain legal counsel during a 100-day period he spent in custody at Toronto's Don Jail before being deported Tuesday.

Mr. Trembley said his officials had indicated to Hooper twice between March 16 and March 23 that he could have the services of a lawyer. He had refused.

Hooper, who had been deported three times previously, was arrested Feb. 28 by Metropolitan Toronto police on an assault charge that was withdrawn.

He later was charged with not answering the questions of immigration officers in defence under departmental regulations. This charge in turn was dropped and he was deported.

HOUSE HAS RIGHT

"The House has a right to know whether this man actually had a chance to obtain counsel, or was kept there on the subterfuge that he would not answer questions," said Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to know whether there is any truth in reports that Hooper was told he would remain in custody until he did answer the questions.

". . . will the minister look into this case to see that we can be assured that the injustice, the indescribable injustice, perpetrated will not occur again?" said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Douglas said if Hooper was told he would "rot" in jail unless he answered questions, the official responsible for such an assertion should be fired.

Mr. Trembley replied:

"I would be more ready to try to assess whether it is right that those words were used by anyone in the department but so far as I know this statement has never been made by any officer of the department.

Reporter, Kalvin Sharp; vice-president, Jim Thompson; secretary, Ken McConnell; press reporter, Jim Wallbridge.

The corn to be planted on the members' plots was given to the members. The variety to be used this year is Warwick 316. A film on Soil Conservation was shown.

The next meeting is to be held on June 18 on the farm of Mr. Harvey Homan.

'Liberty' Has Folded Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Liberty Magazine, a monthly publication printed in Toronto, has folded.

Notice has been given to about 30 advertising, editorial, circulation and production employees, the paper says.

It was not certain when publication would be suspended, but the magazine is printed by the rotogravure process, by which one or two issues are completed or nearly completed in advance.

Percy W. Bishop, president of Fengate Publishing Company Limited, which owns the magazine, could not be reached for comment.

Both publications were bought by Mr. Bishop from Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto in 1960. They had been part of Mr. Cooke's Consolidated Press Limited, a firm which in the 1950s controlled a magazine stable second only in Canada to that of Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company Limited.

Our Dream Island

Anybody who knows anything about the uncertain nature of exploration for natural gas, knows enough not to become unduly excited by news that Consumers Gas is seeking leave to explore an existing drill hole on Zwick's Island.

Still, there can be no harm in dreaming. Imagine what could happen if the Company "hit oil," so to speak, and brought in a producing well. The Parks Board, which owns the property, would, we presume, get royalties. People can become rich in this way. Imagine Zwick's Island, for which ambitious plans have been prepared and even more ambitious suggestions made, suddenly endowed with all the funds necessary to bring such plans to fruition, without one cent being required of the taxpayers.

A wonderful dream. But hold. The root of all evil is money—what if a Parks Board suddenly rolling in gas aroused the envy of the City Council? Would Council endeavor to reclaim Zwick's Island, arguing that this unsuspected wealth should be more widely distributed? Maybe other parks and city-owned property would yield other wells. We might find ourselves a minor version of that other Eden, Alberta, where provincial debt is unknown thanks to oil and gas riches. Imagine a city with no taxes! What an inducement to industry!

But hold again! Would an avaricious provincial government be content to go on paying us a variety of subsidies to finance our municipal undertakings when there was ample evidence that we needed no help whatever? Or would it, in its turn, seek some method of laying claim to a share of this wealth?

And even if this did not happen, would there not be an unseemly scramble to become mayor in a city with no financial problems, where every demand of the non-taxpayer would be easily met, where local services were never constructed under the local improvement plan, where bus services were continual and free, where the laurels of office could be gathered without any of the headaches which ordinarily accompany them?

What an influx of strangers we should see, everybody wanting to become a Belleville citizen! How the County Council would object to sharing in the costs of joint projects! How envious our neighbors would become!

And what would become very difficult, even hazardous. Why we almost hope there is no gas under Zwick's Island, after all.

Almost—but not quite.

Different Kinds of Minds

One of the barriers of true understanding, between races, nations, classes and religions, is the existence of certain variations in habits of thought so striking that one may be forgiven for speaking of the existence of "different minds."

As a striking illustration of this fact, we offer an observation by a member of the Vatican Curia, a certain Cardinal Ottaviani, Cardinal Ottaviani, referring to the current controversy on birth control arising from recent medical discoveries, called on Catholic churchmen to stop public debate on the issue. He said only the Pope can decide "on such grave and debated questions."

Any Protestant will recoil from such a suggestion, but in some cases the instinctive rejection of the Cardinal's contention will stem solely from refusal to recognize the Pope as the supreme authority on the question at issue. On other questions, the right of other authorities to rule without intervention of public debate will be recognized by some Protestants, and what is true of Christians will be true in certain areas, of many other faiths or of no faith.

Set aside from people of this habit of mind are those who will refuse to recognize supreme authority on any question, who regard public debate not merely as permissible, but essential, if any reasonable conclusion is to be reached.

A third kind of mind, while probably granting the right of the common man to be heard on any question, will limit those fields in which public opinion should carry any weight to areas where specialized knowledge is not required. Catholics might maintain that they are of this company, holding that the Pope enjoys a special insight into matters of morals, but the specialized knowledge we had in mind is generally of a scientific, rather than a spiritual, kind.

There is nothing more difficult than for the thorough-going skeptics to understand the authoritarian mind, or vice versa. Both skeptic and authoritarian are likely to overlook the difference in what, for a better term, we may call the scientific mind, mistakenly regarding it as either one or against the skeptical or authoritarian viewpoint.

LA PRESSE

Montreal La Presse—Premier Jean Lesage (speaking to the Quebec Liberal Federation) drew up a balance-sheet abounding in superlatives. Extraordinary expansion, magnificent future, we're only at the beginning of it. Those are the words and phrases from the speech that come to mind. The speaker cited figures: 2,000 new establishments since 1960, 25,000 more jobs. And General Motors!

But unemployment, is it not a fact also? Constant at all the unemployed in Canada as of April. Almost twice as many as those in Ontario admittedly unemployment has gone down here in comparison with last year.

To optimists and pessimists alike let us offer one final reflection. Ontario has recently wished bon voyage to its premier, Mr. Robarts, and his minister of economic affairs, emissaries to London, Milan and Duesseldorf in quest of new industry and workers. Ontario attributes its prosperity to intensive immigration. Ontario is afraid of running short of manpower.

Quebec has chosen to be temperate in its optimism.—Guy Cormier. (May 22)

LE DEVOIR

Ottawa Le Droit—Mr. Paul Martin, minister of external affairs, has stated that Canada could, next year, change its attitude on the subject of recognition of China.

Why next year? China will not be a greater reality in 1965 than it is in 1964, and men in love with liberty will not like its Communist government any more than they do this year. Moreover, China will be neither more nor less deserving of our "recognition" than Russia.

Mr. Martin has explained: "There exists a grave danger that all possibility will be lost of a solution providing for the safety of Formosa and its inhabitants. If we do not abandon our present strategic position very soon."

Well, this danger either exists or does not exist. Why wait until next year to recognize China since, in the interval, the "grave danger" may be aggravated?

Let us make it clear we do not think world peace depends upon Canada's moving toward China. All the same, our country, by taking a certain intolerance, generally admitted in international affairs, and it sells grain and wheat in huge quantities to Peking. It would be normal for these commercial relations to be followed by diplomatic relations. And since this is clearly the view of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin, why then wait until next year?—Willie Chevalier. (May 19)

L'Action

Quebec L'Action — After nonagenarians and centenarians at least two generations of Canadians and thus retarding the awakening of a national conscience, the insoluble problem of Canada's flag and anthem will be solved in a few weeks. . . .

The extinction of a burning cause of division between Canadians will not be completed without difficulty. The important thing is that the Gordian knot of Canadian politics has finally been cut.

In this respect, the new Mr. Pearson is a surprise. The diplomat, the statesman, the temporizer, the indecisive man shows himself to be the man of action that nobody suspected he could be. In the House of Commons he showed sided dilatory schemes. Reference to a parliamentary committee was averted. Flags and anthems never emerge alive from little committee squabbles. Nor is a referendum any more desirable in the eyes of Prime Minister Pearson. The government will take its responsibilities, even at the price of being beaten in the House of Commons, and then let itself be judged at the next election.

In short, he has shown determination and courage, and the quality our English-speaking countrymen call leadership. If the man of reflection whom Canadians admired in Mr. Pearson is not dead, time really turns out to be a leader, this could be all to the better for Canada.—Lorenzo Faro. (May 21)

THE GLOBE

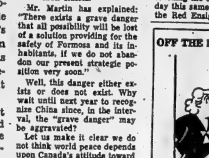
Moncton L'Evangeline—After the Second World War pressure began to make itself felt in favor of a distinctive Canadian flag. Ties with the Commonwealth have been loosened little by little to the point where today, on the eve of the 100th Confederation centenary, Canadian participation in the recognition of China is only a formality. Ties with France are even more remote.

For several years governments have been preaching true Canadianism. Mr. Diefenbaker, the present Opposition leader, made himself an apostle of Canadianism while in power, without however touching the flag question. Today this same apostle upholds the Red Ensign as a distinctive flag for Canada. It passed all understanding. . . .

For a century people have been unable to agree on a flag for Canada. Confederation is in danger today because people have been afraid to talk solely as Canadians. Instead of as English-Canadians or French-Canadians. There are moments when it is essential to make distinctions but when it is the interest of the whole country that is involved, we must call ourselves quite simply Canadians and respect the rights of the two founding ethnic groups.

Let us be realists. The time has arrived to settle the flag issue. Why divide Canada on a question of taste? There are so many other more serious problems awaiting us. Let us settle the problem of a Canadian flag without delay and send our position.

This time it is English Canada that has to work out a painful definition of what it means to be. The partisans of the Red Ensign are probably more numerous and more determined than we went to believe. In the House of Commons they have proposed all sorts of dilatory measures in order to put off the fateful day. Almost everywhere except in Quebec, they are agitating feverishly in favor of the Red Ensign.



For them, the Red Ensign is the affirmation of a conception of Canada that they thought was established forever. Beyond the external attachment to the Crown and to England, it is the English predominance in Canada that they wished to perpetuate by keeping that emblem.

By deciding in favor of a distinctive flag, Mr. Pearson was really deciding in favor of a Canada different from the one English Canada has traditionally known. He is cutting once and for all the umbilical cord that tied our country to a dominant culture.

This choice ought to permit a cooler examination of the more fundamental choices we shall have to make in the years ahead. We shall know in future that there is not one but at least two English-speaking Canadas. One remains attached beyond all feelings to the ties of yesterday. The other is disposed to face the risks involved in a more complete autonomy with regard to its origins. The main difference is that the second group has become the majority group, while the first is clearly losing ground. . . .—Claude Ryan. (May 23)

The long journey on horseback from Belleville to Washington, D.C., has been accomplished by Miss Gwen Lazier of this city. She received an invitation to the President of the United States to visit Belleville at the time of the United Empire Loyalist celebration here in June. Today Mayor W. C. Mikel received a telegram from Miss Lazier stating that everything was going on safely and that she had arranged to ship the faithful horse "Pinto" back to Belleville and she will return home by train. It is thought that President Coolidge will receive the Belleville courier at the White House today, as it has been intimated that arrangements have been completed for Miss Lazier's reception. There were many people in this city and elsewhere who felt that Miss Lazier would not be able to complete the journey on horseback. It was said that the horse would give out and that Miss Lazier would find the journey too fatiguing, but such proved to be incorrect, the horse "Pinto" stood up well and Miss Lazier enjoyed the journey, being met in many places by officials and prominent citizens.

Opposition Misses Boat By Poor Press Relations

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This is the sad story of what still persists as a blind spot in the Opposition operation in Parliament.

If the Opposition ever was really serious about leading a national rally around the Red Ensign in the fight for the flag, it was a lost cause almost from the start.

Organizationally, the things are lacking.

And while it perhaps was not the most important of the many missing links, the Opposition's self-imposed isolation from the working Press bare in Parliament could have been a key factor.

THE CONTRAST

Nobody in a position to officially speak for the Opposition would be caught dead on it.

Anything the Opposition had to say, it was made bluntly plain, would be said in Parliament, not in the Press.

Now this might be the best sort of parliamentary procedure. All very proper and fitting. Just as it should be, according to the parliamentary book of rules — but that was written in another day, even ago, before the explosive expansion of what has become known as the "mass communication" — high speed presses, multiple editions, fast trucks, good highways, radio, television.

So the Opposition saved what it had to say for Parliament.

Catch was, the real battle, the battle for the hearts and minds of the voters, was fought and lost by default by the silent Opposition before it ever reached Parliament.

For while the Opposition was sitting on its collective butt in the Government side of the Flag Question was coming up with the answers — a lot of them even before they were asked.

The story was leaked — and few will deny it — by the Prime Minister himself that the Maple Leaf was "it" for the flag and that the Government would run on it in 1965. The U.S. state department had told the U.S. was "most disappointed by the action." Some 200 items, including railroad equipment and chemical products, became available to China. It was estimated the move would double the $40,000,000 annual British exports to China.

To Your Good Health

Oldsters Should Drink Some Milk

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it O.K. for oldsters to drink milk, a pint a day at least? Some doctors say yes and others say it is only good for calves and kids.

If one doesn't drink it, should calcium tablets be taken? — A. M. H.

Most doctors don't object to milk for oldsters, adults, babies or anyone else, including calves and kids. When, occasionally, one attacks milk, it is unusual enough to create quite a furor so it sometimes sounds as though there must be substantial opposition.

Frankly, there isn't. My opinion — shared, I believe, by the overwhelming majority of other physicians — is this:

Yes, it is O.K. for oldsters to drink milk." I'd go farther and say that they should drink milk.

Few if any foods are as complete a representation of the necessary elements, with emphasis on calcium, fillagin and protein. (here are other undefied necessities, too).

Calcium is highly important. Its absence can mean soft, weak bones, (rickets) and poor teeth. Wounds and bruises may not heal efficiently. Muscular cramps can also result.

Vitamin D is also necessary for effective utilization of calcium.

Milk is good for "calves and kids," as well as adults, for precisely the same reasons — building and rebuilding growing bodies. Until the end of our lives, your bodies are constantly being rebuilt, cell by cell.

As we grow old, we may acquire brittleness of the bones in several causes. Lack of calcium is one of them.

Milk is hardly a rare element, but we should devote at least a little care to getting the purest milk possible.

Milk has lots of calcium in a form ideal for being absorbed. The adult, or oldster who habitually drinks milk is sure of getting enough calcium, plus other valuable elements.

If a weight problem is involved, then drink skim milk (which contains all the useful elements except that the fat has been removed).

I consider a pint a day as sufficient, or half that (one glass a day) as reasonably excellent.

If you drink milk, you needn't worry about calcium tablets. If you don't like milk, try good idea. You may get enough calcium from other foods, depending on your diet, but you may not, so it's the old rule about better to be safe than sorry.

Dear Dr. Molner: After one has gone through the change of life, it's hysterectomy advisable? — Mrs. E.

You mean just arbitrarily have a hysterectomy? No, certainly not. But if the condition exists making it necessary there is no reason why you shouldn't have it done. . . .

Dear Dr. Molner: What is meant by "nerve root pain"? Is there any treatment? — S. W.

Nerve root pain is the result of irritation or pressure on the nerve at its root, that is, the point at which the nerve emerges from the spinal cord between the vertebrae.

Pain of this nature would not necessarily be felt at the point of pressure. Rather it could be (and often is) felt elsewhere in the area served by that nerve.

Causes include a ruptured or damaged disc in the spine; arthritis; extreme curvature of the spine.

Treatment, therefore, depends on finding the cause.

Allan G. Meagher Retires After 48 Years of Service

Allan G. Meagher, general clerk in the area manager's office at Belleville for the past 48 years is retiring, but the Meagher name will be carried on in local railway circles.

Now on "retirement leave" Mr. Meagher will officially end his association with CN on June 30, but five of his sons are railway employees.

Three of his sons, Bernard, Allan and Gerald, are classed conductors, Larry is a despatcher, and James is operator at Trenton Junction.

And a sixth son, university student, James F. Meagher, has also worked for the railway during the summer holiday period. Mr. and Mrs. Meagher have nine children.

Last night Mr. Meagher received the best wishes of his fellow employees when he and Mrs. Meagher were guests of honor at a retirement party held at the Club Canara.

JOINED IN 1916

Mr. Meagher joined the old G.T.R. in Belleville back in May, 1916 and served one month as clerk in the yard office.

He then went to the superintendent's office — also as clerk —and was there until his retirement. In his 48 years with the railway Mr. Meagher served under eight different division superintendents and since reorganization of the railway, under two different area managers.

Still an avid sports fan the Meagher name was well known in the local baseball world following World War I when Belleville Grand Trunks were cutting a swath in Senior OBA circles.

An infielder, Allan played second base with the Ontario champs in 1919 and on three later occasions was on the team that won the Central Ontario championship.

WAS ARENA MANAGER

He has also done a bit of curling, played basketball with the local "Y" and was once active in lawn bowling.

For ten years he was manager of the Belleville Arena.

He took an active part in the formation of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Workers and assisted in job valuation and in other work leading up to the first agreement signed with the railway. He still holds a membership card.

Aside from his regular railway duties Mr. Meagher took an active part in planning for the railway worker owned Club Canara, which he feels has filled a great need in the city generally.

Between 150 and 200 guests including family, friends and fellow workers met at the Club last night to honor Mr. Meagher upon his retirement after his many years of service with the CNR.

Mr. Meagher was presented with a lamp, desk, chair and calendar clock by his six sons and three daughters, plus a gift of money. They also received a cheque, a life membership and a plaque from the CNRAA and a gift from the C.N.R. Lodge, 1098. Mrs. Meagher was presented with a lovely bouquet of roses by the Ladies Auxiliary of Club Canara.

Liberals Agree With NDP Critic

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto-area Liberal members of Parliament agreed Friday night with a New Democrat who contended that reforms are needed in the Liberal party.

The New Democrat, Reid Scott, MP for Toronto Danforth, said the Liberal party should have a leadership convention at regular intervals and that Liberal policies should be more democratically determined.

"It is commonly believed that your conventions merely make recommendations of policy," he said. "These are not binding on the elected members of the party, who may accept, reject or amend them as they please."

Mr. Scott also urged that all political parties be compelled by law to disclose the source of campaign funds.

SPONSORED BY LIBERALS

With him in a panel discussion sponsored by a Toronto riding Liberal association were Liberal MPs James Walker, member for York Centre and chief government whip, and Ian Wahn, member for St. Paul's.

Both Liberals agreed their party should have a leadership convention at least every two years. Mr. Walker said the length of recent parliamentary sessions would make annual conventions difficult.

On the question of making campaign funds public, he added: "Elections should be financed from the public treasury."

Mr. Wahn agreed that "we must have financial reform in our political organizations, and we must make sure our political parties are democratically controlled."

Slapping Car Dealer's Face Quite Costly

GUELPH (CP) — Frank Silvestro, 38, of Guelph, who slapped a Guelph car dealer's face and threatened to rape his wife, was sentenced Friday to 18 months definite and six months indefinite.

Gary Byers, 23, of Kitchener was sentenced to 2½ years in penitentiary on a similar charge of threatening and intimidation.

The court was told the pair had threatened dealer John Mason with bodily harm if he did not repair a vehicle owned by Silvestro for $200. The actual cost was $756.

Byers, 26d an unidentified companion took Mr. Mason to a motel room Nov. 18 where Silvestro slapped his face and threatened to rape his wife when Mr. Mason refused to comply with their demands.

Inbound and outbound cargoes totalled 7,917,467 tons at the Lakehead compared with 8,018,310 tons for Hamilton, he said.

PROFITS RISE

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest measure of Canada's economic upswing — corporation pre-tax profits — shows a rise of eight per cent for 1963. Profits before taxes reached a level for the year of $5,902,000,000 compared with $5,640,000,000 in 1962, the bureau of statistics said Wednesday.

Soviet Spies-in-the-Skies Says Premier Khrushchev

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev was quoted Friday as saying Soviet spies-in-the skies were taking pictures of military installations and suggesting that the United States rely on its own camera-satellites for surveillance of Communist Cuba.

"Neither President Johnson nor I want another crisis over Cuba," former Senator William Benton of Connecticut said Khrushchev told him in a Moscow interview Thursday. "It is time for sober sense to reign."

The United States has had a successful global surveillance by satellite system since 1959, but Khrushchev had never acknowledged that the Kremlin has another one going in outer space.

The discussion, Benton told reporters, arose when he questioned Khrushchev about U.S.-Cuban relations.

Whether Khrushchev meant the Russians had pictures of U.S. bases was not spelled out, but reporters who talked with Benton thought that was the meaning.

QUOTES KHRUSHCHEV

Benton said Khrushchev told him:

"If you wish, I can show you photos of military installations taken from outer space. I will show them to President Johnson if he wishes."

Khrushchev did not make entirely clear whether he referred to photographs taken by Soviet spacemen on actual flights or photos from satellites — the widely discussed spy-in-the sky system that the Russians have said the United States is using.

Discussion of the space photographs came up while they talked about the reconnaissance flights the United States had established over Cuba since the Soviet missile crisis of 1962 to guard against another secret buildup of offensive missiles.

Benton said Khrushchev suggested the United States abandon these flights.

IS INTERNATIONAL

He quoted Khrushchev as saying the aerial inspection issue is "bigger than just the United States and Cuba . . . It is something of international concern. It involves international law."

"I'm not an expert on that," the department maintained its usual silence about the U.S. photographic satellite program.

These satellites have been photographing the earth, including Russia and its allies, for five years. The United States has dozens or scores of them orbiting the earth, snapping everything on it.

The Soviet Union had never disclosed whether or not it had similar means of snooping on the United States.

G. 'Pop' Finlay, Retired Bureau Chief, Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Graham Finlay, 65, a chapter in the history of Canadian journalism, died Friday.

Mr. Finlay, Pop" to hundreds of Canadian journalists, died suddenly in hospital which he had entered three weeks earlier following a fall at his home and an attack of pneumonia.

He had retired last September as news editor of the Vancouver bureau of The Canadian Press, Canada's national news gathering agency, after a career of 50 years.

During those years he gained the respect and affection of newspaper men across the country, many of whom learned their craft under him.

He joined the Western Associated Press as a messenger in Winnipeg in 1913, saw the WAP grow into The Canadian Press and watched CP expand into a news gathering agency stretching from St. John's, Nfld. to Victoria.

Mr. Finlay worked in CP bureaus from Ottawa to Vancouver. He reported events that have become part of Canadian history, notably the growth of Social Credit in Alberta and the Coalhurst, Alta., mine disaster. He was news editor here for 11 years.

LOVED GOOD WRITING

He was a newspaperman's newspaper man with a love for good writing and reporting and a passion for accuracy. He gained respect from his fellows for a cool head and good judgment under the pressure of a major news break.

Mr. Finlay was born in Thornton, Ont., but his family moved to Winnipeg when he was two.

In 1913 he was working for the Winnipeg Free Press when he invested $7.50 for a bicycle and applied for a messenger's job at WAP.

Years later he said: I got the job because I had a bicycle and the other guy didn't.

The $7.50 I paid for the bicycle was the best investment I ever made."

When Mr. Finlay retired he was honored by newspapermen from Halifax to Vancouver. He was made a lifetime member of the Newsmen's Club of British Columbia.

He is survived by his wife, Alberta, and daughter, Patricia.

East German Communist Boss Visits Soviet Union

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht has begun a visit to the Soviet Union, hinting that his hosts may make some new moves on the Berlin and German questions.

Ulbricht told a Kremlin banquet Thursday night that he had come to Moscow to discuss a number of political problems.

In reply to a toast of welcome, he paid tribute to the Soviet policy of coexistence and added:

We live in a country from whose territory two world wars were begun. It is in our country, in Germany, in the German Democratic Republic that one must show how this policy is being applied in the most difficult spot in Europe."

Ulbricht shed no light on just what new initiative may be under consideration on Germany.

Some Western observers speculated that a new effort may be made to bring East and West Germany into direct negotiations. Ulbricht sent a note to West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard on Thursday saying only two Germanstates could solve the German problem.

The Bonn government, supported by the Western allies, is cautious of any move that could imply official recognition of the East German regime.

Other Westerners suggested that Premier Khrushchev may decide to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, leaving the access routes to isolated West Berlin entirely in the hands of the East Germans.

Khrushchev has repeatedly threatened to sign such a treaty and provoked a crisis over Berlin each time.

Three Ex-Wives Boost Claims Against Estate

DETROIT (AP)—A Washington businessman joined lawyers for three ex-wives of the late Horace E. Dodge Friday in boosting claims against the auto heir's estate to $15,000,000.

Frank S. Carroll filed a claim for $2,500,000 before Probate Judge Ernest C. Boehm. Carroll says he was Dodge's agent when Dodge had a boat factory at Newport News, Va.

The claim is contingent on the outcome of a patent infringement suit now pending in the Washington, D.C. District Court. Carroll asserts he and Dodge patented an aerodynamics "device." He refused to discuss the invention.

Other claims pending before Judge Boehm include one for $518,000 filed by the estate of the late Clara Tinsley Dodge, wife No. 3 who died in March; one by Mrs. Muriel Sisman Dodge Neeman, wife No. 2, $260,000; and another by the former Lois Knowlson, wife No. 1, $150,000.

None approach the claim entered by Dodge's 35-year-old mother, Anna Thomson Dodge, who claims her son owed her $10,500,000 when he died last December.

NEAR $9,000,000?

Gregg Sherwood Dodge, who was separated from Dodge at the time of his death, recently claimed she received an out-of-court settlement approaching $9,000,000. But Douglas Leo Paterson, attorney for the Horace Dodge estate, said the settlement was nowhere close to "that figure."

Paterson told Judge Boehm Friday that the available sums in the estate at the moment included $35,000 cash and some $11,000 in negotiable stock.

Judge Boehm adjourned the estate settlement case until June 25.

...ssful Living ...ther Who Knows, Praises Foster Home Program

DEAR DORIS — To say the least, I am amazed at the set-up you people work under. I think you and the agencies are doing a wonderful job. Between you, me and the gate post I have been taking care of five kiddies, my wife having passed away three years ago.

Last fall I put them in foster homes. I pay for their board and clothes, so the thing is we are getting by. As for getting married again, it seems most of the ladies around my age are either married, have a profession or have moved out.

I hope the people read this who don't understand, believe in or contribute to this cause. You have my sincere appreciation and understanding. — JUST OLD - FASHIONED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR OLD - FASHIONED — My child-care colleagues will be glowing with pride. What did fathers like you do before there were foster home programs?

DEAR DORIS — My father has a severe drinking problem which has made us a family practically without a father for twenty years. Until recently Dad never gave two hoots about what we did. Now he wants to be a husband and father (as he says) but Mom will have nothing to do with him. She says she has tried and been hurt too many times, and a truer statement was never made.

About a month ago Dad wanted to see a marriage counsellor, so Mom went with him. Talking with him helped Dad to make a beginning but he needs so much more expert help and Mom won't go back. She has no faith in counsellors and is too emotionally involved to see the change in Dad. Mom will listen to my sister and me when we try to give her any advice and usually agrees but won't carry any of the suggestions out. She thinks we're too young to understand. — WIT'S END.

DEAR WIT'S END — Reminds me of the little girl who struggled very hard to reach the top of the hill. Then just when she was nearly there she gave up. If your Dad is at the point to ask for and take help, this is no time for Mom to hold back.

But I suspect your mother. Could be that the counsellor suggested some way in which she might have been at fault. So she resented him instead of examining her possible share in driving her man to drink.

You two girls are part of this family and share the grief. How about making your own appointment with the counsellor?

DEAR DORIS — I understand tipping hairdressers is a must. Why? Most of them make more a week than most of our husbands do. What about a hairdresser who runs her own business in her home. She charges her fee. Do you tip her? It's like saying, "You didn't charge enough. Here's more." — L.

Do you think they really appreciate this? I heard one person say it made her feel beneath the customer. What do you say? — A BIT WAVY.

DEAR WAVY — It's not a must. It's a "thank you" for personal services. And I am quite certain it is appreciated. I question your idea of a hairdresser's salary.

No, I wouldn't tip the owner-manager who runs her own show.

(Put your problem on paper in a letter to Doris. She can guide you to the help you need.)

COSMETICS FROM THE 19th CENTURY

My name seems to be on every modern list of the large record and book clubs to the most unusual and obscure little shops and stores. Consequently, a steady supply of brochures, booklets and catalogues arrive almost daily. Most of these are routine mailing pieces, but once in a while a gem arrives. One had just landed on my desk and it is too good to keep to myself. Some of the items offered here are straight out of the 19th century and several date even farther back than they are all of beauty aids or the tools of beauty.

Heading the list are genuine tortoise shell combs — something I have not seen or thought of since my grandmother was alive. The catalogue carefully states that these combs are not guaranteed against breakage, in fact the buyer is warned against dropping them or even complaining if one should snap. The big advantage of tortoise shell over plastic is that the old style shell combs do not create static electricity in the hair. Aside from all this, the booklet says that they "feel warm and welcome."

One page of the booklet is devoted to powder puffs and there is a careful listing of 23 styles, ranging from genuine beaver puffs to French swans-down puffs from deep pile lambswool to something called domestic velours. These sell from $1 to $5.

TOMATO or CUCUMBER SOAP

According to the catalogue, something called tomato juice soap is good for the skin because a healthy skin is mildly acid and tomato juice supplies a natural source of acidity to help maintain this balance. (The illustration shows the soap shaped like a huge beefsteak tomato.) While we are on the soap is highlighted in a bright vegetable theme, cucumber green side with an accompanying text that says it lathers abundantly and is refreshing in the hot weather. Cucumber facial creams are offered along with a cucumber emulsion to use as a skin cleanser.

Another little treasure that I caught my eye was something called "Armenian Paper" imported from a pharmacy in Florence, which was founded in 1612. These are tiny strips of paper, 3" long x ¾" wide, which give "delightful talcumy fragrance. According to the instructions, the paper should be placed in a china dish, touched with a flame, extinguished immediately and then the fragrance lingers for hours.

Perfume balls are featured on a whole page by themselves. These are handmade in a "New Jersey gentlewoman" and are made of absorbent materials. The stuffings are soaked in long-lasting perfumes and then covered with satin, silks, velvets and ribbons, which can be pleated, beaded or embroidered. The lasting ways that they are available for ladies or gentlemen, with color choices and fragrances ranging from sweet, spicy, fresh, woodsy to French bouquet. They are 2½" in diameter and sound like fun.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Question: At a party, some people we know casually told us to drop in at their home when we got a chance and mentioned they usually were home every weekend. Well, we were driving in their area last weekend and this gave us a chance to look them up. I must say our reception was anything but royal. Since the couple obviously didn't seem to relish the sudden company, we stayed only a short time and even that was uncomfortable. If people really don't mean for you to visit them, why do they drop invitations so casually? — Mrs. F. H., Passaic, N. J.

Answer: They do it only because they have the mistaken notion that it seems like the gracious thing to do at a party. Unless a specific date is set, such casual invitations are better ignored. However, if you feel impelled to drop in when you're in the neighborhood, phone first to make sure the people are home and actually want visitors.

Question: May soft drinks be served in bottles or cans, instead of in glasses, when one is entertaining on the porch or patio? It seems to me that it's a specific date is set, such casual invitations are better ignored. However, if you feel impelled to drop in when you're in the neighborhood, phone first to make sure the people are home and actually want visitors.

Question: May soft drinks be served in bottles or cans, instead of in glasses, when one is entertaining on the porch or patio? It seems to me that it's a little too casual. If bringing in a lot of trouble trotting glasses back and forth from the kitchen. How do you feel about this? Several of my friends and relatives disagree. — Mrs. C. K., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: As far as I'm concerned, this type of service is a little too casual. If bringing in glasses along with the bottles and cans is much too tiring, then it might be possible to keep a supply of paper cups handy on the porch for fussy people who like me, prefer a bit of frill with their soda pop. Guzzling from the bottle or can may be fine on a picnic, but it still strikes me as a trifle indelicate on the front porch.

QUESTION:

You said you had given your daughter a recipe for Rye Bread. We make all our bread and have been using rye flour but would like to try yours — E. Mary S.

ANSWER:

We have had so many requests for Rye Bread recipe I have decided to repeat it once more.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Fried Chicken; Potato Logs; Herbed Celery and Tomatoes (see Thursday); Green Pepper, Cucumber and Lettuce Salad with Sour Cream Dressing; Fruited Jelly; Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

HOMEMADE RYE BREAD:

1 package granular yeast, ¾ cup lukewarm water, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup lukewarm water (1 cup less 2 tablespoons), 4 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon caraway seeds (or less or more — or none at all), 2 tablespoons soft margarine or shortening, 2½ cups sifted light rye flour (included in residue is after), 4 cups sifted all-purpose or bread flour.

Into a little bowl measure the ¾ cup lukewarm water, add the sugar and sprinkle the yeast over top. Give this one stir and let stand 10 minutes. In the large mixing bowl measure the molasses. Measure the water in the same cup including any brown sugary mass left over and add to the molasses. Add the salt, caraway, margarine and stir well. Stir in the sifted and measured rye flour. Stir in the yeast liquid. Now add 3 cups of the sifted white flour. Now the going gets harder for this is a stiff dough and it should be. Mix it as well as you can, then sprinkle your baking board with ½ the remaining cup of flour and turn the dough out on it. Now knead it until it is satiny-smooth. Use 3 helpers to do this kneading so it gets 300 strokes at least. The more kneading the better. (Reserve remaining ½ cup flour for last kneading.) Grease bowl, shape dough into ball, and put in bowl. Grease top, cover and let rise. Mine required 3 hours to double and to become light. Punch down on board sprinkled with remaining ½ cup flour and knead until remaining flour is worked in. Mine got 100 punches and kneads at five stage. Give yours more if you have the strength. Shape into smooth uniform loaf pearly as long as your baking sheet or into two oval loaves. Roll it under your palms to achieve a less 2 tablespoons), 4 teaspoons professional finish. Park dig-gonally on greased cookie sheet. Brush top with paste of salt, 2 tablespoons cornstarch stirred into ½ cup water over heat until thick, to achieve a hard crust. Let rise on the cookie sheet until doubled and light at least 3 or 4 hours. Very gently brush with glaze before putting in the oven. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes or until done, brushing it once more with the paste at half time.

You should not attempt to increase amount of rye flour. These proportions are exactly right to make a perfect wick to the sides. Add the salt, caraway, margarine and stir

Bike Should Not Have Been Left in Neighbor's Drive

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our next door neighbors have done so many mean and petty things that we are seriously considering selling our home to get away from them. Here is the latest incident and we want your advice.

ANN LANDERS

Our 11-year-old son left his bicycle in their driveway. Yes, we know he should not have been so careless, but kids will be kids. The neighbor woman pretended not to see the bike and backed her car over it jus: for spite. The bike is so badly smashed that no shop will attempt to repair it.

Now get this: After the woman wrecked our son's bike she banged on our front door, enraged, because she had been scared out of her wits. She thought at first that she had hit the boy, too.

When my husband told her husband that they owe us a new bike he replied, "You people are crazy."

We know you don't give legal advice, but what we want is common sense advice. Does this woman owe us a new bike?— NEXT DOOR TO TROUBLE.

DEAR TROUBLE — The bike was in her driveway, wasn't it? Well, the answer should be fairly obvious.

To put it another way, let the boy earn at least half the price of a new bike and you can supply the other half. Perhaps he will take better care of a second bike if he has to do something to earn it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I had a terrific argument. We both said some pretty harsh things to each other which we regretted later. I was so angry with him because he made a remark about my being lazy that I refused to cook his dinner. We have no children and I had eaten several hours earlier.

A close friend of mine told me that no matter how mad a woman gets she has no right to refuse to cook her husband's dinner. According to her, it is the same as if the man refused to go to work. I do not agree with her. May we have your opinion? — STILL FUMING.

DEAR FUMING — Since when is dinner a special favor — bestowed on a husband only when he is pleasant and agreeable?

Preparing meals is as much a woman's responsibility as bringing home the pay cheque is a man's. These basic responsibilities are unconditional, so think up another punishment, Toots.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Thank you for taking the side of the switchboard operator. Since I handle an eight line board alone, and must do some typing as well, I know what the problems are.

I wonder if the average person realizes what it's like to be on a long distance call when three or four other calls come in. The board lights up like the Fourth of July and the operator doesn't know which one to grab first.

One wrong move disconnects the party and then you get an earful of some pretty ugly language from the world's highest paid executives.

When office employees complain about the operators listening in on personal calls you can be sure of two things:

(1) The complainant is wasting a lot of her boss' time on her own personal calls.

(2) The complainant's private life has some fairly unsavory aspects and she fears exposure. — CENTIPEDE SUEY.

DEAR CENTIPEDE — Thanks to you, and to the hundreds of other switchboard operators who wrote. (One gal from Orlando called me "The Patron Saint of the PBX.")

Many operators emphasized that first-rate office employees don't worry about their personal calls because they make so few and those calls are brief and "dirt-free."

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

VOW Protests Holding of Secret Meet

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A draft resolution protesting the purpose of a secret Canada-United States defence consultation on nuclear flights over Canada heads a list of discussion topics at the annual Voice of Women convention which opened today.

A Washington report said last week the secret meeting June 25 would include discussion of flights of aircraft carrying nuclear weapons over Canada. Such flights now are restricted in number but it is known the United States would welcome a more permissive attitude. The Canadian government must give permission in advance for the flights.

The draft resolution argues that removal of restrictions on nuclear flights would violate Canadian sovereignty. The VoW opposes nuclear weapons on Canadian soil.

HARRIS — GIBSON

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently in Holy Rosary Church, Belleville, when Katherine Ann Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gibson, Amelia Street, was united in marriage to Robert Franklin Harris, son of the late Neil Harris, Belleville, and the late Mrs. Neil Harris. Father Rufus Delano officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length bridal gown of silk organza highlighted with a bodice featuring floral pattern Chantilly lace with long sleeves, neckline outlined with delicate embroidery dotted with tiny pearl beads. The bouffant skirt was enhanced with an insert of lace panel at front and a sweeping chapel train of embroided lace. Her bouffant veil flowed from a floral head-piece and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and snowdrift mums with trailing ivy.

The maid of honor Miss Shirley Martin Belleville and the bridesmaids all sisters of the bride, Mrs. D. Callow, Cobourg and Miss Cecelia Gibson and Miss Valerie Gibson of Amelias-burg were similarly attired with two in maize and two in pink. They were dressed in floor length gowns of white pure silk over Bemburg taffeta featuring scoop necklines, cap sleeves and bell skirts while were accented at the waist with Swiss embroidery insets, each with a single rose and matching pillbox headdresses with a large rose bow top of silk Maline veiling. Each carried a giant sheaf of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Carl Harris, Belleville, was groomsman, while Mr. Tom Harris, Mr. Ted Clarke and Mr. Paul Gibson, all of Belleville were the ushers.

The reception was held at the Amelisburg Town Hall where the United Church Women catered for 120 guests. The bride's table was prettily appointed and centred with a traditional wedding cake iced in pink and white. Pink candles in silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige lace dress over taffeta with matching lace bolero and a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Thousand Islands, the bride chose a pink wool suit with pink plaid cape and a white orchid tipped with pink corsage.

Guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Belleville, Centreton, Oshawa, Uxbridge, Trenton and Auburn, New York.

The bride, previous to her marriage was honored at a shower given by the office staff of International Hardware held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Cunningham and the couple was entertained at a shower given by the community of Amelias-burg.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris are residing at 232 Charles St., Belleville.

Travel Troubles Are Never Too Difficult to Overcome

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

If forewarned is forearmed, then the best weapon in your arsenal for a successful trip is a realistic attitude.

Probably more holidays are ruined by not knowing what to expect than by any other single factor. What to expect is that everything will not go perfectly.

Like most human endeavors, travel is not an unmitigated pleasure, even though you probably feel it ought to be because it's what you've been working, saving and planning for all year.

But it has its drawbacks, even though that may be a heck of a thing to say in a travel column. It is usually tiring, often exhausting, occasionally boring, lonely or confusing. To learn to roll with it is the first giant step towards having a good time. After all, if everything went perfectly, you'd be an awful bore talking about your trip when you got home!

We've set down here some of the things you probably don't like to think about, but which may well happen. And after 13 years of combined travelling, we may be able to help you cope with them.

Delays — probably the most universal factor in travel. Trains, planes and buses don't start or leave on time, even less often arrive on time. Hotel rooms are not ready, baggage takes time to be unloaded, there are no porters, restaurants are crowded. And no matter what you do, there seems to be a line in front of you waiting to do the same thing!

WAIT IT OUT

What to do about it? Nothing. Wait it out — sitting down relaxing if you can. Everyone gets on the plane and takes off at the same time, those who got their baggage first leave the terminal on the same bus at the same time as those who got it last. And if you have to wait for a table in a restaurant, maybe it will be less crowded when you're finally seated — and the food and service that much better. In any event, you might as well lump it. And you can't lick it.

Expenses — All trips cost more than you expect them to. If it's any consolation — and it should be — you'll find most of that extra money went for something, so you've got something to show for it, and something you might not have splurged wisely. You'll never know what you might have done with the money had you stayed at home, but you'll always know what you bought with it.

Consuming too well but not wisely is a common human failing. Professional travellers know there is a temptation to eat and drink oneself blue in the face the first 36 hours, then spend most of the rest of the trip trying to recover and missing much of the fun, including the eating fun. If you can avoid trying to sample everything in sight six times a day do it. Then you may be able to get into a reasonable pattern of drinking and eating sensibly.

Gaining weight is not necessarily inevitable. Some of the tricks we've picked up are having a very light continental breakfast, the way everyone but North Americans and Britishers do, and leaning heavily on fish and chicken — especially fish, as chicken is not always fried or prepared to our standards. These are low in calories, nourishing and satisfying. Cheese is fine, too, and makes an easily digested low-calorie dessert with fresh fruit!

Go easy on wine if you're not used to it. In modest amounts it seems to be good for the digestion, but has the opposite effect in excess. You can't become a Frenchman in two weeks.

MUST HAVE REST

Rest probably is the most commonly lacking ingredient in every trip. We know that better than you because we work at travel. You start off your trip tired from a long first leg of travel. Normally, then there doesn't seem to be time to catch up. Fatigue becomes weariness, weariness exhaustion, and before you know it you're so run down you're not enjoying anything.

Make time to rest, especially at the beginning of your trip. Don't give in to every blandishment for another tour, another nightclub. Unfortunately for people who sell travel have too long catered to our desire to do too much. But there's only so much reserve in the human vault; don't bankrupt yourself.

Loneliness — Confusion — Absolutely inevitable, and knowing that is half the battle. You're far from home, in a strange place, battered by new impressions, heaven knows what's happening to the folks back home-earth-are-we-doing-here?

It soon passes, usually in a day. First, relax and try to put among people. Take a walk, stop, talk to people, even other tourists. As your trip gets rolling, so will you. Your sense of realism will reassert itself, that in this day and age you are not really out of touch with home. And people everywhere are invariably sympathetic and friendly to strangers. Aren't they?

Need or desire to change plans — After everything you've gone through to make the trip in such detail, you blanch at the thought. It really isn't so difficult. Wherever you are, there are people in the travel business and they're all ready to help you. Transportation, wires and telephone lines go everywhere. Even if you, for example, have to arrive without a hotel reservation — something most people have a phobia about — no one sleeps in the park these days.

Language barriers — They exist, in spite of all you've heard about somebody speaking English wherever you go. But neither are they insurmountable — ever. Just think of all the fun you can have with a new language.

So whatever happens, relax and enjoy it. And take notes like we do, so you can tell your friends stories like we do.

A Lift for Living

Hating Only Destroys Hater So Man Must Love or Perish

By REV. HAROLD E. KOBIN

Luther Burbank, the American naturalist and experimenter with fruits, vegetables and flowers, was once conversing with a friend concerning observations Burbank had made of the outstanding characteristics of plants, animals and children. He said that the chief trait monkeys is their mania for tearing things to pieces. They have a deep-seated impulse to destroy and will pull apart anything they are strong enough to demolish — food, magazines, books. They are blind to worth; value of one thing from another. Then the naturalist went on to liken gossips and critics to these creatures, declaring that they possess this monkey character-istic; they enjoy tearing people and reputations apart. And, like monkeys performing at a circus, the gossips and critics usually have an audience who are bemused at their antics.

Hatred is an emotion that makes a monkey of a man. The object of hatred is destroyed. Whether we consider the tiny seeds of hostility that are found in feelings of irritation and frustration, or we think of the full-grown malevolence expressed through murderous rage in the wholesale war, hatred spreads ruin. In fact, most human warfare forms it kills people, and in more subtle ways it ruins reputations, wrecks barriers between individuals and nations, destroys cooperation and worthwhile social relationships. But, especially, hatred harms the person who harbors it.

HATE IS BLINDING

The New Testament First Epistle of John declares, "... He who hates his brother is in the darkness, and does not know where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes." Hatred is blindness of self-deceived.

Hatred prevents us from seeing how it is hurting us. In the old Amos and Andy show there appeared a part of a character who loved to give Andy a friendly, enthusiastic slap across the chest whenever he met Andy or to meet. Andy wearied of the man and his vigorous swats, and he confided to Amos his plan to discourage the big fellow's habit. "I'm all set for him. I struck a little piece of metal in my vest pocket. The next time he thumps me on the chest, he's going to get a surprise!" Amos: Poor Andy! He was too dull to realize that the explosion that would destroy another's chest would shatter his own heart.

It is always so. Hate hurts the hater as well as he is hurting. It keeps a person so intent upon seeing and punishing the evil in another that one is blinded to what is happening to oneself.

Every school teacher has encountered a student who stubbornly refuses to prepare his lessons because he dislikes the teacher or hates school. He believes that he is defeating the teacher and the educational administration if he refuses to study. He may have some subversive effect upon the classroom and the school, but the effect upon the pupil is positively ruinous. He cuts himself off from a number of appreciations and opportunities that only a sound education can afford him. Hatred punishes himself, defeats himself and becomes his own victim.

The hostile person kills his marriage by belittling, disparaging, nagging his partner, but it is his marriage as well as his partner's that he is hurting. The employee or employer who is ready to take offense and to exaggerate little disputes quick to sulk and hasty to retaliate pollutes the atmosphere of his own daily work with his attitude. He then must live in that suffocating influence. But he will blame others, not seeing as being at fault. Hatred blinds us to how much we hurt ourselves.

Hatred restricts our outreach. It's like blinding sickness makes shut-ins of all who contract it. But at the same time we do not like to learn of his virtues, successes and triumphs. We ignore them if we can. Thus a whole range of experience with others is closed to us, that of seeing, admiring and emulating the best in another person.

SHUTOFF FROM GOOD

Rudyard Kipling had a brother-in-law who was a most likeable man, and Kipling and this in-law were good friends. But they became life-long enemies when the brother-in-law made a wager in such a way as to cause Kipling to fall off his bicycle. Both became shut off from the good in the life of the other.

Gilbert and Sullivan, of light opera fame, first had a falling out over the price of a carpet and were never again on friendly terms, although they continued to collaborate on the composition of operas. They were shut in, isolated from the great good in each other by their malice.

One of the greatest baseball heroes of all time, who played on the same team, had a misunderstanding with a remark made by one concerning the dress the other (Ian's daughters wore. For years they did not speak to each other except during in the performance of duty. Then one of these baseball players, when one of them was taken critically ill, did they reconcile. The man recovered but suffered a hate-blindness that kept each from seeing the other as a human being in need.

How many adventures in friendship and appreciation we and those we are restricted by a hostility-induced blindness. Hatred imperils health. Clinical findings have long since proved that inner tensions, as well as organic disease, precipitate serious health crises. Malice, grudges, dwelling on past hurts, insecurities and inferiorities are among the tensions that often cause, or worsen, high blood pressure, digestive disorders and ulcers. (It is said, "It isn't what you eat that causes ulcers; it's what eats you".) This is because man is neither a body nor a soul, but a soul that is using a body. It is the soul's abuse as well as use the body God has given it. When we engage in hatred, it is not only enough period, they at last answer and distress the body. Hatred is a vicious boomerang that, when thrown, gathers momentum and returns to injure the person who uses it, destroying his health and happiness.

Hatred may start as an irrational impulse, but it easily becomes an emotional habit. The hostile person seldom gives much thought to the significance of his inner-most thoughts and utterances. He has practiced the art of harsh faultfinding so long and the expression of violent dislike become automatic ways of releasing his own inner tensions and unhappiness. When his hostility is through with one target it sets up another, because hatred simply must express itself on something.

HATE LIKE ALCOHOL

Hatred has been likened to alcoholism. When alcoholism seizes a man he will drink whiskey if it's available, or gin, or rum, and if nothing else is on hand even wood alcohol will be consumed. So, when a person gets the hatred habit, he will hate his real enemies, and then, when his hatred impulse remain unsatisfied, he reaches for other objects of hostility. He may become hypercritical of those near him, his wife, children, employers, employees, public servants. He belittles his neighbors and disparages the successes of his acquaintances. He reads wrong motives into the behavior of his associates and is slow to forgive them. He intimidates those he can and humiliate others. Those of other races, religions, nations and political parties supply him with hate objects. First he has the hate habit, then the hate habit has him.

Hatred begins in little ways, but how it grows.

Two thousand years ago Jesus taught that the world can be redeemed only through love. Twenty centuries have not ended that truth. They have illustrated it and magnified it. And an age of nuclear weapons, conceived in hate and born in war, makes Christ's truth more apparent and imperative than ever. Once we were asked to be our brother's keeper. Now we have no choice. Once our Teacher was the kindly, loving Nazarene. Now our instructors are Nagasaki and Hiroshima. The clouds of atomic dust have fated over obliterated cities, but the lesson remains: hatred destroys individuals and nations; it ruins ourselves and others.

Love or perish.

Garden Notes

Delphiniums Are 'Lime Lovers'

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The English garden often has a chalky soil. This makes it highly alkaline. The seed catalogues list the "lime haters" and the "lime lovers." One of the lime lovers is their stately delphinium. The Blackmore and Langdon and Wrexham delphiniums are world famous and the secret ingredient is the alkaline soil.

To have healthy delphiniums that grow year after year in the same place and send up thick tall spikes of color you must feed them well and give them some lime.

To prepare the soil for new plants dig in plenty of peat, ground concoots or compost to make a loose humus rich soil. Counteract the acidity of peat by adding half a cup per plant of ground lime stone. A dash of slow acting fertilizer such as bone meal, some sheep manure or pulverized cow manure. (All these are for sale at your garden centre or hardware.)

Broadcast half a cup of 5-10-5 chemical fertilizer for each plant and turn these over working them in together thoroughly. Set in the plants firm the soil and water with a weak solution of liquid plant fertilizer. The other fertilizers will be available later as the roots develop and soil temperatures warm up and soil bacterial action takes place.

WORK IN LIGHTLY

Once a year spread a quart or so peat or compost in a ring around each plant and work it in lightly. Sprinkle on a light dusting of lime spring and fall or twice during the summer. Feed the plants early in the spring with a 5-10-5 fertilizer. Not enough to be absorbed before the buds form.

Spray every two weeks to combat aphids and red spiders. An all-purpose spray containing malthion and rotenone will take care of both pests.

When planting a border it is well to choose plants that will make good neighbors. Put all the plants that like acid soil in one part of the garden and maintain the soil acidity with annual additions of peat moss. Group the alkaline perennials together and keep them happy with lime. They need humus too but keep acid balanced by a little extra lime. Do not over do liming however soil. If you have a soil testing kit it should register about PH 6.

GOOD NEIGHBOR

Digitalis (foxglove) makes a good neighbor to delphiniums since it likes the same soil conditions and the colors afford a lovely contrast. The foxglove is considered a biennial but in England it is called a perennial. This may be due to the extra lime in the soil there. The foxglove is beautiful with a sprinkling of spots on delicate pink, lavender, yellow or cream background. The tall spikes do with delphinium for height. The giant Shirley digitalis have extra large blooms in deep maroon, bronze and soft creamy white. They reach six to seven feet high.

Painted daisy, gypsophyle, coreopsis, rudbeckia, veronica, penstemon, and physlogia make good neighbors for delphiniums.

If you want to grow delphiniums from seed be sure to try several varieties. The Pacific hybrids are spectacular but short lived. English varieties include Wrexham, Blackmore and Langdon, and Bellladonna hybrids. These are tall and stately with good stamina. The Chinese and Formosan delphiniums are shorter. Three foot plants have beautiful and shorter spikes that make fine cutting material and fine plants for the middle border. They come in dark blue, Cambridge blue and white, separate colors or mixed.

Task of Changing Old Habits Always Difficult Especially if It Involves Short Skirts for Nuns

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Changing old habits is always difficult, but that's what the Sisters of Mercy religious order is discussing.

One feature at a Chicago fashion show early this year was a short-skirted habit, proposed for the nuns of the Roman Catholic order.

In addition to shortening the skirt, the new habit simplified the veil and sported the crest of the order on the jacket.

It is unlikely that such a radical alteration will be adopted immediately, said Sister Mary Joachim, principal of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy.

How do the sisters feel about the shorter skirts?

"We all love our habits, but we're all women," she said.

Pope Pius XII suggested several years ago that nuns might modernize their apparel to fit "They are used to seeing us as we are."

The world is supposed to see Christ in us," said Sister Mary Joachim, and noted that Jesus didn't dress differently from the people of His time.

She said most opposition to the short-skirt proposal came from the teen age students.

But Sister Mary Joachim's prediction for her order was, "there will always be a veil."

One recent order of nuns, the Sisters of the Divine Spirit, based at Mount Pocono Pa., already wear short skirts. Their outfit is grey, not black, and has no veil, only a small cap.

The opponents of short skirts, she said, feel that such apparel is not as religious and dislike the sheer stockings worn with normal-length skirts. More conventional shoes would also be required.

Those for the proposal argue that short skirts would stay cleaner.

Mobile Ministers Criticized

KINGSTON (CP) — Ministers who flit from congregation to congregation were criticized Wednesday at the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada.

"It's a shame that some ministers stay only one year in each pastorate," said Rev. John Fullerton of Keene, Ont., near Peterborough.

He said the only exception to ministers being committed to a task should be when a minister is unable to reach or influence a congregation.

Eight ministers ordained and three deaconesses set apart Wednesday night included:

James E. Cargo, Belleville presbytery; Eilert F. Freriks, Kingston presbytery; William R. Hendry, Peterborough presbytery; David C. Northey, Ottawa presbytery; Douglas T. Steven, Sudbury presbytery; Stevens, Sudbury presbytery; Frederick A. Styles, Kingston presbytery, and Wendell Murray Sedgewick, of Lindsay.

The three deaconesses are Laura Fielder, Lindsay presbytery; Carol James, Oshawa, and Margaret L. Lowes, Peterborough.

Mr. Stevens, who hopes to return to Northern Ontario to serve the miners he used to work with as a hardrock miner, was ordained by his father, Rev. Walter Stevens of Eastview Baptist church, Ottawa.

Mr. Freriks also is carrying on a family tradition. Seven years ago he came from Germany where Protestant ministers have been in the family since the 16th century.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Word via the dogsled underground that arrived late yesterday, had it that this newspaper's harness race selector, "Madame Seldomrite," who has been vacationing in the Arctic, has been delayed and will not make selections for tonight's inaugural meet at the Agricultural Park Raceway, henceforth known as "Race-way."

It appears Seldomrite got in an argumentative embroglio with an igloo of Eskimos over the Pearson Pennant that bears Simese-triplets maple leafs.

Over beakers of white blubber chased by penquin punch, Seldomrite and the Eskys tonsilled the pros and cons of the replacement for the non-pensioned Red Ensign.

According to the deep-freeze despatches, the Eskys did not know what a maple leaf was and suggested that the symbol they had seen on rare visits to the white man's northern outposts was a tuberculosis antiseptic.

Seldomrite, through sign language, figured they meant the three-ball emblem of the pawnbroker. "Through their under-ice grapevine" the selector said: "they must have heard the country was in hock so far that the status should be recognized."

Seldomrite also reported that one of the grimiest Eskys was an ex-member of the 34th Battery RCA Association. This ancient back intimated that the insignia of the famous crown-and-anchor board be used.

"It would come in handy as a table cloth on cold winter evenings when some of the troops stationed in the northern areas drop in for a slug of blubber or a pint of penquin punch."

So without the selector and as president of the shin-plungers' club, I think I'll refrain from wagering until they enter "Dogger" Pearer piloting "Smoky 6236" against "Adios O'Maera" and "Gratton O'Mahoney," a couple of spavined old crocks.

But as the man said, "scratch a gambler and you will discover a an optimist, a guy who is never really gambling until he cannot afford to lose."

Another said that dollars are merely the tools of a gambler's trade whose wife never owns jewelry—just her husband's reserves.

And John Barrymore who once lost $10,000 in a dice game, was comforted by a friend who said, "Sometimes you win; sometimes you lose. But you must admit there's a lot of money in gambling."

"Yes," sighed Barrymore, "a lot of money that used to be mine."

Walter Winchell once said "no horse can go as fast as the money wagered on it. It is easy to get rich quick if you can find enough people willing to take a chance on getting poor quick."

And I heard a veteran gambler say, "I think that most people cannot resist the temptation to bet because it is a way of getting something for nothing—but if you gamble long enough you will discover it is a way of getting nothing for something."

My only hope for recuperation for the loss of several shirts last year is to locate my "silver-haired mystery woman."

But there's not much hope there. The way the gals are changing hairdo's and color the might be a blonde, brunette, redhead, plaid or bald by now. If I could only locate her hairdresser. They are the only ones that know.

Senior Baseball Thriller

Cannifton Shades Ajax

Cannifton came from behind twice before nipping Ajax 3-2 as the new Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball League swung into action before a small, chilled crowd at the Belleville Fairgrounds last night.

The game was a well-played nip and tuck affair in which Ajax led 1-0 and later 2-1 before Cannifton scored a pair in the sixth to snatch the decision.

Belleville Joyces open their share of the schedule here on Monday night in an 8.15 game against Oshawa.

Last night's tilt was a three-man pitching duel - between Cannifton's Gerry Hill and Ajax's Murray Godfrey and Mac Rowland.

Hill fired a strong five-hitter and blazed third strikes past 13 batters. He walked only one.

Godfrey started, gave up all the Cannifton runs but struck out 12 before he gave way to Rowland opening the seventh. Rowland added six strikeouts for a total of 18. They walked a pair, allowing only four hits.

Don Forsythe hit a lead-off homer for the winners to tie it 1-1 in the second but Ajax scored again in the fifth. Cannifton got the nod with a walk, an error and base hits by Empy and Brennan in the sixth.

Cannifton hitters were Don Forsythe with his homer, Ross Empy, Bud Hill and Gerald Brennan, each with a single.

Mac Rowland belted a double and single for Ajax while other base knocks went to E. Peterson, B. Tripp and A. Rennick.

Goalie Ousted For Swinging At Official

BRAMPTON (CP) — Alderwood Sterling outlasted Brampton 21-17 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association junior game Friday which included the expulsion of Torrier goalie Curly Sinclair and an injury to referee John Hammond.

Sinclair was assessed a match penalty in the opening period for taking a swing at referee Whitey Frick and will be suspended indefinitely.

Hammond suffered a pulled muscle-cramp midway through the second period.

Job-Saving Home Run Topples Giants

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Hickman, seeing the noose on the locker room wall, knew he had to swing one way or the other.

His swing—a two-run homer—carried New York Mets to a 4-2 victory over San Francisco Friday night and knocked the Giants out of first place in the National League. The swing also presumably kept him in the Mets' line-up.

His starting status was threatened two days ago following the Mets' 2-0 loss to Chicago Cubs.

If he doesn't commence swinging," seethed manager Casey Stengel, I'll swing him right out of the line-up."

Hickman drew his boss' wrath by being called out on strikes twice and hitting into a double play.

The game with the Giants was a different tale. The centre fielder went into the contest with a .200 batting average and one home run, his only extra-base hit.

SCORE TIED

He came to the plate with the game tied 2-2 and Joe Christopher on base. Minutes before, with one out in the seventh inning, Frank Thomas ruined Jack Sanford's no-hit bid with a triple, which scored Rod Kanehl. Thomas then scored on Christopher's single. Hickman ran the count to 3-2, then slammed the ball over the left field fence.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia Phillies moved into the lead by edging Houston Colts 7-6, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1, St. Louis Cardinals nipped Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and Milwaukee Braves outscored Chicago Cubs 6-5.

Besides Hickman's home run, the highlight of the Mets' seventh win was the sensational catch that Willie Mays almost made on Thomas' 400-foot drive to left centre.

Mays, his back to the field, leaped against the wall and got his glove on the ball. However, he fell, catching his spikes under the fence. He recovered the ball and flipped it, while lying on his back, toward the infield.

Jim Bunning pitched a perfect game for 6 2-3 innings before the Colts got a run in the seventh and five in the eighth for a 6-5 lead.

RECOVER IN EIGHTH

The Phillies recovered in their eighth, scoring two runs on Danny Cater's single, a double by Gus Triandos which scored Cater and a triple by Cookie Rojas, his fourth hit.

Joe Moeller pitched a six-hitter and Willie Davis scored twice and drove in one run against the Pirates.

Ray Sadecki drove in one run and battery mate Tim McCar-

Maple Leafs Win 8-4 In 19th Inning

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

With any kind of luck, Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester Red Wings will get through the baseball games today in less time than it took them to play one Friday night.

They were in action for exactly five hours before the International League leaders suddenly found their batting eye and emerged with an 8-4 victory in 19 innings.

The somewhat fortunate Leafs —two unearned runs kept them alive in the ninth when Columbus Jets whipped Richmond Virginians 6-1 and Jacksonville Suns drubbed the tail - end Atlanta Crackers 10-3.

Outhit 15-10 and amassing the two runs on the help of 21 strikeouts, the Leafs finally put together five of their safeties in the 19th against John Wyatt, who remained relliver Chi Chi Olivo with his sixth victory without a defeat. Before them, the two teams stranded 31 base-runners.

The Chiefs got a five - hitter from young Danny McLain and a pair of doubles from Legrand Thomas to back their sixth straight game and extended the Bisons' losing streak to six.

Frank Herrera's grand-slam home run in the first inning took all the suspense out of the Richmond-Columbus game as Ezri Francis spun a three-hitter for the Jets. Joe Morgan hit two homers, one a grand-slammer, to drive in six runs for Jacksonville against the Crackers.

Unscheduled Tag Match

Hady, Lyons Cop Victory

"Bulldog" Brower was kennelled for something the last night and failed to show for the main bout at Memorial Arena.

They substituted a hodge-podge of wrestlers and came up with an extra single bout, topped with a tag-team match.

In the double-breasted event Gentleman Jim Hady and Lyons with Billy "Red" Lyons, while huge Bob Stanlee paired with Mike Valentino.

The popular "Red" and Hady hung the twin-bill after three falls of exciting mauling.

They took the odd fall in three when Lyons after taking some severe manhandling brought the huge Stanlee down off the ropes and planted him after terrific body smashes.

It was practically all Lyons and Hady in the second fall, with the pair matching gimmick for gimmick with the towering Stanlee and Valentino.

In turn they had the big pair whirling dizzily, but the worm suddenly turned when Valentino caught Lyons coming off the ropes and flattened him with a knee smash to the stomach.

Lyons took severe punishment from both the opposition in the opening fall. The tall guys hoodwinked Referee Tiger Tasher into several decisions and Hady had to be content as a spectator.

Finally the popular Russ-Syrian got his chance and ripped the tall men out of the ring. He won the fall after 18 minutes of strenuous battling.

Hady won his "qualifying" bout in the third event when he bested Valentino after 17 minutes of mauling.

Lyons failed to get back in the ring in time after an "outside" slugging match with Valentino in the second bout and was counted out by a whiker.

Expect Record Speeds For '500'

By JERRY LISKA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Imagine a traffic jam blazing 190 miles an hour down the straightaways and 150 around the curves, and you have today's 48th Indianapolis 500-mile auto race which could be the fastest and most perilous in history.

Safety is the keynote in this $500,000 mad dash to nowhere—200 roaring whirls around a 2½-mile asphalt oval measuring 50 feet on the straightaways and 90 feet on the slightly banked corners.

But death-flirting danger is the big lure for most of the estimated 250,000 who jammed the 537-acre Speedway plant.

Miraculously, due mainly to the skill of each year's 33 speed-wise drivers and tight track supervision, death has taken a comparative holiday at the Speedway.

It could end sometime between noon and 4 p.m. EDT today under the nerve - rattling pressure of a heralded shoot-down between 18 front-engine Offenhausers and 12 rear-engined powerhouses, including three front-row Ford-powered creations.

Bobby Marshman, who rode off in the No. 2 position, alongside pole-sitter Jimmy Clark, hinted at the blurring pace, expected to develop with this pre-race comment:

I've been practising as high as 150 m.p.h. around the turns. I've never hit them before do-

Toronto's welterweight John Rodrigues is unanimous decision over Victoria's Tom Black and a technical knockout in 1:31 of the third round in the fight with Etienne Sarazzin of Montreal.

So He Says

Mays Will Be Lucky To Hit .300

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco Giants' captain says Willie Mays not only won't hit .400 this year but he'll be lucky to hit .300.

The captain should know because he happens to be Willie Mays.

No kidding," said the brilliant centre fielder. I'll settle for .300 right now. It's tough to hit .300 today. Even when I was hitting .450 and .500, I knew I couldn't keep that up. I fall into too many slumps."

Mays was hitting around .480 until two weeks ago but his average has dropped to .379. He went hitless in three official times at bat Friday night as New York Mets defeated the Giants 4-2, knocking them out of first place.

If I can finish up among the top five or six in home runs, runs batted in, runs scored and average, I'll consider it a good year," Willie said. How many fellows get men this old hitting this year? I'll bet no more than seven or eight.

When I first came up to the big leagues, they told me if I could hit .300 I'd have nothing to worry about. Well, it gets tougher tougher. Not because I'm getting old. It's the schedule with all the travelling and night flying. It takes a lot out of you."

Federation president R. B. Pearson of Saint John said he had received no official notice of the retirement of champion Marcel Gendron of Quebec City but was declaring the title vacant on the basis of reports from Cornwall.

The reports said Gendron had withdrawn from a scheduled title fight with Eddy Mantz in Cornwall June 4, claiming he was retiring.

Named as contenders for the title were Mancini, Les Chabot of Montreal, Leo Gillis of Sydney, Andre Maillet of Quebec City and Buddy Daye of Halifax.

Homer Wins For White Sox

Pete Ward Returns To Slugging Form

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Ward of Chicago White Sox, who hadn't hit a homer in a month of Sundays, now has hit three in a week of slamming.

His injured back apparently strengthened, the Montreal-born third baseman continued his recent slugging Friday night, hitting his second grand - slam homer in a week and providing all the runs as the American League leaders whipped Detroit Tigers 4-1.

Ward, who was edged out for Rookie-of-the-Year honors last year by teammate Gary Peters, missed the first two weeks of the season and didn't hit his first homer until he connected for a grand slam last Saturday. His hit another homer Monday and followed up with his grand slam against the Tigers.

Ward hit .285 with 22 homers and 84 runs batted in as a rookie, but after difficulty getting started this year after sitting out most of spring training because of a strained back. Brought along slowly, he seems to be in top shape now.

HITS THREE

In the last week, a period of six games, the 24-year-old sophomore has hit the three homers, driven in 11 runs and hit at a .360 clip bringing his over-all average up to a more-than-respectable .315.

Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota Twins, meanwhile, remained one-up on Rocky Colavito of Kansas City Athletics in their home run derby.

Killebrew hit No. 14 in support of Jim Roland's two-hit pitching as the Twins defeated Boston Red Sox 3-2 while Colavito hit his 13th, a three-shot that triggered the Athletics to a 4-3 victory over New York Yankees.

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore Orioles edged Los Angeles Angels 3-2 and Washington Senators belted Cleveland Indians 8-3.

Tiger starter Dave Wickersham had held the White Sox to three hits when he ran into trouble in the sixth. After Mike Hershberger doubled, Wickersham hit Pete Ward with a pitch and walked Floyd Robinson. Ward then connected. John Buzhardt won it with a six-hitter.

Detroit catcher Bill Freehan was forced to leave the game in the third inning after complaining of dizziness. He was hit on the head in the second inning when Chicago shortstop Ron Hansen attempted do throw to first on an apparent doubleplay.

DRIVES IN WINNER

Killebrew homered in the second inning and drove in the winning run with a single in the Twins' two-run third. The Red Sox had pulled ahead against Roland, 2-2, in the second when Duck Stuart homered with a man on.

Killebrew and Tony Oliva each collected three hits, Oliva raising his league-leading average to .336.

Colavito homered in the first inning after Yankee starter Jim Bouton was touched for singles by Wayne Causey and George Alusik. The victory went to Diego Segui, who pitched 5 1-3 innings of no-hit ball but ultimately needed relief help. Hector Lopez' homer was the first hit off Bouton.

Luis Aparicio drove in two of the Orioles' runs, singling after Jackie Brandt's triple in the first inning and knocking in the decisive run in the second with a sacrifice fly. Robin Roberts, 3-2, was the winner with Stu Miller's relief help. Dan Osinski of the Angels struck out 10 in five innings after relieving starter Dean Chance.

The Indians scored four runs in the sixth; two on John Romano's homer, and pulled into a 4-3 lead against the Senators. Washington tied the score in the bottom half of the inning and pulled ahead to stay in the seventh when Don Blasingame and John Kennedy each drove in two runs with bases-loaded singles.

Sonny Liston Drops Decision

DENVER (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston was fined $600 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence Friday for reckless driving and carrying a concealed weapon.

Judge Dan Diamond fined Liston $300 and sentenced him to a 30-day suspended jail sentence on the weapons charge.

The judge also fined Liston $200 for reckless driving, a charge to which Liston pleaded guilty. Charges of speeding and careless driving had been combined with the reckless driving count.

The charges arose from Liston's arrest March 10 after a policeman chased him at 76 miles an hour through a 30-mile zone in an East Denver residential section.

Liston lost his heavyweight title Feb. 25 to Cassius Clay.

'Later Mel' Was Almost Too Late

TORONTO (CP) — Better late than never" seems to be the motto of Wilf Parr's aptly named three-year-old filly Later Mel. But, Friday at Greenwood, Later Mel just made it.

With Avelino Gomez riding, Later Mel jumped between horses in the final yards of the featured Silver Strike purse at Greenwood Raceway to defeat Capricious Miss and Famous Road.

It was Later Mel's third victory of the season and her second straight at Greenwood. In five starts this season she has never been worse than second.

Capricious Miss jut nosed out Famous Road at the wire for second money. The quinella of Later Mel and Capricious Miss returned $11.30.

Roman Scholar, a hot-favorite in the first, combined with longshot Edgar's Gael in the second for a $61.50 daily-double.

OPENS MONDAY

Goldwyn's 'Wuthering Heights' Unchallenged Emotional Drama

World-acclaimed for its stabbing emotional conflict, world renowned for its production perfection, Samuel Goldwyn's timeless masterpiece of love and hatred, "Wuthering Heights," from the famous novel by Emily Bronte, opens Monday at the Park Theatre. Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier are the romantic lovers who discover the beauty and despair of love as they wander wildly over desolate moors of the Yorkshire countryside. The stars are supported by a cast of outstanding players including David Niven, Flora Robson, Hugh Williams, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Donald Crisp and Miles Mander.

Briefly, the story concerns the lives of five strangely assorted people. Its mood is one of great love and great disaster, played out in an atmosphere of strange emotions, strange hates, strange moods. Merle Oberon is Cathy, a high-spirited beauty whose life is mysteriously influenced by the moors on which she has lived all her life. Laurence Olivier plays the role of Heathcliff, a brooding, melancholy figure in love with Cathy. David Niven, as Edgar Linton, turns in a portrait of unusual fidelity and conviction, and Flora Robson, known as England's greatest character actress is Cathy's nurse.

Much publicity has been heaped upon the beautiful production and brilliant photography which heighten the story of "Wuthering Heights" and make it one of the screen's greatest contributions since picture-making came of age.

Two complete shows, 7.00 and 9.00 p.m.

Joey Bishop Will Be MC For 26 Shows Next Fall

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They ought to give me an Emmy," says Joey Bishop with a rueful smile, for the most - cancelled show in television."

The usually grim - panned Joey can afford a smile, having braved his third cancellation in three years. He'll be back for a fourth season following network dealing as complicated as a Perry Mason script.

Earlier this year, Joey was notified that NBC wasn't going to renew his half-hour comedy show.

NBC still wanted Joey—but as master of ceremonies of an hour variety show. Joey was willing, but he balked at signing for only 3 shows.

I knew I couldn't assemble the best kind of staff unless I had a guarantee of 26 shows," he said. The networks often make a decision about dropping a show after four or five have been on the air. You might not be able to hit your stride with a variety show until you've done 10 or more. By that time it would be too late."

HELD FIRM

Joey held firm, so did NBC. Meanwhile CBS was making overtures for the half-hour comedy or an hour variety show for the 1965-66 season.

Bishop resigned himself to hitting the saloon circuit once more and signed for four weeks in Las Vegas beginning in August.

On a Friday at 3 p.m., NBC made its final decision: 16 weeks of the variety hour or nothing. Joey took nothing. At 3:30 p.m. CBS called and wanted the half-hour comedy for 18 weeks the coming season. No, said Joey, it's got to be 26.

I'm going out to play golf," he told his agents. Don't try to call me unless the answer is yes." The answer came at his home at 6 p.m.: yes.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Be logical. Dwelling upon the unknown is not constructive. Versatility proves of immense value. Cycle moving up. You can make new friends. Romantic pursuits favored.

If today is your birthday . . . greater freedom of thought, action due. This is because financial prospects brighten. You are a hard, steady worker - - very loyal.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Cycle continues high for Aquarius. But Taurus receives the publicity.

For June 1

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): No "Blue Monday" for you! Friends brighten day. Wishes can be fulfilled. You should step into new profitable area of endeavor. Especially good where vacation activities are concerned.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Social standing elevated. You may make gains by expressing thoughts. Public opens doors to those in position of authority. Results not immediate. But this is a day when you must "plant seeds."

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): You are now freer to move — make changes and contacts from afar. Stress versatility. Obtain hint from today's Aries message. Remember one who is distant. Keep "in touch."

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Resist unwarranted anxiety. Being disturbed over actions of associate or partner not constructive. Information obtained earlier may now prove valid. Important to check agreements, legal papers.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Fulfill obligations. Handle assignments without complicating issues. Maintain dignity. Spotlight of publicity shines. Fine for expressing thoughts on paper. Your ideas will gain.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Be especially considerate of those who serve you. The right word, a smile could transform this into a constructive day. Break from routine. Expressing love to family member will enhance harmony.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Don't mix romance and money. Study situation . . . heed your own counsel. Don't become involved with one who promises the impossible. Fine evening for study, creative pursuits.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't push too hard. There is barrier against some of your wishes. Impulsive action could upset plans. Build strength. Collect facts. You may gain with time. Be philosophical.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Concentrate efforts. Tendency today is to modify, to change, to express doubt. Wise course now sees you completing project. Put thoughts on paper. Obtain hint from Leo message.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Financial gain indicated. Reward due as result of creative project. Perhaps combination of hobby and business is answer. Be original, independent. Assert yourself. No backing down!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Build foundation, but don't attempt to start at top. Utilize common sense approach. Let others sing your praises. Judgment is accurate. But "touchy" situation exists among fellow workers.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Fine for resting tonight. Conserve energy. Stay out of needless argument. Discuss facts intelligently. But don't attempt to draw definite conclusions. Picture due to change — radically.

If today is your birthday . . . you often are "life of the party." But, privately, you have difficulty understanding your "direction." This month you receive moral support from family member.

General Tendencies: Money requirements for space effort are enormous — and there are protests.

Avoiding Excessive Gear Wear

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

On standard transmission models (and there are still millions on the road) first and second gears shoulder most of the hard usage. Drivers can minimize the wear and tear on them by completing the shifts to high without racing in the lower gears. You can also stretch gear life by shifting directly from low to high when the car is on level ground and not pulling much weight.

Transmission troubles are often announced by noise. Just a mechanic listens closely when he road-tests. A growling or humming sound indicates gear trouble, while a thumping transmission noise generally means worn bearings. Chattering can be caused by vibration at the shifter ball and socket joint. If transmission oil is too thin, he may hear a rattling noise at some speeds because gears are not being cushioned as they move back and forth in their clearances.

From L. D.: "Since Sunday, I've been afraid to drive my car. The engine starts promptly and runs smoothly but there's a steady, loud, buzzing or scraping noise." Judging from your description the starter isn't disengaging.

S. C. asks: "Lately, my car seems to have a real bouncy ride. Would you say new shock absorbers are needed?"

Perhaps — but don't accuse the shocks until you're sure low tire pressures aren't to blame.

T. F. writes: "Checking under the hood, I noticed two holes in my distributor cover which were plugged with dirt or grease. I suppose they should be cleaned out, if they've been put there for a purpose."

Right. These are vents to permit excess gas to escape during normal distributor operation. Corrosive action can take place if these gases are trapped.

From J. B.: I can hear a thumping noise in the rear of my car. It can't be the tires because all four are new and I've checked the muffler, tail pipe, trunk lid, spare and jack."

It could be a spring, shock absorber or unbalanced rear wheel(s).

away with everything for which democracy stands," he said.

Mr. Mather also brought up the question of sex but his concern was in trying to keep it out of cigarette advertising.

He commended the American tobacco industry for adopting a code of ethics by which claims allying cigarette smoking with virility were banned from advertising. Athletes similarly were banned from advertisement.

They were replaced with pictures of businessmen and politicians, who are not notably connected with virility."

Mr. Mather stressed that recent reports emphasizing health hazards of smoking were the work of unnamed medical authorities whose only interest in bringing forward their views was the concern for public health.

They have nothing else to sell. They are not concerned with promoting tobacco, advertising it, selling it or displaying it."

The farm debate was sparsely attended and only 23 MPs were on hand at one point.

CHANGES BETRAYAL

Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) accused the government of betraying cheese producers by omitting the export subsidy on cheese to two from three cents a pound.

He said that parliamentary Minister Hays had been asked by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Dairy Farmers of Canada, and Ontario cheese producers to continue the subsidy and that he had "left them in the lurch."

Mr. Aikenbrack asked whether Mr. Hays had taken his advice from the butter and milk powder corporations. The lower subsidy would cost producers $1,370,000.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) and Robert Coates (PC — Macleod) both criticized Mr. Hays for planning to write a column for weekly newspapers. They said letters have gone out from an assistant of the minister to weekly newspaper editors with details of the proposed column.

If he's going to write an authoritative column he's going to have to spend more time in Parliament," said Mr. Horner.

High Frequency Transmitter Will Be Placed

PICTON (Staff) — Preparation of a High Frequency Transmitter for the RCAF at Mt. Petrie is being carried out by the Department of Recreating and Grading Co. of Bloomfield. The clearing of 47 acres and grubbing of 23 acres was started on May 4th by Leavitt's and should be completed well within the sixty days' deadline for the job.

Twelve firms submitted tenders for the job, with Leavitt being low at $16,088.50. Highest of the twelve was that of $35,422, submitted by the Tatham Construction Co. of Belleville.

CHEQUES RETURNED

Some of the cheques stolen in the T. Eaton Store robbery late in April are finding their way back into Picton. They are apparently being cashed in the area by the Toronto area. Picked up, they have been returned by Picton police who have returned them to Picton.

One local lady received back her baby bonus cheque which she had cashed at Eaton's on the day the safe was opened and the contents taken.

It had the address as given on the cheque, but the envelope, postmarked Toronto, contained nothing but the cheque.

REACH OBJECTIVE

The Cancer Society reported that the $5,500 objective was search in the recent drive for funds. "The results were very gratifying," said Mrs. William Woolmore-Goodwin, president of the local branch of the Cancer Society.

He said British institutions and British traditions remain a part of Canadian heritage and environment.

He called on Canadians to cultivate "the understanding mind and the tolerant and wise approach to problems."

Report From Cyprus

'. . Fear, Hatred Have Put Weapons In the Hands of Untrained Boys. .'

The following report on the Cyprus conflict is written by Edmonton Journal correspondent Clare McDermott 36, who worked on newspapers in Ottawa, Owen Sound, Ont., and Sudbury, Ont., before joining the Reuters news agency 10 years ago. He has worked in Britain, France, Southeast Asia and for two years was Reuters correspondent in Peking. He has been in Cyprus since March.

By CLARE McDERMOTT

NICOSIA (Reuters) — The Cyprus conflict which has shaken the North Atlantic Alliance for the last five months has been a piecemeal struggle with its occasional flashes of violence echoing loudly in world capitals.

Thousands of shots have been exchanged between Greek-Cypriots and Turkish - Cypriots, whose rivalry goes back far into the history of the eastern Mediterranean. There is no accurate casualty list but even the most conservative estimates put the dead at more than 100, while the two main communities of the island each set it much higher.

Yet there is no conflict everywhere in this sunny island. Few towns or villages have escaped emotional and economic upheaval since the communal troubles erupted into violence last December.

But except for Nicosia, where Canadian, British and Finnish troops of the United Nations force today stand along the "green line" separating the two communities, there has been little consistent violence.

HILLTOP FIGHTS

Much of the fighting recently has been confined to the mountain tops overlooking the key Nicosia - Kyrenia road where the Turkish-Cypriots hold control of one of the island's main highways.

The names of Limassol, Kitima, Jouroudjina, Ghaziveran, Philloni, Lapkina, Agios Theodhoros have been in the headlines when bloody clashes flared, but generally only for a few days before they settled into an uneasy truce, often under the eyes of the UN and world public opinion.

The incidents stand out in contrast with the daily life of most people who go on with their work without ever hearing a shot.

Some isolated villages, cut off from their own communal group by geography and a barrier of towns inhabited by the other community, have had shortages of food and other goods, despite relief convoys provided by the Red Cross or Red Crescent. But there have been no reports of starvation or malnutrition and sick people are taken through the lines in UN ambulances where necessary.

People sit in the coffee shops, tend their fields or flocks and in many places cross freely between mixed sectors of the towns.

CASH BUSINESS

There is business as usual in many areas, with transactions almost all on a cash-and-carry basis.

One of the busiest market places has grown up in the "no man's land" of a deserted filling station near the Ledra Palace Hotel, right on the "green line" outside Nicosia's old walled city.

Turkish farmers bring strawberries and oranges, craftsmen bring Turnisure and handicrafts, Greeks arrive with loads of imported goods. They are shifted from one truck to another under the eyes of UN soldiers guarding the hotel, where diplomats and UN officials live.

The international oil companies for a retired fellow, you just haven't been there," says Mr Smith. "And it wasn't a big deal. Anyone responsible man in a company can set up something like this for a retired employee — if he really wants to."

Mr. Smith got a fine post-retirement story in the company's employee magazine, after his successor suggested it to the editor. He was put on the mailing list, free, of three trade publications he had received while at the company. He was sent five bottles out of a case of Scotch that had been given to his office as an annual gratuity for the last 10 years. He was issued a pass entitling him to enter the company any time he chose.

ATTITUDE IMPORTANT

"Most important of everything however, was attitude," Mr. Smith thinks. "When you retire and a new boss comes in, the employees have got to look to security . . . and be nice to the new guy. Very nice until they find out what's what. If the new guy says you really goofed

The Golden Years
Picking Your Own Source Is Excellent Retirement Tonic

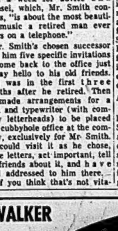
By THOMAS COLLINS

This is to suggest that any man coming up to retirement — be he 55 or 65 — should start to do all in his power to pick his successor.

The one step can determine whether a man will be a hero or a bum to his company after he's done, and can be the margin for either pleasure or bitterness in his relations with his former employer.

Findlay W. Smith had become a vice president in his company by the time he retired. This was not so good as it sounds because there were vice presidents all over the place. But it was a good job. And Mr. Smith, by maneuvering 18 months in advance, was able to choose the man who would replace him.

The man knew this. Which is essential.



"The first advantage I got from this," according to Mr. Smith, "was that I walked out of my office as a fine, honorable man in the eyes of my successor. Not as a goat he would have to kill off.

"This is very important. When any man takes over your job he is naturally inclined to show he can do better than you were. But if he likes you and if he feels any moral obligation to you he will strive in a positive manner — actually to be very good. He won't start tearing you down.

"And tearing down, by any convenient means, is what most do.

"The second advantage Mr. Smith got was that I walked out
